ALBANIAN REVOLT SERIOUS

Sultan Greatly Alarmed—Troops Rushed to Vucsteen.

A RUSSIAN CONSUL WOUNDED

Christians Fleeing from Old Servia—Severe Fighting at Mitrovitza, in Which the Rebels are Repulsed.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES Special Cablegram.

LONDON, April 2.—The latest Balkan news, says the Vienna correspondent of The Times, severely tests the optimism of official circles and causes serious misgivings elsewhere.

It seems, the correspondent says, that Russia and Austria are giving Turkey a free hand in the repression of disorder. Nevertheless, M. Stcherbina, the Russian Consul at Mitrovitsa, has been wounded by Albanians, and the Turks are bombarding villages while waiting for the arrival of Kurdish cavalry.

The correspondent thinks there is considerable danger that the Turkish methods of repression will stir "atrocities agitation" not only in Western Europe, but also in Russia, where the opportunity would be welcomed by the Pan-Slavists. Russia dreads such agitation. Hence the efforts to forestall it by the publication of Consular reports in The Official Messenger and to cast the responsibility beforehand on the British and French press.

The Constantinople correspondent of The Times says the Grand Vizier visited the Russian Ambassador, M. Zinovieff, in order to express regret at the attack on M. Stcherbina. The Palace sent Selim Pasha and the Foreign Office sent Nouri Bey on similar errands.

The correspondent adds that in spite of its inglorious failure the attack on Mitrovitsa is warmly applauded by the Albanians who compose the Sultan's bodyguard.

A dispatch from Sofia to The Times says the local papers announce that the destruction of a village near Istib by the Turks was ordered by Sabri Bey, the Kaimakam of Istib, who was informed that an insurgent band was being sheltered by the peasants. Sabri has received promotion in rank and a gold medal from the Sultan.

By The Associated Press.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 1.—Details of the disturbances in North Albania show that the revolt which has broken out there against the reform scheme of the powers is very serious.

Several thousand armed Albanians surrounded the town of Vucsteen, on the Mitrovitza-Uskub Railroad, on March 29, and demanded the surrender of eleven Servian gendarmes who had been enlisted in accordance with the reform plans. The Governor surrendered the Servians, who were bound and taken to Pristina, after having been maltreated. Bands of Albanians later surrounded Mitrovitza, and serious fighting ensued with the Turkish garrison, consisting of 3,000 troops. The fighting continued until March 30, when the Albanians were finally repulsed with great loss.

Heavy reinforcements have been ordered from Asia Minor and elsewhere to the scene of the outbreak in order to suppress the rebellion.

The Albanian rising has caused a panic among the Christians of Old Servia, who are flocing toward Servia.

A panic has occurred at Prilep in consequence of the growing fanaticism of the Albanians against the Christians. The latter have closed their shops and schools, and are preparing to seek refuge at Monastir. Numbers of Christians have been murdered in the Prilep district during the past few days.

The news of the Albanian outbreak made a great impression at the Yildiz Palace. The Sultan was intensely exercised, and measures were immediately taken to watch the two Albanian battalions belonging to the Imperial Guard, which are on duty at the palace, in order to prevent disorder.

VIENNA, April 1.—A dispatch to the Neue Freie Presse from Belgrade says that M. Stcherbina, the Russian Consul at Mitrovitsa, has been wounded in the back.

The rebellion in Macedonia is considered here to have begun already, and the situation will, it is expected, become worse. The Albanian movement is regarded as specially dangerous, because the Sultan will hardly dare to suppress it, he being surrounded by Albanian guards at the Yildiz Kiosk. It is therefore thought that the reform plan will remain a dead letter in Old Servia.

It is estimated that there are 20,000 Albanians under arms, and a general rising would be extremely serious.

It is stated that the King of Greece has abandoned his intended visit to the Danish Court at Copenhagen on account of the threatening situation in the Balkans.

The Neue Freie Presse publishes an interview with the Servian Consul General at Salonika in which he says nothing will be accomplished in Macedonia by the Porte, which is incapable of making the slightest change in the direction of reform. The Consul adds that the villagers appear determined not to lower the banner of rebellion, which will run its course unless Europe carries out the proposed reforms itself.

SALONIKA, April 1.—Special trains with troops on board are proceeding from Monastir and other places to Vucsteen, where severe fighting recently occurred. It is reported here that there were 200 casualities. Sixteen battalions of Anatolian Redifs (reserves) have been ordered to Salonika.

It was the opening of a Russian Consulate at Mitrovitza which was so bitterly opposed by the Albanians some months ago. They even cut the railway line in their endeavors to prevent M. Stcherbina reaching the city, and ever since he took up his residence in Mitrovitsa his situation has been regarded as a very perilous one.

THE KAISER AND THE SULTAN.

Germany Declared to be Partly Responsible for Conditions in the Balkans.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES Special Cablegram.

LONDON, April 2.—The Paris correspondent of The Times says that the French press has been accused by certain German papers of having contributed to promote the agitation in Southeastern Europe. A correspondent of the Siecle, apparently well informed, makes the trenchant retort that Germany has hitherto been the most efficacious supporter of the Sultan and his "unspeakable" régime. In the midst of the Armenian tragedy, it is remarked, Emperor William thought proper to go to Constantinople and embrace his friend the Sultan, and now he sends the Crown Prince to do homage at the Yildiz Kiosk. The Siecle's correspondent adds:

"If, as is almost certain, the Macedonian reform plan fails, the healthy, impartial element of the public opinion of the civilized world will attribute the responsibility partly to Germany."

The writer goes on to declare that it is the Christian population, and not the Turks, who work and produce anything. Therefore, by allowing the Christians to be annihilated, Germany is deliberately tolerating the destruction of the source whence her merchants draw their money. It is a clumsy policy, he says.

The Times's correspondent says that more than one European Chancellery views with concern the increasing infatuation of the Sultan due to Germany's ostentatious patronage.

NEW PLAN TO AID IRELAND.

Lord Iveagh and Mr. Pirrie to Develop the Country's Transport Facilities at Their Own Expense.

LONDON, April 2.—In the course of a discussion of the Irish development grant in the House of Commons yesterday Chief Secretary Wyndham, in moving that £185,000 be granted annually for development purposes in Ireland, said a genuine industrial revival was taking place in that country, and added that he was authorized to announce that Lord Iveagh (Edward Cecil Guinness) of Dublin and the Right Hon. W. J. Pirrie of Belfast, (Chairman of the Harland & Wolff Shipbuilding Company,) were prepared, in a spirit of patriotism and in view of the happier conditions prevailing, to provide the capital necessary for developing the transport facilities of the country. This they proposed to do without going to the public for help. Mr. Wyndham concluded by saying:

"There has been nothing so hopeful, patriotic, and businesslike in Ireland since the eighteenth century."

The motion was adopted.

The details of the transport scheme which Lord Iveagh and Mr. Pirrie have evolved have not yet been divulged. It is generally expected that the plans provide for either a network of light railways or an extensive service of motor cars for the benefit of the agricultural districts. Lord Iveagh has already spent £250,000 in transforming the Dublin slums into decent dwellings for the working class.

An interesting report is current in Belfast that, as an outcome of Mr. Wyndham's promised civil service economies in Ireland, all recruiting for the Royal Irish Constabulary has ceased, and that a considerable reduction in the existing strength of the Constabulary is contemplated.

SHOE STORE SELLS COFFEE.

Cuts the Price and Firm Which Prepares the Coffee Asks for an Injunction to Stop the Underselling.

Special to The New York Times.

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, April 1.—C. Shenkberg & Co., wholesale grocers of this city, have instructed their attorneys to petition for an injunction against a retail shoe store which as an attraction recently has been selling a brand of coffee prepared by the wholesale firm at 5 cents a pound, whereas the regular retail price is 20 cents a pound.

The wholesale firm refused to sell the shoe dealers the coffee, and they then procured it from retailers. Shenkberg & Co. seek to have the retail concern enjoined from selling it at less than the standard price.

PAID $4,000 FOR A CALF.

Animal Nine Weeks Old Brings a Record Figure Near Utica.

Special to The New York Times.

UTICA, N. Y., April 1.—Henry Stevens of Lacona, N. Y., an extensive breeder of fancy stock, paid to-day $4,000 for a nine-weeks-old bull calf. McAdam and Vonheyne, proprietors of the Brothertown Stock Farm near here, sold the animal. The mother of the calf is Sadie Vale Concordia, holder of the world's seven and thirty day records for milk and butter production. The sire is Beryl Wayne, a prize-winning bull. The calf was born on Jan. 22, and the price paid for him is believed to be the largest amount ever paid for a nine-weeks-old animal.

ANONYMOUS GIFT TO HARVARD.

Donation of $50,000 Toward the Emerson Hall of Philosophy.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 1.—An anonymous gift of $50,000 was announced at Harvard yesterday for a new hall of philosophy, to be called Emerson Hall, and to cost in all about $150,000.

Of this amount $65,000 has already been raised, and a further sum of $10,000 has been promised on the condition that the money be raised by May 24, Emerson's birthday.

The object of the proposed edifice will be to carry out the work of social philosophy now conducted under the direction of Prof. Peabody.

MR. CLEVELAND'S TRIP WEST.

The ex-President Does Not Intend to Go Beyond St. Louis.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 1.—Ex-President Cleveland was asked to-day concerning his Western trip this month to the dedication of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in St. Louis on April 30, and made the following statement:

"I do not intend to go further West than St. Louis, and will return as soon as possible by direct route. There has been so much talk lately that I would go to California that I have received numerous inquiries from people living in that vicinity making requests based on the truths of the reports. It may be amusing to the originators of the reports, but it is not pleasant to those who happen to be the victims of such an absurd canard."

SCANDAL THREATENED OVER CORONERS BILL

Affidavits May Be Presented in Proof of Corrupt Influences.

New York City Members Angry Over Hold-Up in the Assembly—City Bills Before Both Houses.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 1.—Republican legislators from New York City are complaining bitterly of the manner in which they are being treated by the powers which control legislation and interesting developments may result unless they are accorded more courtesy.

The Manhattan members to-day made up a list of the bills which they have before the Assembly Cities Committee, and on which they are unable to secure any report. They found that the total aggregated in the neighborhood of fifty.

Why they are unable to secure action on these measures they can only conjecture, except in one instance. The one exception is the Coroners bill. As to the reasons why that measure is being held up there is certain information in the possession of interested members in the form of two affidavits affecting a Republican and a Democratic members of the committee.

Unless some valid excuse is given by the committee for the embargo against New York City legislation these affidavits may see the light of day.

If the affidavits be reliable an investigating committee would be afforded a good start in running down a story that a corruption fund of $8,000 was raised to defeat the Coroners bill in the Assembly.

Despite the fact that the New York City Republicans are having such a hard time in getting their numerous measures out of committee, however, city legislation figured prominently in proceedings at the Capitol to-day.

The Senate Cities Committee reported favorably at to-day's session the bill introduced by Senator Plunkitt for the Department of Street Cleaning, increasing salaries in the department, and giving the Street Commissioner jurisdiction over the sprinkling and sanding of the streets. The committee also reported the bill introduced by Senator Marshall relative to the extension of the fire alarm telegraph service of the city. Under this bill the Fire Commissioner is permitted to extend the fire alarm telegraph system whenever he deems it desirable to do so, and to make necessary purchases with the approval of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment.

The Senate Cities Committee was to have met again this afternoon to act upon the New York Central Terminal bills. These measures have been passed by the Assembly, but for some reason the Senate Committee has shown an indisposition to act upon them. At the time set for the meeting this afternoon to act upon the bill only four members were on hand, Chairman Davis and Messrs. Goodsell, Plunkitt, and Fancher. An adjournment was taken for want of a quorum.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Whitman, who was on hand to urge a report on the bills, said that the delay in this legislation was giving the city much concern.

In the Senate to-day one of Senator Marshall's bills affecting the Pennsylvania tunnel improvement was passed. It gives to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment the right to change the map or plan of the city or to change grades.

A companion bill was found to have a misprint and was delayed. The bill that passed had the approval of the Assembly members, as they have heretofore been strongly objected to legislation which sought to take powers from the Board of Aldermen and vest them in the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, there was some comment upon their attitude.

In the Assembly to-day Mr. Wood of New York introduced a bill affecting the application of the civil service system to the police force of New York City. The bill provides that the promotion shall be made upon competitive examination. Five grades are established and are rated thus on salaries: First, $1,150; second, $1,100; third, $1,050; fourth, $1,000, and fifth, $900.

Assemblyman Agnew made an attempt to-day to pass his bill transferring the control of railroad privileges in Battery Park from the Park Commission to the Rapid Transit Commission. The only right which the Elevated Railroad Company now has to maintain its structure in Battery Park is the one given to it under an old permit of the Park Board. In return for this privilege the company pledged itself to do a lot of things in the way of the ornamentation of its structure which it has never done.

It is asserted that during the Tammany administration the slender right of the company to the privilege which it enjoys was made the subject of blackmail. On the declaration that he desires to close the opportunity for blackmail against the company in the future, Mr. Agnew proposes that the company shall have the exclusive right to the use of Battery Park and shall be subject to the jurisdiction of the Rapid Transit Commission.

Mr. Agnew said to-day that if his bill were passed the Rapid Transit Commission could be relied upon to see that the present unsightly elevated structure in the park was torn down and an ornamental structure put up in its place.

Assemblyman Mullaney denounced the bill as a "brazen steal." It was finally laid aside. Mr. Agnew says he will call it up again next week.

MORE PAY FOR RAILWAY MEN.

Baltimore Transit Company Grants an Advance to Its Employes.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, April 1.—There was rejoicing in the car barns of the United Railways Company to-night when the conductors and motormen saw posted an order of an increase of wages averaging 10 per cent. Some 2,000 men are affected, and the announcement came as a complete surprise.

The United Railways Company controls every street railway in Baltimore, and also the suburban lines. The men have been paid 14¾ cents an hour, day of twelve hours. The new schedule provides that first-year men shall receive 15¾ cents, second-year men 16 cents, and third year or more, 16 2-8 cents.

The company in making the announcement points out that unlike steam railroads or manufacturers, a street railway company's maximum charge for service is fixed by law and they are unable to recoup losses by increased charges for service.

WRECKED ON CHESAPEAKE BAY.

New York Couple on Wedding Trip in Launch Barely Escape Drowning During Storm.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, April 1.—Capt. O. W. Ranney of Watertown, N. Y., and his bride, who were making a wedding tour in a luxuriously equipped steam launch by the inland waterways, nearly perished in the Chesapeake Bay in the terrific storm yesterday.

They did not know the Chesapeake is like the Atlantic in a storm. Their frail craft ran into the northeaster. Before they could run to harbor the launch struck a reef and sank off Hawkins Point.

For five hours the Captain and his wife clung to the top of the pilot house, while sea after sea washed over them. Frank Hancock and his brother sighted the wreck from shore. They put out in a small boat which was swamped twice before they reached the nearly drowned couple.

The bride, unconscious, was first taken ashore. Her husband, when rescued, was exhausted and injured from his exertion to save his wife.

FIGHT IN FISHERIES COMPANY.

Answers Filed by the Association of Foreign Shareholders in Litigation for Control.

TRENTON, N. J., April 1.—Two answers were filed in the Court of Chancery this afternoon in the suit of Lyman E. Warren against the Fisheries Company. One answer was filed by the Fisheries Company, through its President Capt. Nathaniel B. Church, and the other by J. Harold Pim, Langley Archer West, R. Montgomery Horne Payne, and the Association of Foreign Shareholders of the Fisheries Company, Limited, of New Jersey.

Mr. Warren brought suit to restrain the defendants from voting certain shares of stock of the Fisheries Company at the annual meeting that was to have been held in January.

The Association of Foreign Shareholders has controlled the majority of the stock of the company, and proposed at the January meeting to depose Capt. Church as President and General Manager and to elect others as Directors in place of Messrs. Church, Warren, and Thomas F. Price. A temporary restraining order was granted at the time.

In his bill of complaint Warren said he owned about 5,000 shares of stock, which he had purchased in Ireland and which the Association of Foreign Shareholders refused to transfer to him, although admitting, so he said, that he owned the stock.

In the answer of the foreign shareholders it is averred that the Association of Foreign Shareholders was organized under the laws of Great Britain for the purpose of maintaining a controlling interest in the Fisheries Company, and that a perpetual voting trust was established by agreement on the part of the foreign shareholders, who placed their stock in the hands of the Association of Foreign Shareholders. The answer says that the stock which Warren says he bought is subject to this voting trust agreement, and it is charged that the formation of the voting trust was advised by Warren himself.

The answer by Capt. Church admits the charges in Warren's bill and suggests that the voting trust be dissolved as existing against public policy.

SHIPPING COMBINE'S STEP.

Amended Charter Filed to Meet Objections Made in the British Parliament.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., April 1.—The International Mercantile Marine Company filed an amended charter to-day, getting over the objections made in the British Parliament to the New Jersey charter of the corporation. These objections were that it was impossible for the British Parliament under the New Jersey charter of the corporation to impress men into its services or hire, purchase, or possess any of the vessels, or men on them, in the event of a war. This amendment was agreed upon at a meeting of the Directors held in New York last week.

The amendment consists of a provision authorizing the company to enter into a contract with the United States Government or any States or dependencies thereof, or with any foreign Government or State, including the power to sell or hire any of its steamships or sailing vessels or other property to such Governments or States for any purpose whatsoever, whether naval, military, or otherwise.

The amended certificate is signed by Clement A. Griscom, President, and Emerson E. Parvin, Secretary. The consent of the stockholders is signed by Emerson E. Parvin as proxy for Thomas W. Joyce and for J. P. Morgan, W. J. Parrie, J. B. Ismay, P. A. B. Widener, and Charles Steele, voting Trustees.

MINIMUM WAGE LAW VOID.

Indiana Overturns a Statute Fixing the Lowest Pay for Laborers on Public Works.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 1.—The Supreme Court to-day decided that the minimum wage law of 1901, providing that unskilled labor employed on all work done for counties, cities, and towns shall be paid for not less than twenty cents an hour, is unconstitutional. The decision is based on the ground that it interferes with the liberty of contract and is class legislation, and that it would be as reasonable for the Legislature to fix the minimum price which counties, cities, and towns should pay for bricks as for labor.

The law which is overthrown not only would prevent public officers from making such contracts, but provided a fine and imprisonment for any person or corporation doing public work which should employ any unskilled labor at less than 20 cents an hour.

In summing up the decision the court says: "No sufficient reason has been assigned why the wages of the unskilled laborer should be fixed by law and maintained at an unalterable rate, regardless of their actual value, and that all other laborers should be left to secure to themselves such compensation for their work as the conditions of supply and demand, competition, personal qualities, energy, skill, and experience may enable them to do."

CANADA AND CIGARETTES.

House Declares Their Importation, Manufacture, and Sale Should Be Prohibited.

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Ontario, April 1.—The woman reformers of Canada had a great moral victory in the House of Commons to-day in the adoption of Mr. Bickerdike's motion declaring for the prohibition of the importation, manufacture, and sale of cigarettes in Canada.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier was among the defeated, together with Sutherland, Borden, Bernier, and Prefontaine, his colleagues. Other Ministers, namely, Mulock and Fielding, voted for the motion. Of course, it was no party question.

After the motion was declared carried, Sir Wilfrid laughingly said in reply to a jocular remark from the opposition side: "What will I do about it? I shall have to give up smoking, I suppose, for the rest of my life."

Sir Wilfrid never uses the weed.

ROCK ISLAND-ATCHISON PLAN.

"Merger of Interest" Said to Be an Alliance Only, and Not an Absorption.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 1.—It is said in railroad circles here that the "merger of interest" of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific and the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé Railroads means not that either system has been bought by the other. An arrangement has been made, it is said, for an interchange of track facilities and the building of new track which will give both lines the best practicable route to the California coast, besides giving both lines a short cut between Memphis and San Francisco and a direct line between Galveston and San Francisco.

The Rock Island will have the use of the Santa Fé rails from Pueroo, thirty-four miles west of Albuquerque to San Francisco, besides the connecting line between Amarillo, the present western terminus of the Choctaw, Oklahoma and Gulf, now Rock Island property, and the Santa Fé main line. The Santa Fé will connect with the Rock Island main line at Liberal, Kan., by means of a cut-off from Dodge City, on the main line of the Santa Fé. The surveys for these lines have been completed.

The construction involves building from Dodge City, Kan., to Liberal, Kan.; from Santa Rosa, N. M., to Puerco, N. M., by way of Belen; from Belen to Ballenger, Texas, by way of Portales, and from Amarillo to Tucumcari.

PRESIDENT IN ENGINE CAB

Views Pennsylvania Horseshoe Curve with Grimy Trainmen.

First Speech of Western Tour Delivered at Harrisburg—Praises Report of Coal Strike Commission.

PITTSBURG, Penn., April 1.—President Roosevelt viewed the scenery around the famous Horseshoe Curve this afternoon from a seat in the cab of a locomotive attached to his special train, and after a ride of about fifty miles expressed himself as delighted with his experience. When his special reached Altoona at 4:50 o'clock this afternoon the President alighted from his car and walked rapidly to the front of the train. Two engines were coupled to it, ready to pull the heavy cars over the Alleghany Mountains, and the President shook hands with the crews of each. He then climbed into the cab of the rear engine, No. 2,408. In the cab with him were Secretary Loeb, Trainmaster A. Keiser, Special Engineer Robert McLaren, the regular engineer, H. T. McCormick, and Fireman H. W. Hunter. As he took his seat the President remarked that, being a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, he thought he ought to take his turn at feeding the furnace, but he did not do so.

When Gallitzen, at the crest of the mountains, was reached, the front locomotive was detached from the train and the run to Seward was made with one engine. Here the President climbed down from his lofty seat, and after shaking hands with the engineers and firemen, went back to his car, rather dusty and grimy, but enthusiastic over his novel ride.

While the President's engine occupied the second place on the train a tunnel seven-eighths of a mile in length was traversed, and although the cab was protected by windows and doors, quite a quantity of smoke found its way in. No record-breaking time was made while the President sat in the cab, the speed of the train not reaching over forty-five miles an hour.

Outside of his ride on the engine the President passed a uneventful day, devoting a large portion of it to reading.

Brief stops were made at Baltimore, Harrisburg, and Altoona; but only at Harrisburg did the President make a speech. A large crowd met his train at Harrisburg, and although no speech was scheduled for this place, Mr. Roosevelt appeared on the rear platform of his car and delivered a short address, which was received with many cheers.

He was greeted by a great crowd, including the members of the Pennsylvania Legislature and city officials. Senator Focht of Union, on behalf of the Senate, presented greetings to the President. Senator Focht expressed regret that they were unable to welcome him at the Capitol, but were glad to welcome him in the shadow of Zion Lutheran Church, where Gen. Harrison was nominated for the Presidency.

The President showed evidence of surprise at the reception. He spoke for more than five minutes, saying:

"I am very greatly touched and pleased by this greeting—a wholly unexpected one. I had not supposed that my speechmaking would begin before to-morrow. There is not much for me to say to you. I feel rather when I come here like sitting at the feet of Gamaliel and learning. Laughter.]

"The prosperity in which our State, you of this city, have so abundantly shared must come primarily from two sources—the individual skill and efficiency of the individual man, capitalist, or wage-worker, working for himself as a foundation, but with equal respect for the welfare of the men who, working not merely for themselves, but for one another. [Cheers and applause.]

"The President of the Senate was kind enough to speak of what has been done for the wageworker, and therefore the citizens as a whole, in this State. I go away from Washington with a light heart, very largely because of the admirable work done by the gentlemen on the Anthracite Strike Commission. [Applause.] And surely no publication by any association designed purely to teach a moral lesson to our people can be better worth scanning and learning than the document containing the conclusions of those men, and if as a people we will take to heart the lessons taught therein it will be the better for all of us.

"Fundamentally our interests are the same. Fundamentally you hurt or help some of our people and inevitably you hurt or help others. Fundamentally the most important lesson to be learned in our National life is the lesson of our solidarity of interests, and that every man of us, if he is to be a citizen of this Republic, must pull his own weight and must also do his best to help his brother at the same time." [Cheers and applause.]

DEPARTURE FROM WASHINGTON

President Says Cordial Farewells to German Minister—Secretary Cortelyou Left Behind.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—With an enthusiastic farewell to the German Envoy and a warning to Secretary Cortelyou to beware of the trusts, the President set off to-day in high spirits for his two months' swinging around the circle. The special train left at 9:06 but the President was there and waiting for it ten minutes ahead of time. He found Secretaries Wilson, Hitchcock, and Cortelyou there. It is the first Presidential trip taken since Mr. Cortelyou became a Cabinet officer, and it was a novel sensation to him to be standing at the station saying good-bye to the President instead of going along with him and working throughout the journey.

When the President passed down the platform of the Pennsylvania Railroad station he stopped to shake hands with several schoolgirls who had just left an incoming train and who wanted the honor of a greeting from him. Then he talked for a few minutes with Messrs. Wilson and Hitchcock and then spied the German Envoy, Baron Speck von Sternburg, who had come down to say good-bye.

"Why, Baron," exclaimed the President, giving the Envoy a tremendous grip of the hand, "I am delighted to see you here this morning. It is so lovely of you to come here to tell me good-bye. It is so lovely of you. I am so sorry you are not going. It would be simply delightful."

Baron Speck drew himself up to the full length of his five feet two inches as he said: "Yes, Mr. President, I hope you have a pleasant time."

The President smiled broadly again and, seizing the Baron's hands once more, exclaimed: "Oh, it was so lovely of you to come to see me off. It was simply delightful." Then a second thought struck him: "Baron, will you be in Washington in June?"

"Yes, Sir," was the reply.

"Well, I will tell you, Baron, when I get back we will have some delightful horseback riding, won't we?"

"Yes, Sir," said the Baron.

"Remember me to your charming wife, Baron," said the President.

"Yes, Sir," the Baron replied, and then the President offered to let the Baron ride his horse in his absence.

"You take him and ride him as often as you please," said the President, and the Baron answered, with a grim smile: "You do not think my weight would hurt him, do you?"

"Oh, no!" laughed the President, and he once more shook the Baron's hand. Then he turned to Mr. Cortelyou, who was standing near, and said: "Oh, how can I leave you here with those horrible trusts? Be careful with them, Mr. Chief Trust Buster. Do not let them hurt you while I am away!"

Then the President said good-bye to Col. Bingham, holding his hand tightly the while, and stepped into the train, followed by Capt. and Mrs. Cowles. They stayed there till the conductor shouted "All aboard!" when the Captain and his wife left the train, and a moment later it pulled out, followed by the cheers of a small crowd of people, who waved their handkerchiefs at the President and the other members of the party. There were several city detectives in the crowd, and on the train were four Secret Service men. Three of them—Tyre, Taylor, and O'Connell—have a regular assignment at the White House. The fourth is attached to the Post Office Department.

COWBOYS TO GREET PRESIDENT.

Typical Ranch Breakfast to be Given at Hugo, Col.

DENVER, Col., April 1.—An entertainment will be tendered President Roosevelt by the stockmen of Eastern Colorado at Hugo, Col., on the morning of May 4. The Presidential train necessarily will be stopped at Hugo for twenty-five minutes, the only stop between the Kansas border and Denver, and the stockmen, after negotiating with the railroad officials for thirty minutes additional time, arranged for a cowboy breakfast to be given to the President.

Two hundred cowboys in range regalia will salute the President on his arrival, and 2,000 stockmen and ranchmen and their families, who would be unable to greet the President in Denver, will be at Hugo to welcome him.

BOYCOTT AND THE PRESIDENT.

Mr. Roosevelt Asked to Avoid the Union Pacific Railroad.

Special to The New York Times.

KANSAS CITY, Kan., April 1.—The Trades Assembly of this city this evening adopted a resolution requesting President Roosevelt not to ride over the Union Pacific Railway on his trip West. It was introduced by the delegates of the local machinists' union at the request of the National Union. The machinists have a strike on against the Union Pacific because that system adopted the piecework system last year.

When it became known that the President intended to travel over the road on his Western trip the union objected. The present plan is to have the President leave this city for the West over the Union Pacific Railway, taking the train at Armstrong station, where he is to make a short speech.

The President at an Early Hour Asked for Information About the McGovern-Corbett Fight.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The President's interest in athletic sports, pugilism included, has not abated since the days when, as Police Commissioner of New York, he aroused so much comment by some remarks on the subject of prizefighting.

Early this morning he called up a telephone company's office in this city to inquire how the fight between "Young Corbett" and "Terry" McGovern had turned out. Being informed, he made no comment.

There was nothing in the short conversation over the telephone to indicate whether the President's preference were on the side of the winner or the loser.

ANARCHY IN MOROCCO.

Government Troops and Tribes Fighting Among Themselves—Road to Fez Unsafe.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES Special Cablegram.

LONDON, April 2.—Couriers from Fez, says the Tangier correspondent of The Times, report that the Pretender has returned to Tesa and is residing there.

A Jewish merchant has been murdered and a caravan pillaged near Fez.

Fighting has occurred in Fez between portions of the Government troops, and several tribes in the vicinity of the capital are fighting among themselves and against one another.

The road to Fez is unsafe, and Europeans intending to leave Tangier for that city are unable to proceed.

Altogether, says The Times's correspondent, the situation, after several days' calm, has become more serious. The native officials openly express their uneasiness. The Spanish Legation is anxious owing to reports from Melilla that the Riffs are actively supporting the Pretender.

CHINESE CURRENCY REFORM.

Native Officials at Shanghai Now Profess to Expect Good Results from the Mission of the Osaka Exhibition.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES Special Cablegram.

LONDON, April 2.—The native officials, says the Shanghai correspondent of The Times, profess to expect important results from the Chinese mission to the Osaka Exhibition, especially as regards currency reform.

On the other hand, says the correspondent, the joint memorial of the Viceroys and Governors protesting against the demand of the powers for the payment of the indemnity in gold gravely alleges that the impoverished condition of the country renders attempts to introduce reforms futile.

A special mission to the Osaka Exhibition, consisting of Prince Tsai-Chen, accompanied by Na-Tung and the Secretaries of the Board of Revenue and others, has been directed to make inquiry and report on the question of the establishment of a gold standard for China by methods similar to those successfully adopted by Japan.

In a recent dispatch from Shanghai it was stated that neither native official circles nor the press regarded the mission seriously, the proposal being recognized as merely an incident in the solemn farce now being played in Peking in connection with the questions of financial reform and the indemnity payment.

Although Na-Tung is probably the least ignorant member of the Chinese Foreign Office, the mission is declared to be entirely unqualified, even if it were disposed, to conduct the proposed inquiry.

KING EDWARD TO VISIT ROME.

It Is Said He Will Go There at the End of This Month—Vatican Wants Him to Call on the Pope.

ROME, April 1.—Although no official confirmation of the report has been received, it is stated that King Edward will visit Rome at the end of this month, and the news has produced a great impression at the Vatican.

The usual rule is for a non-Catholic sovereign to leave the Quirinal and go to the residence of his Ambassador to the Holy See, whence, from neutral ground, he can proceed to the Vatican. King Edward, however, has no representative at the Holy See, and all the diplomacy of the Vatican is being brought into play to secure an interview between the King and Pope Leo.

It is remembered that the Pope sent a special mission to the coronation of King Edward, a courtesy which His Majesty returned by sending the Earl of Denbigh as a special envoy to the Papal Jubilee.

HARRIMAN'S REPLY IN SOUTHERN PACIFIC SUIT

Attacks the Motives and Methods of James R. Keene.

Denies That the Union Pacific Railroad Intends Severing the Central Pacific from the Southern Pacific System.

The answer of the Southern Pacific Company in the suit brought against it by Talbot J. Taylor and James B. Taylor to prevent the Union Pacific Company from exercising proprietary rights in the stock of the Southern Pacific Company was made public here yesterday. Incidentally, there were published affidavits made by E. H. Harriman, Otto H. Kahn, and officials of the Southern Pacific Company, to support the defendants' contentions in the injunction proceedings.

The answer states, among other things, that the Southern Pacific Company's stock books show that on Dec. 31, 1900, the Taylors owned 800 shares of stock, and that on March 12, 1902, the Taylors owned 246,870 shares, which they acquired after they knew of the grievances complained of.

The answer denies that its lines of road are operated by officials of another road. It denies that the complaint sets forth correctly the laws of the State of Utah under which the Union Pacific Railroad is organized. It also denies that the two roads are competing lines, as their Eastern terminals are 1,000 miles apart. The answer also denies charges of mismanagement and misuse of funds, and also denies that the Union Pacific Railroad owns a controlling interest in the Southern Pacific, its holdings being 900,000 shares, or several thousand shares less than necessary for absolute control.

The affidavits of Mr. Harriman and of the officials of the Southern Pacific Company are less formal and general than the answer.

Mr. Harriman, in his affidavit, takes occasion to severely attack the motives and business methods of Mr. Keene and his associates in this matter. He gives a detailed account of the history of the affair, which apparently dates back to 1901, and in which the names of David Lamar and Edward Lauterbach figure extensively. Mr. Harriman also takes occasion to deny that the Union Pacific Railroad had any intention of severing the Central Pacific from the Southern Pacific system.

Says the affidavit:

MR. HARRIMAN'S AFFIDAVIT.

"One evening in the Autumn of 1901 the card of David Lamar, accompanied by a card of Edward Lauterbach, identifying him, was presented to me. Mr. Lamar stated that he had friendly relations with James R. Keene, who had a large holding in Southern Pacific and was contemplating some adverse action against its management, and that he (Lamar) was assured that there could be obtained an injunction against the Union Pacific somewhat similar to that obtained against the Georgia Central, in which latter case Mr. Lamar stated he had been an influential and important factor. He stated that he would like to work with me and that if I would make an alliance which would be of some advantage to him, that he had such influence over Mr. Keene that he could induce him not to instigate any adverse action against myself and allied interests. I informed Mr. Lamar that I did not see that I could do anything regarding the matter, but that if I should change my mind I would let him know. He was very insistent as to when I would again communicate with him. I finally took his telephone number and agreed to telephone him the next day, which I did, and stated to him that I had no desire to pursue the matter further.

"About that same time I had several interviews with James R. Keene, brought about at the requests of others. Mr. Keene stated to me that he had a large holding in Southern Pacific Company stock, that he would like to join with me in purchasing the shares in the market; that he believed there could be a great deal of money made thereby and that he would act for me either in purchasing for our joint account or for myself if I wished it; that it would be advantageous for the Union Pacific to take all Southern Pacific stock and issue its 4 per cent. bonds therefor, and stated that he was an adept in carrying out successful large stock market operations; that he had shown this capacity especially in the manipulation of United States Steel stocks.

"I carefully explained to Mr. Keene in detail the requirements of the Southern Pacific properties in the way of improvements. I told him that I believed it would be a mistake to create a speculation in the shares of stock and advance their price to a basis that would justify the buyer in not expecting a dividend in the near future; that it was also necessary to make such repairs and improvements from surplus earnings so far as they would go in order to establish for the company a basis of credit upon which it could refund the bonded indebtedness of its subsidiary companies, a large portion of which would mature in a few years, and that there was nothing between the stock and the bonded debt of those companies which could be pledged to raise the necessary funds for such work; and that I believed that the only method of procedure as outlined to him would inure to the benefit of the stockholders in the future much more advantageously than in any other way. Mr. Keene assured me that he did not want to act in any way antagonistic to me, and stated to him that I would do well if I saw any reason to change my mind and he said that he would do nothing without informing me."

The affidavit then states that during 1902 and 1903 he was informed that Edward Lauterbach and Talbot J. Taylor would make overtures while some secret deal was made with them; Mr. Lauterbach tried to see Mr. Harriman, but the latter always sent word that he was too busy. "Finally, in January last," says the affidavit, "Mr presented him with a copy of the new famous circular on Southern Pacific issued by that firm. From Mr. Kahn's affidavit it appears that Mr. Taylor went then to get an indorsement of the pamphlet for some purpose.

[illegible] HAL

[illegible] thanked Mr. Taylor for the courtesy in expressed appreciation of his courtesy in personally presenting it to my consideration, complimented him on the appearance and comprehensive scope of the pamphlet and expressed my agreement with him as to the intrinsic value of the property and as to the bright future which, with patient husbanding of its resources and a continuation of a strictly conservative policy, was before it. At his request I went through the volume and in reply to his inquiry whether I noticed any serious errors said that while of course I differed radically from him in his conclusions, deductions, and the appropriateness of his comparisons with other systems entirely differently situated, I did not, on the cursory regard which I gave to the pamphlet, notice any serious misstatements of general facts. He referred particularly to the large amount of money put into the property in the past, to which I replied that while the aggregate of these amounts was doubtless very great, it must not be overlooked that such applications of money had been extended over a period of almost twenty years and covered a property aggregating nearly 10,000 miles, and that competing railroads, through the money spent upon them during their receivership and raised through receivers' certificates and assessments on stockholders, had probably spent in recent periods relatively a great deal more on their properties."

Mr. Taylor added that he feared that Kahn, Loeb & Co. considered him and his associates unfriendly, and that reports might have reached Mr. Kahn of antagonistic actions, feelings, and comments, but that these reports were without foundation.

MR. LAUTERBACH'S ACTIVITY.

The affidavit continues:

"During the last twelve or eighteen months Edward Lauterbach of counsel for the complainants in this action repeatedly spoke to me on the subject of the Keene pool's holdings of Southern Pacific stock. The substance of his statements was to the effect that he had been retained by James R. Keene in connection with a contemplated action to bring suit to oust the interests at present in control of the Southern Pacific Company, but that he thought it desirable in a friendliness to both interests that no such conflict should take place; but that there were only two ways of avoiding hostile proceedings, namely, either to buy the holdings of the Keene pool at the price of about 70, or to start the payment of dividends on the stock at a rate of not less than 4 per cent. per annum.

"I answered Lauterbach that we would not consider purchasing the pool's holdings, and that in determining the policy of the company in regard to dividend payments the Directors were acting and would continue to act in accordance with their best judgment, and would not allow any other consideration to influence them nor be turned by threats of troublesome litigation, from pursuing what, after conscientious deliberation, they felt to be the only right course for the interests of the property.

Mr. Kahn also pointed out to Mr. Lauterbach that the policy advocated by Keene of paying dividends had, in 1893 and 1894, resulted in placing half the roads in the country in the hands of receivers.

The affidavits of the officials of the Union Pacific are technical in language and are intended as explanations for the necessity of spending these large sums for improvements out of earnings.

THE HEARING IN NASHVILLE.

Strong Array of Legal Talent at the Opening of Big Railroad Suit.

Special to The New York Times.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 1.—The United States Circuit Court room was crowded to-day when Judge Horace H. Lurton took up the case of Talbot J. Taylor & Co. vs. the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific. Many of the leading members of the local bar and special Judges of the State courts were present, and much interest was manifested. The hearing had been set for the morning, but as Judge Lurton wished to attend the funeral of Gen. W. H. Jackson, owner of the famous Belle Meade Farm, counsel in the case suggested a postponement of the argument until the afternoon.

There was a strong array of counsel on both sides. Judge Alexander Humphreys of Louisville, Ky., resident attorney of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific; Maxwell Evarts of New York and Lawrence Maxwell of Cincinnati represented the Union Pacific, while United States Senator J. B. Foraker of Ohio, Edward Lauterbach and Eugene Tredwell of New York and A. E. Wilson of Louisville, Ky., appeared for Messrs. Taylor & Co.

Immediately after court had convened, affidavits of Messrs. A. Y. Whitman, Thomas J. Sneed, Edward Lauterbach, and others in behalf of minority stockholders of the Southern Pacific were presented by Mr. Wilson. Mr. Evans then submitted affidavits of Messrs. E. H. Harriman, O. H. Kahn, E. C. McCormick, and others in behalf of the Union Pacific.

Mr. Lauterbach made the opening argument, which required two hours, and Judge Humphreys was the next speaker. After he had spoken three-quarters of an hour adjournment was taken until 9 o'clock to-morrow morning. It is thought the argument will close late in the afternoon to-morrow.

The object of this suit by Messrs. Talbot J. Taylor & Co. is to enjoin the Union Pacific Company from voting stock at the annual meeting of the Southern Pacific stockholders, which is to be held April 8 at Beechmont, Ky., a suburb of Louisville. The minority stockholders of the Southern Pacific claim that the Union Pacific owns 900,000 shares of stock in the Southern Pacific, and allege that the latter road has been conducted more in the interest of the former than of the Southern Pacific stockholders. They want a change in management.

In his argument Mr. Lauterbach spoke of the large amount of stock held by individuals in the Southern Pacific which was subject to the direction and control of the Union Pacific. He referred to the growth of monopolies and the growing opposition to them, and the failure of stockholders in many corporations to receive dividends from their investments.

Speaking of the control of corporations and the rights of shareholders, he read extracts from the decisions of courts bearing upon the question, that said, should be voted for the best and just interests of owners.

Regarding the Union Pacific and the Southern Pacific, he said that the latter was a competitor of the former; this, he said, was denied, but there was evidence to support the claim.

Only 1,000 shares of Southern Pacific stock were owned by the fifteen Directors of the company, he declared, while there were 3,000 stockholders. Mr. Harriman was the largest owner, but the average of the others was about 200 shares. Mr. Keene and Mr. Taylor, he said, had great faith in the future of the Southern Pacific, and had very largely increased their individual holdings. Mr. Keene owned 100,000 shares while the holdings of Mr. Taylor and his associates exceeded 250,000.

The matter of representation of stockholders in corporations was then discussed by Mr. Lauterbach.

Judge Humphreys then began his argument. He claimed that in January of last year a pool to purchase and sell Southern Pacific stock was formed. The pool was to have expired April 1, 1903, but an extension to April 10 was agreed upon. This was two days subsequent to the coming annual meeting of the Southern Pacific stockholders, when the stock held by the pool would be sold. He denied that the Southern Pacific was a competitor or that it paralleled the Union Pacific. After reading allegations made in the complainant's bill and the answers of the company, he said that the fifteen Directors had been elected unanimously at a meeting where almost all of the stock of the road was voted.

KEENE DENIES CHARGES.

Says Offer to Sell Stock to Harriman Was in Reply to Request by Southern Pacific Officials.

James R. Keene could not be seen at the Waldorf last night, where it was said that he had been in his room all day very ill.

Mr. Talbot J. Taylor, his son-in-law, however, gave out the following dispatch which had been sent by Mr. Keene to Mr. Edward Lauterbach at Nashville, Tenn.:

"Harriman and Kahn affidavits published broadcast. I expect you to furnish the Associated Press with your answering affidavit immediately, setting forth the true facts that no offer to sell stock was ever made by me except in reply to their request to purchase the holdings which I represented and that you were requested by them to ascertain the cost of same and that I absolutely refused when I made answer to sell my individual stock at any price."

COUNT ZBOROWSKI KILLED

New Yorker Loses Life in Automobile Accident in France.

Latter Was Acting as Chauffeur—The Fatality Occurs in a Hill-Climbing Race in the Riviera.

NICE, France, April 1.—Count Elliott Zborowski of New York was killed to-day in an automobile hill-climbing race between here and La Turbie. His car turned a sharp angle too quickly, turned over, and was wrecked. The Count was hurled against a wall, his head was split open, and he died instantly. His friend, Baron de Pallange, who was acting as chauffeur, was mortally injured and died to-night.

The race was immediately stopped.

Countess Zborowski was awaiting her husband at La Turbie, expecting that they would lunch together at the conclusion of the race. She was chatting gayly with friends, without displaying any anxiety regarding her husband's delay in arriving. Baron Caters broke the sad news to her, saying at first that a serious accident had occurred and then gently revealing the terrible truth.

The accident occurred at the spot where there was a similar fatality two years ago, when a German automobilist was killed. The course, which is fifteen kilometers long, is known to be most dangerous. It runs round sharp corners along La Corniche, (the name given to the cliff road leading from Nice to Genoa.) It was covered by last year's winner in less than seventeen minutes. Zborowski, who expected to cover the course in fifteen minutes, had a machine weighing 1,000 pounds. The trip to-day was the first he made over the route, and he was not acquainted with its dangers. His machine was going at a speed of 90 kilometers an hour at the time of the accident.

The fatality occurred in one of the trials along what is known as the Corniche stretch. At the moment when the vehicle reached an abrupt angle the car struck a small rock in the pathway, causing a sudden swerve, which precipitated Count Zborowski and Baron de Pallange against a wall.

The witnesses of the start of the race say that Zborowski showed considerable nervousness while awaiting his turn, he being the fifth starter. Imprudently, he wore white kid gloves, which prevented him from having a firm grasp of the brake. At the signal to go he started at half speed, which was soon increased to full speed. The accident occurred at the first turning of the road. The shock was terrific, and Zborowski was shot from his car and his head struck the wall beside the road, about six feet from the ground. He fell to the ground dead, with his arms outstretched. Baron de Pallange was thrown to the left.

The body of Count Zborowski was brought to the chapel of his château here and his wife was notified. When she arrived at the chapel an affecting scene took place.

Baron de Pallange became a professional automobilist recently.

The committee in charge of the trial races has postponed the meeting.

At the instant that Count Zborowski and Baron de Pallange met their death another accident occurred at another point on the road. The chain of Baron Gasteaux's automobile broke and the car was overturned against the rocks. The Baron and his chauffeur were thrown out, but both escaped with severe bruises.

PARIS, April 1.—The news of the death of Count Zborowski caused a sensation here, where he was one of the best-known automobilists. The Count had long been a prominent social figure, but his dashing performance in the Paris-Vienna race advanced him to the front rank of automobilists. Although ill-placed, owing to his poor machine and lack of experience, he went to the front, beat all the cracks except Fournier, and finished second.

One account of the fatal accident to-day says the automobile afterward resembled a locomotive after a railway wreck.

Another paper quotes Alfred Harmsworth, the London newspaper proprietor and an enthusiastic automobilist, as saying that Count Zborowski was very nervous, since a fortune-teller four days ago advised him not to start in to-day's race, predicting that it would prove fatal to him.

The Figaro's correspondent at Nice also confirms the report that Zborowski had a presentiment of something ill about to befall him. His assertion that the Count hesitated at the start, saying to several friends: "I don't know whether I shall see you again."

Fournier, who is here, was greatly shocked when told this afternoon of the Count's death. He paid a tribute to Zborowski as a man and a sportsman. He said he was perfectly familiar with the spot where Zborowski met his death, and described it as a veritable death trap, as the road makes a right angle suddenly, so that when a vehicle is going down the declivity at high speed it requires the utmost skill to prevent it from pitching into the stone wall on the further side. The dangerous character of the place is shown by a tablet erected there to the memory of William Cayer, an automobilist who was killed in making the same turn in 1900.

LONDON, April 1.—Count Zborowski was to have entered for the James Gordon Bennett International Automobile Cup, which is to be competed for in Ireland in the Summer.

The news of the fatal accident to the Count came as a great shock to his fellow-members of the Automobile Club here. He was one of the best-known motor car racers in England, with a reputation for extreme carefulness as well as great determination. The road and the car, and not the man, are blamed for the accident.

S. F. Edge, the well-known automobilist, echoing this view, thinks that Count Zborowski, accustomed to a forty horse power car, had not become used to driving the new sixty horse power car that he was using in Gordon's contest, such high speed cars as the latter requiring a great deal of practice, especially on such a dangerous course.

It is stated to-night that the Hon. C. S. Rolls is likely to replace Count Zborowski and drive one of the English-built cars in the race for the Bennett Cup.

COUNT ZBOROWSKI'S CAREER.

Elliott Zborowski, known to his friends in this country and in Europe as Count Zborowski, was a picturesque figure in New York and Newport, where his youth and early manhood were spent, and in foreign capitals, where he lived after the death of his father, Martin Zabriskie, which occurred in 1878. The elder Zabriskie came to America from Poland when a young man, and began farming in New Jersey, a few miles from New York City. At the time of his death he was a millionaire, possessing much valuable real estate in this city and other property, which he left to his son Elliott and to his daughter, Ann Zabriskie, who later became the wife of Count Montsaulnin, Baron of Fontency. By the same will the family name was changed from Zabriskie to Zborowski, as it was spelled some generations ago, when the progenitors were prominent in public life in Poland.

The father of Count Zborowski moved from his New Jersey farm to New York City when he was thirty-five years old. He had been graduated from a law school and made a specialty of real estate law. In a few years he acquired large holdings of property in and about the city. He married Anna E. Morris, a member of the famous family after which Morrisania was named. The Morrises held a great deal of property in that section then, and Martin Zborowski built a home there.

Count Zborowski was forty-eight years old at the time of his death. He was a man of pleasing personality, and made friends wherever he went. When a young man he was conspicuous in society here and at Newport. He was one of the first Americans to take up polo, and was conspicuous for his daring and reckless playing. He had many narrow escapes, and in several well-remembered games was injured more or less seriously. He was also a devotee of cross-country riding. After his removal to England he continued to participate in hazardous sports, and had many narrow escapes there. It was the tradition that no male member of the Zborowski family had ever died in bed, and it had been predicted by those who knew Elliott Zborowski that he would meet a violent death.

After moving to England Count Zborowski built a house at Melton Mowbray. He spent much time on the Continent and came occasionally to America. In March, 1902, he married Mme. de Stuers. The ceremony was performed in Sioux Falls, S. D., shortly after Mme. de Stuers obtained a divorce from Baron Alphonse Eugene Lombard de Stuers, a well-known Dutch diplomat and for many years Minister of Holland in Paris. The Baroness was Miss Margaret Cary, daughter of John Cary and granddaughter of the late William B. Astor. The De Stuerses had three children. Count Zborowski met the Baroness at Newport two years before their marriage.

At their London house Count Zborowski and his wife entertained often and elaborately, receiving many of the best-known society folk in England. When they visited the Continental capitals and watering places they were among a host of friends and were much in society.

Among the holdings of Count Zborowski in this city were the American and Broadway Theatres and other property along Broadway. His financial interests in this country were looked after from the time of the death of Martin Zborowski until a year ago by David B. Ogden of 115 Broadway, a close friend. Last Spring Mr. Ogden went to Europe and spent some time with Count Zborowski. Before leaving here he turned over the business to Henry Lewis Morris, a lawyer of 16 Exchange Place, and also an old friend of the Zborowski family. Other financial interests of Count Zborowski were in England and France. His wealth was estimated recently at considerably over $1,000,000. While devoted to society and to out-of-door sports, he was a man of keen business ability and kept in close touch with his affairs in all quarters.

The only immediate relatives of Count Zborowski in this country are his father's sister's husband, Martin E. Greene, and Mr. Greene's son, Allister Greene, who live at 1 East Sixty-second Street, this city. Mrs. Greene is dead.

RELIGIOUS ORDERS IN FRANCE.

The efforts of the Combes administration to suppress religious orders in France attracted the attention of Bishop M. F. Burke of St. Joseph, Mo., who arrived on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse yesterday from a pilgrimage to Rome.

"This attempt," he said, "is a move against the Catholic Church, as well as what can be called an attempt to de-Christianize the country. I suppose those behind this movement will keep up the warfare to the bitter end. It is a dreadful movement. I cannot pretend to guess the outcome."

The Bishop said that many of the sisters of the orders and the other members in great number were coming to this country. He declared his belief that the Carthusian monks would seek a domicile on the Island of Gozo, near Malta, it is a British possession. Although the house of the Sisters of the Sacred Heart in Paris had not been closed, the Bishop said, three of the convents had been shut up, according to the Mother Superior.

"This movement," he declared, "is an effort or attempt to separate Church and State. This is not desired either by the Holy Father or by Catholics."

AMERICAN SWINDLED IN PARIS.

PARIS, April 1.—The papers here state that an American named Adolphus Johnston, described as a wealthy insurance broker of New York, made the acquaintance in Paris of another American, who stated that he was also an insurance broker, and who undertook to show Johnston the town.

They soon met a third American, who represented himself as a wealthy philanthropist about to start a mutual aid society. He said that he wanted two intelligent men to assist him, and he showed a roll of bank notes which he said had been contributed by rich Americans. After lunch Johnston was induced by the example of his first companion and the promise of a fat office in the alleged society to intrust $2,000 to the philanthropist, who promptly disappeared, followed by his confederate.

Johnston has lodged a complaint with the police.

MARCEL PREVOST IN A DUEL.

PARIS, April 1.—The brother of Mlle. Emma Thouret was wounded in the forearm to-day in a duel fought with Marcel Prévost, the novelist, at Neuilly.

The duel was carried out under circumstances of unusual secrecy. The meeting was at noon and only the principals, their seconds, the doctors and Baron Caters and his chauffeur were thrown out, but both escaped with severe bruises.

The duel was the result of a quarrel between M. Thouret and the novelist, at Neuilly. M. Thouret was the aggressor, and kept M. Prévost on the defensive, but the latter's superior skill was soon manifest. During one of M. Thouret's precipitate charges he was wounded in the forearm, but declared that he be allowed to continue fighting. The doctors, however, peremptorily refused, and the two duelists left the field unreconciled.

In spite of M. Prévost's refusal to lodge a complaint, the authorities have decided to prosecute Mlle. Thouret for her attempt to shoot him.

Mlle. Thouret fired two shots from a revolver on Monday at M. Prévost. Her brother later sent his seconds to the novelist.

KAISER STARTS FOR DENMARK.

BERLIN, April 1.—Emperor William started for Copenhagen on a visit to the Danish Court, at 11:30 o'clock to-night.

The Empress, owing to her injured arm, will not accompany the Emperor on his approaching visit to Rome.

DEATH REVEALED ROMANCE.

School Teacher's Marriage Kept Secret While She Lived in Jersey City.

The death of Mrs. Mary McLaughlin, at 50 Mercer Street, Jersey City, on Monday, revealed a marriage romance which began in New York two months ago when Miss Mary Brown, as she was then, became the bride of John McLaughlin.

She was a school teacher in this city, and, not wishing to give up her position, the couple kept the marriage a secret from their friends here and went to Jersey City, where they secured board with Mrs. Deneke at the address mentioned. Mrs. McLaughlin said she was obliged to go to New York daily with her husband, but said nothing about her business.

Ten days ago she became ill and Dr. Dunkel was summoned. He ascertained that she was suffering from an intestinal disorder, and she told him that about a year ago she had swallowed a black-headed pin. Dr. Bull of this city was then called into the case, and it was decided that an operation was necessary. The bride's parents were summoned from Binghamton, N. Y., and the operation was performed at 2 o'clock A. M. on Monday. It was performed successfully, but Mrs. McLaughlin died from the shock. The body was taken on Tuesday to Binghamton for interment.

BOOMERANG APRIL 1 JOKE.

Sergeant Locked Up a Peddler Who Unconsciously Revenged Himself.

An unfortunate street vender who blocked traffic at Thirty-fourth Street and Fifth Avenue yesterday morning was taken to the Tenderloin Station to be lectured, and the Sergeant in charge, remembering the date, ordered: "Lock him up." Then he winked at the doorman and whispered: "It's an April fool joke."

So the peddler was taken to the back room, where the large stove is which heats that room and the ones above, where the policemen sleep. As it was about noon he tearfully ate his luncheon which he had brought with him, and as his appetite was affected by his dismal fate there were some fragments left. These happened to be limburger cheese, and having no place to put them, he threw them into the stove.

In a few moments an overpowering odor began to make its presence known. This brought about an inquiry, and it was discovered that every room that the stove heated was filled with the smell, which soon became almost unbearable. All the windows and doors were opened, but it only had the affect of thinning it a little, and the occupants of the station were driven into the street. Some of the men were so affected that only strong waters seemed to help them, and they expressed regret that the peddler had been freed.

By supper time the smell had abated somewhat but when the men came in at 11 o'clock and tried to go to bed they found that the regular sleeping rooms were unfit to occupy. So beds and cots were taken to the top floor, which seldom is used. There the odor lingered, but it was comparatively feeble.

Body of Reckless Jumper Found.

The body of Albert J. Bernhardt, who was drowned at the Pennsylvania Railroad ferry, Jersey City, on March 4, after he tried to jump on a boat, was recovered yesterday. It was found under the bridge from which he jumped. The youth was seventeen years of age and he lived with his parents at 108 Brunswick Street, Newark.

ODELL'S LINE GETS PIER

Controller Thinks Higher Bid Not in Good Faith.

Central Hudson Company to Make Improvements—Union Ferry Offer Rejected.

The Sinking Fund Commission yesterday approved a new lease for the Central Hudson Steamboat Company to Pier 24 North River. By this action an old lease which had six years to run was abrogated by the city, and the new lease gives the company a term of twenty-five years. There has been much discussion over this question because the new lease was recommended by Commissioner Hawkes after a conference with Gov. Odell, who is said to be interested in the company.

When the question was brought up yesterday it was explained that a large outlay for improvements amounting probably to $50,000 would be necessary by the company.

This seemed to satisfy the Mayor and the other members of the commission, and the Mayor ordered the clerk to call the roll.

At this point, John E. Brodsky, a lawyer, handed Controller Grout a letter signed by him offering on behalf of a client to take a lease of Pier 24 for ten or twenty years at an annual rental of $36,000.

"Who are your clients?" asked Mr. Grout.

"I am not at liberty at present to state. If you will postpone the matter I will satisfy you on that point," answered Mr. Brodsky.

"What trade are they engaged in?" asked Mr. Grout.

"In the foreign trade."

"If we gave you that pier what would the Hudson River trade do?" asked Mr. Grout.

"I haven't any idea," said Mr. Brodsky. "I'm not interested in that."

"Well, I don't think your offer is made in good faith," said the Controller.

Mr. Brodsky was about to retort, but the Mayor cut him short by saying that the Sinking Fund Commission had adopted Dock Commissioner Hawke's recommendation.

The question of a renewal of a lease with the Union Ferry Company, which operates several lines on the East River, then came up. The ferry company wants a renewal of its lease for fifteen years, paying in return 4 per cent. to the city on its earnings, with the privilege of casting aside the lease if the receipts from the traffic falls below $760,000 in any one year.

The Controller was in favor of exacting a rental of $60,000 a year, to drop to $50,000 when the Brooklyn tunnel is completed, and $40,000 a year when the tunnels and East River bridges are finished. Engineer McLean of the Finance Department reported that the company had been paying dividends greatly in excess of its alleged earnings, and that the company had refused to permit an examination of its books.

On motion of the Controller the application of the ferry company was returned to the company. It will have to submit a lease with better terms in it to receive favorable action by the commission.

CROSS TO BE HEARD SOON.

James B. Reynolds, Mayor Low's private secretary, was the first witness at yesterday's session of the trial of Inspector Cross before Deputy Commissioner Ebstein. While he lived in the lower east side, said the witness, he saw evidences of violations of the law in front of several houses known as disorderly resorts.

Charles Gomprecht, once an agent for an anti-vice organization, told of entering a poolroom in the Inspector's district in 1900. Sergt. Steinbruck, who used to be attached to the Inspector's staff, said he had seen Jacob Wolf in Cross's office a few times. Wolf has been mentioned many times during the trial as the man who acted as go-between for the Inspector and the lawbreakers.

Assistant District Attorney Morgan introduced for identification a letter from Devery to Cross. In it the Inspector was informed of charges about certain houses and was instructed to see that disorderly resorts in the district were closed and kept closed. Another letter, from Capt. Diamond to the Inspector, was introduced. It contained the statement that all of Diamond's wardmen, including Blasert, learned that there were no illegal resorts in the precinct.

James H. Lawis was called to testify about the nearness of the Lena Schmidt resort to St. Mark's Church, of which he is sexton.

The trial will be resumed this morning at 10 o'clock, and the prosecution has announced that it will rest after calling one or two more witnesses. Major Ebstein has said he will allow the defense a week to prepare its side of the case.

CAPT. DEVANEY DISMISSED.

Capt. Michael Devaney of the Fort Hamilton Police Station, Brooklyn, yesterday was dismissed from the force by Commissioner Greene, who had presided at his trial in that borough, on charges growing out of irregular entries in the station house blotter.

The case was similar to that of Capt. Halpin of the Church Street Station, who was accused, among other things, of permitting blank spaces to be left in the blotter to be filled in later, and with being recorded in that book as being in when he was out, and the reverse. There were more specifications against Capt. Halpin than against Devaney. He lost several weeks' pay while on suspension pending his trial, but escaped with a fine of thirty days' pay after conviction, and even that penalty was promptly remitted.

Gen. Greene hesitated when asked to explain the discrepancy in the punishments. He then said that while Capt. Halpin had been charged with failure to make proper entries, Capt. Devaney had allowed subordinates to write his name on the book where he should have affixed his own signature.

Devaney was one of the nineteen Captains appointed by the old Police Board of which Commissioners York and Sexton were the leading spirits. The legality of these appointments was seriously questioned. Devaney became a policeman Sept. 30, 1882, and attained commanding rank Feb. 19, 1901. He is said to be in extremely moderate financial circumstances, while Capt. Halpin, according to common repute, is a wealthy man, as Police Captains go.

ESCORT FOR AN AMERICAN.

James W. S. Langerman, who arrived yesterday on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, after having passed six weeks in Morocco in the interests of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, declared that he was the first foreigner to be honored with an escort in coming to and leaving the country in time of war.

Speaking of the Sultan, Mr. Langerman said he was a close student of European affairs, and that he had promised to have his country represented creditably at St. Louis. As an earnest of his good intentions, he presented to Mr. Langerman four colts picked from the royal stables. One of these was killed, two died on the voyage from Tangier to Liverpool, but the other, if it survives the voyage across the Atlantic, is expected to be on exhibition in St. Louis.

As soon as he crossed the border Mr. Langerman was met by a guard of 150 men. The mark of consideration for the American was commented upon at Court. When Mr. Langerman arrived at the walls of Fes only 50 of the guard were left, the others having deserted.

Before he announced his intention to return, the Sultan insisted that another guard be provided. Mr. Langerman said that it numbered 127 men. On the day the party started from Fes the heads of 300 rebels were impaled on the city gates. The party en route for Tangier saw little of armed rebellion.

A special guard was detailed to attend to the four horses. According to custom the horses were led all the way to Tangier, as the animals had belonged to the royal stables, and consequently could not be ridden by anybody except the Sultan while in Morocco. Tangier was reached after some difficulty, as some of the members of the guard contracted a habit of disappearing and never returning.

PASSAIC POLLUTION BILL PASSED AT TRENTON.

Final Adjournment of the Legislature to be Reached at Noon To-day—Many Measures Rushed Through.

TRENTON, N. J., April 1.—The Senate to-day, by a vote of 17 to 2, passed the Passaic Pollution bill, which has been the subject of much discussion in both Houses of the Legislature. The bill went back to the House, which concurred in the Senate amendments at the afternoon session.

The final adjournment of the Legislature will take place at 12 o'clock to-morrow.

The Senate this morning passed the two appropriation bills after the insertion of an amendment appropriating $8,000 for the purchase of land for the purpose of a water supply for the Morris Plains Asylum. It also passed the House amendment to Senate Bill 87, the Primary Election bill.

The House passed Senator Shinn's bill preventing the employment of children under fourteen years of age in factories and workshops and the House bill providing for the taxation of mining properties on the basis of their output. The House also passed these bills:

Repealing last year's act for a special election on the question of annexing North Plainfield to the City of Plainfield; permitting gas companies having systems in different cities to convey gas from one city to another; permitting telephone companies to consolidate.

In the Senate this afternoon the Railroad Codification bill was amended by substituting the word "adjoining" for "adjacent" in the paragraph authorizing companies to acquire additional property, and was passed then by a vote of 13 to 4.

Gov. Murphy sent to the Senate the nomination of Senator Theodore Strong of Middlesex County as a member of the State Board of Assessors to succeed John C. Rankin, deceased. The nomination was confirmed at once.

Among other bills passed by the Senate were these House measures:

Extending the ballot reform law to townships; providing for a commission to make an investigation and report to the next Legislature a bill for the regulation of tenement houses; giving cities power to pass ordinances regulating the height of fences and the use of billboards; confirming the conclusions of the joint commission of Delaware and New Jersey on the question of the boundary line of the two States and fishing rights in Delaware Bay.

The House to-night after strenuous opposition on the part of the Democrats, passed Senator Bradley's bill providing for a bi-partisan Board of Elections in Jersey City, to supersede the present elective board, which is Democratic. This bill was passed as a caucus measure by the Republicans.

The House also passed Senator McKee's bill revising the game laws of the State and Senator Wales's bill, which provides that all gas-using corporations do not have to pay a 2 per cent. franchise tax on all of their gross receipts when part of the line is over a private right of way. The House concurred in the Senate amendments to Assembly Bill No. 58, the railroad codification measure.

The Senate to-night passed the Assembly bill appropriating $125,000 for an armory for the Essex Troop in Newark. The Senate also passed the House bill revising the building and loan association laws of the State.

Morris Canal Board Named.

TRENTON, N. J., April 1.—Gov. Murphy to-day appointed ex-Govs. Griggs, Voorhees, and Werts as the commission to investigate and report to the next Legislature on the question of the abandonment of the Morris Canal. Under the resolution authorizing the appointment the selections are not subject to confirmation by the Senate.

WORK OF TEXAS LEGISLATURE.

Adjourned Without Appropriating Funds for State Government—Special Session Called by Governor.

Special to The New York Times.

DALLAS, Texas, April 1.—The Texas Legislature adjourned its regular session to-day without passing any appropriation to run the State Government for the next two years. Gov. Lanham at once called the body in special session, to convene at noon to-morrow. He names as matters on which he desires legislation, appropriation for State government, commission to settle the boundary between Texas and New Mexico and Oklahoma, law to refund State bonds falling due in 1905, and some minor suggestions.

The Legislature passed a fairly good child labor law, a stringent election law, a drastic anti-trust law, and permitted all the big railroad systems in the State to consolidate their lines that desired to do so. It refused an appropriation for the St. Louis World's Fair, refused to change the local option law, and outlawed bookmaking, selling pools, or in any way betting on horse racing. There was very little other important legislation enacted.

TWO AWAIT EXTRADITION.

August H. H. Ratner was before United States Commissioner Alexander yesterday on a charge of having embezzled 6,020 marks while acting as clerk to the Board of Magistrates of Stettin, Germany. He was arrested at his boarding place, 704 Berry Street, Brooklyn, at the instance of the German Consul General.

He said he had attended a school of massage in Manhattan and intended to open an establishment soon, and therefore had sent for his wife and children in Brunswick, Germany, whom he expects to-day on the Deutschland. The Commissioner ordered that he be remanded to Ludlow Street Jail to await extradition.

Another case, somewhat similar, was that wherein Alexander E. Heimer was held for extradition. He was charged with embezzling 89,297 marks of the city funds of Laumisten, Germany.

When he was arrested, three months ago, in Brooklyn, his attorneys, Lesser Brothers, began the fight for release. They declared they would apply to Judge Lacombe of the United States Circuit Court for a writ of habeas corpus to have the proceedings reviewed.

MARTINIQUE FUND REPORT.

The New York committee appointed by President Roosevelt for the relief of the West Indies sufferers at St. Pierre, Martinique, and other places on account of volcanic eruptions, made a report to the President yesterday.

Details of the organization of the committee and its co-operation with similar bodies in twenty-one other cities are given. The financial statement shows that subscriptions amounting to $107,582 were received and that only $70,795 was expended for relief work. When that amount had been paid out, it was found no more supplies were needed.

The committee says 50 per cent. of the amount subscribed can now be returned, but President Roosevelt having suggested that some donors might wish to send their balances to Gov. Taft in response to his appeal for aid for sufferers in the Philippines, the committee has decided to ask subscribers what they wish to do with the money due them.

Tobacco Trust Tax Confirmed.

The Jersey City Tax Appeals Commissioners voted yesterday to sustain the valuation put by the Tax Assessment Commissioners on the property of the Tobacco Trust in Jersey City. The assessment is $1,358,900. It was $669,600 last year. The principal property of the trust in Jersey City is the Lorillard plant, which covers two blocks and gives employment to 3,000 persons.

RIVALS FOR RICHMOND FERRY TO COMBINE

Railroads Will Form Operating Company to Control Boats.

Mayor Low Makes Public Plan of Proposed Lease Which Involves Expenditure of $925,000 by the City.

Mayor Low gave out a statement yesterday in reference to the problem of the ferry from Manhattan to Staten Island, in which it was announced that the differences between the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company and the trolley interests represented by H. H. Rogers of the Standard Oil Company had been settled amicably, and that Staten Island would have better transit facilities in the future. Mayor Low made public the fact that he had received from the Staten Island Rapid Transit Company a letter offering to convey to the city for a fair consideration the property of the company at St. George, now being used as a ferry terminal. The Mayor calculates that the city is in a position to secure better ferry service, including freight lines to Stapleton and Port Richmond, and says:

"I think that it is a matter of the utmost importance to secure for the Borough of Richmond substantially as good service by ferry, in point of frequency of trips, as is now given by the ferries between Manhattan and Brooklyn, and, in point of fares, the rates now prevailing upon the Brooklyn Bridge, that is to say, for passengers the rates upon the bridge railroad and for vehicles, the rates upon the bridge roadway. In other words, in my judgment, there ought to be, during all the busy hours of the twenty-four, a ferry service to St. George every ten minutes, so that Staten Islanders need not be compelled to consult a time table."

Mayor Low, in presenting the outlines of the proposed lease for the ferry service, says that it contemplates the formation of an operating company, by both of the railroads concerned, which shall not be expected to pay dividends, but whose expense and income account shall be balanced every year. It contemplates the expenditure, by the city, of about $925,000, for the purchase and improvement of terminals, including terminals at Stapleton and Port Richmond, and that the city shall waive any charge for interest upon this outlay, or for the use of slips, or for the franchise privilege, until it is earned by the ferry. On the other hand, it contemplates the payment to the city of one-half cent for each passenger carried.

That payment is to be made without any regard to the outcome of running the ferry; but if, at the end of any year, there is a deficiency on account of the operation of the ferry, one-third of the deficiency may be deducted from that sum, and the remainder of the deficiency is to be borne equally by the two railroad companies. The lease also contemplates that when the ferry company earns a profit it shall be used first of all to make good any of the deficiencies which have been incurred, and afterward, that the profits shall go to the city, as payment on account of rents, slips, and franchises.

J. SERGEANT CRAM SUED.

J. Sergeant Cram, ex-President of the Board of Dock Commissioners, is the defendant in a suit to recover $708 and interest, alleged to be due Sadie Jacobs, a dressmaker, for apparel furnished by her to Mrs. Cram between Jan. 1 and June 20, 1902.

The complainants are the assignees of Sadie Jacobs, Charles J. and Albert D. Oppenheim and Isaac D. Levy. The attorney for the complainants, Jacob E. Salomon, says they are the members of the cloak manufacturing firm of Oppenheim, Collins & Co. at Broadway and Twenty-first Street. The suit was begun by Mr. Salomon early in March. He alleges in his bill that purchases of garments from Sadie Jacobs had been made by Mrs. Cram, that Mr. Cram had paid the said Sadie Jacobs sums aggregating $276, but that $708 and interest was still owing.

Strong & Cadwalader, attorneys for Mr. Cram, in their answer, made about Feb. 26, declared that Mr. Cram had no knowledge or information sufficient for belief of any such purchases or payments. On March 17 they made an amended answer, containing the same defense and the additional statement:

That prior to January, 1902, the defendant gave notice to Sadie Jacobs, the assignor, not to extend any credit to Beatrice Cram, the defendant's wife.

The papers were filed Tuesday at the request of counsel for the complainants.

WABASH ANTI-STRIKE INJUNCTION SET ASIDE

Judge Adams Decides That Railroad Employes May Quit Work.

Charge of Conspiracy of Union Leaders Not Proved—Conference Held with Peace as the Object.

ST. LOUIS, April 1.—Judge Elmer B. Adams in the United States District Court here to-day overturned the injunction he granted on March 3 to prevent the firemen and trainmen on the Wabash Railroad from striking. As a result the unions affected are preparing to-night to enforce their demands for higher pay and better conditions of labor.

In his decision Judge Adams analyzes the bill of complaint upon which the provisional restraining order was issued, showing that the gravamen of the charge was that the defendants had entered into an unlawful and malicious conspiracy to secure recognition of their unions by exercising their powers as supreme and controlling officers of the Brotherhoods of Firemen and Trainmen to force an undesired strike upon the men, who were members of their organizations and to prevent other members who were working for connecting lines from handling the traffic of the Wabash Railroad.

Upon the showing made that the first step of the conspiracy, namely, the ordering of such a strike, was contemplated by the defendants, and that irreparable damage would necessarily befall the railroad unless a restraining order was made forthwith, the court explains, the injunction was issued for the purpose of holding the property and the parties in statu quo until both sides could be fully heard.

The defendants appeared and filed their sworn answer denying the alleged conspiracy in all its phases, the court points out, and particularly in denying any purpose to interfere with the inter-State commerce or the mails of the United States, and especially denying that the employes were satisfied with wages and conditions of the service, and denying the practice of any and all coercion or false representations to bring about a strike.

The court finds that the statements of the bill of complaint to the effect that the employes were satisfied with the wages and conditions of service are not supported. For a long time prior to the filing of the bill of complaint the employes were dissatisfied with conditions of service, it is held, and a real difference of opinion existed between the railroad and a large majority of its employes, members of the brotherhoods, with respect to their wages.

The defendants as officers and committees of the brotherhoods, the court declares, were fully authorized, both by reason of their official relations to their members and also by direct written authority to represent them in the effort to secure higher wages and change conditions of service, and that the proposed strike, instead of being officiously ordered by defendants, was a result of the vote of the employes acting without coercion and directly authorizing the same.

The court further finds, after a full examination of the evidence, that the charge of conspiracy to interfere with the inter-State commerce of the United States or the mail service of the United States is not sustained.

Judge Adams, after rendering his decision, said:

"I cannot conclude this opinion without expressing the sincere wish of the court that if the parties are unable to adjust their differences by such mutual concessions as are necessary to that end, the offer made in open court by defendants' counsel to submit the questions in dispute to the Board of Arbitration provided for by the act of Congress of 1898 will be speedily accepted and another instance of rational and intelligent adjustment of a business difficulty be exhibited to an expectant public."

E. N. Judson of St. Louis, special counsel for the brotherhoods, stated after the decision had been read that he and Col. Blodgett, general solicitor of the Wabash, were making efforts to bring all the parties interested together, and that in his opinion an amicable adjustment would be arrived at and there would be no strike.

John J. Hannahan, Grand Master of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, reached St. Louis this afternoon and immediately went into conference with Vice Grand Master Lee of the Brotherhood of Trainmen. When asked for an opinion on the decision and what the next step on the part of the brotherhoods would be, Mr. Hannahan said:

"The decision was a grand victory for union labor. As to the next step to be taken I cannot say a word at present, but as soon as we decide on anything it will be made public."

Mr. Lee said: "The decision was certainly sweeping. It completely removes the injunction. We believe now, as we always have, that our requests were just and reasonable, and another attempt will be made to bring about a peaceful settlement between the grievance committees and the Wabash officials."

Both Grand Master Hannahan of the firemen and Vice Grand Master Lee of the trainmen have telegraphed all their respective lodges and divisions on the Wabash to hold joint meetings next Sunday. The purpose of these meetings is kept a secret. These messages have been ordered bulletined at roundhouses and in public places. The grand officers of the brotherhoods will be in attendance.

Mr. Hannahan has telegraphed all officers of the Grand Executive Board of the Firemen and the four Vice Grand Masters to report to him immediately in St. Louis.

At Wabash headquarters Col. Blodgett said: "After the decision was rendered counsel for the brotherhoods and I conferred briefly, but no conclusions were reached. I cannot say anything as to the future. I want some time to go over the situation."

President Ramsey of the Wabash is at present on his way to Cairo, Egypt, to attend his daughter, who is ill. George J. Gould arrived early to-night on his annual tour of inspection.

Contrary to expectations, he will not remain to assist in endeavoring to effect a settlement of differences, but will depart to-morrow morning, continuing his inspection trip. He held a conference with General Counsel Blodgett of the Wabash, and later gave out the following statement:

"In the controversy between the Wabash Railroad Company and its employes the company's affairs have been solely in the hands of its President, Mr. Ramsey, whose long familiarity with the situation in all its details has justified the company in placing every confidence in him.

"Mr. Ramsey greatly to my own regret, and I doubt not to the regret of all in any way connected with the company, has been compelled to cross the ocean on account of the serious illness of his daughter. He will return as soon as possible, and I feel it is only fair we should wait for his return.

"It certainly will be impossible for me before that time to become sufficiently acquainted with the merits of the question to enable me to discuss it intelligently. If there are any questions that need immediate adjustment, however, I am sure Mr. Ashley, whom Mr. Ramsey has left in charge, will deal with the men in a fair and generous spirit."

NEW HAVEN ROAD SETTLEMENT.

Differences Between Trainmen and Employers Amicably Adjusted at Conference.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 1.—The differences between the trainmen of the New York, New Haven, and Hartford Company and their employers were amicably settled late this afternoon. The men appear to be perfectly satisfied with the concessions made by the railroad officials.

President Hall is authority for the statement that the company in its settlement with the employes to-day granted them an eleven-hour work day, based on a mileage basis. The men understand that under the rules of the company, as they are required to be on hand in the yards thirty minutes prior to the departure of their trains, that period shall count as part of their work day. The agreement becomes effective May 1.

Valentine Fitzpatrick of the Trainmen's National Brotherhood gave out the following statement concerning the settlement: "The committee and Mr. Fitzpatrick met President Hall, Vice President Merrill, and Directors Miller and Thayer, and succeeded in reaching a settlement which we have every reason to believe will be very satisfactory to all concerned.

"The wages, hours, and rules governing the conditions of the employment of road brakemen, switchmen, yard conductors, and yard policemen are materially improved, and we believe when the employes learn of just what has been done in the matter they will feel that they have been justly treated by their employers."

At the office of the advertising agent of the railroad company this statement was made: "The difficulty with the trainmen was settled satisfactorily to both parties. The conductors' grievances will be heard to-morrow."

To-morrow morning the committee representing the conductors of the road will go into conference with the Directors' committee.

MANY STRIKES OF BUILDERS.

Allied Workmen Throughout the Country Demand Higher Wages and Shorter Hours.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., April 1.—The long-threatened strike of the carpenters for 40 cents an hour instead of 35 cents, the present rate, is on, and building operations are now tied up throughout the city. Over 800 men are affected and they declare they will have the support of the allied trades.

SARATOGA, N. Y., April 1.—Three hundred painters, paperhangers, decorators, masons, bricklayers, plasterers, members of two unions, inaugurated a strike to-day. They expect that other local trades unions will join them and make the strike general. Their demand is for an increas in wages and a decrease in hours.

WHEELING, West Va., April 1.—The local Carpenters', Painters', Tinners' and Roofers' Unions declared a strike to-day. About 1,000 men are affected. The men demand a general increase, averaging 12½ per cent. in wages and an eight-hour day. The contractors declare they will not sign the scale.

JACKSON, Mich., April 1.—Two hundred and fifty laborers, masons, and stone masons have gone on strike pending the settlement of their demand for an increase from 20 to 22 cents per hour. If the Building Trades Exchange holds out the strike may involve 1,000 men.

SHARON, Penn., April 1.—The bricklayers of the Bricklayers and Masons' International Union went on strike here to-day and as a result building operations are partially tied up in Sharon and South Sharon. The strike is caused by the contractors refusing to grant the demands of the men for an eight-hour day at $4.50, the rate they are now getting for nine hours' work.

All but a few of the bricklayers employed by the United States Steel Corporation at South Sharon also struck because the company wanted them to work ten hours a day.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 1.—Bricklayers throughout the city struck for higher wages to-day, having refused a compromise offered by the employers.

READING, Penn., April 1.—Nearly 100 plasterers went on strike to-day for an increase from 30 to 40 cents an hour and an eight-hour workday.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., April 1.—The strike of the Springfield painters and paperhangers for a scale of 37½ cents per hour and an eight-hour day went into effect this morning. One hundred men left their jobs.

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., April 1.—Sixty-five journeymen painters went on strike here to-day. They demand $3 per day and eight hours.

ELMIRA, N. Y., April 1.—The paperhangers and painters of this city went out on a strike to-day on being refused an eight-hour day at $2.50. The offer of the contractors $2.25 and a nine-hour day—was rejected.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., April 1.—The painters of this city went out on strike to-day for an increase from 25 to 27½ cents an hour.

LYNN, Mass., April 1.—Refusal of the master painters to sign a new wage scale offered by the Painters and Decorators' Union caused strikes involving about 100 men in nine shops. If non-union painters are put at work on unfinished buildings the other trades threaten to strike.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 1.—Five hundred union painters went on strike here to-day to enforce their demand for an increase of 2½ cents an hour. Under the old scale the painters received 35 cents an hour, and now ask 37½ cents.

SHAMOKIN, Penn., April 1.—The local lodge of plumbers and tinsmiths of the International Unions went on strike to-day for a 10 per cent. increase and a nine-hour work day.

PHILADELPHIA, April 1.—Nearly 200 journeymen plumbers struck here to-day to enforce their demand of $3.50 for a day of eight hours for first-class men and $3 a day for apprentices who have served three years.

APRIL BUILDING STRIKES.

Special to The New York Times.

ORANGE, N. J., April 1.—Fifteen hundred journeymen plumbers, tinners, and painters went out on strike this morning for increased wages. The men have established headquarters, and while they are waiting for the bosses to grant their demands, the bosses are themselves working on jobs, assisting each other and looking for "such men as they see fit to do the work."

The journeymen carpenters have not signified their intention to strike, but it is thought they will join in sympathetic strikes where bosses attempt to put non-union painters or plumbers on in place of strikers.

YONKERS, N. Y., April 1.—About 800 men, carpenters and plumbers, went on strike here this morning. The masons and tinsmiths came to an agreement with their employers which resulted in their not going out. The strikers met to-day and appointed committees to manage the strike. The bosses met last night and arranged for their end of the fight.

Special to The New York Times.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., April 1.—All the painters and hodcarriers struck to-day. The masons have refused to handle any mortar or any bricks brought to them by non-union men, and, therefore, they are virtually out, and have given notice that they will go on strike May 1. Plumbers, tinners, and painters have all given notice that they will not work on buildings on which non-union labor is employed, and as a consequence not a stroke of work is being done in the building line in this town.

DEMANDS OF UNION WORKMEN.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 1.—The 150 coal teamsters together with 50 yardmen and carriers employed by the Eastern Coal Company of this city struck to-day to enforce a demand that the union officials be given absolute right to employ and discharge the men at their pleasure. The union has been recognized by the coal company, and the men are satisfied with the hours of labor and the rate of wages.

CHICAGO, April 1.—A strike of eighteen ironworkers in the Pease Company's car shops at Hagewisch has resulted in an unexpected advance of the wages of more than 1,200 men. The eighteen men quit work because they were not given an increase of 8 cents an hour over their wages of 37 cents. James H. Pease, President of the company, ordered a general advance of 10 per cent. in the wages of the employes of the company.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., April 1.—The members of the Electrical Workers' Union went out on strike to-day to enforce their demand for $3 a day, instead of $2.50, as at present. It also is demanded that there shall be a foreman for every third man. At present about 100 men are affected.

PITTSBURG, April 1.—In obedience to an order decided upon last night, about 400 wagon makers, members of the local union, struck to-day for an increase in wages of 15 per cent., recognition of the union, a nine-hour day, and time and a half for all overtime work. A few firms have signed the scale.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 1.—Local brewery workers to the number of 600 struck to-day, because the men refuse to accept the decision of the American Federation of Labor Convention to the effect that engineers and firemen in brewery plants must affiliate with their respect crafts.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., April 1.—All of the girls employed in the operative department of the Caster-Crume Company, about 150, are on strike. They demand a new schedule of wages, ranging from $3 to $6 a week.

WALLINGFORD, Conn., April 1.—Seventy employes of the Rogers Brothers' silverware factory here went on strike to-day because of the employment of a non-union man.

IRON STRIKE DEAD-LOCK

Leader Buchanan States the Union's Grievances.

American Bridge Official Explains the Company's Changed Attitude Toward National Agreement.

President Buchanan of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers spent a good part of yesterday afternoon in the office of the National Civic Federation and spent much of the time with Samuel B. Donnelly of the New York Civic Federation. Mr. Buchanan issued a statement late last evening giving his side of the trouble.

The statement says that about March 1 he was notified of trouble in New York, Buffalo, Pittsburg, Albany, and Philadelphia between locals and the American Bridge Company. He was informed, he says, that the company was violating established rules in the localities named, and that the locals were unable to adjust things. The locals involved, he said, referred all these makers to him, and he came to this city. He was unable to bring about a conference with the representatives of the locals, the company, and the International Association, and then ordered a general strike. This, he says, was only after it was found impossible to bring about a conference.

He then tells of sending a telegram to President Hattfield of the company, and its results as already published. He says with regard to the refusal of the company to meet the officials of the international association:

"We are at a loss to know why the American Bridge Company has taken this position. It seems to be a sudden change from their past position. I have received communications from the American Bridge Company not later than three months past for the purpose of managing matters with their employes in different localities. Also a year ago last January I myself and the secretary of the association met with E. P. Mitchell, chief engineer of the American Bridge Company, and Mr. Laughlin, Superintendent of erection of the Eastern Division, for the purpose of forming a National agreement."

The representatives of the company at that time, he says, wanted a National agreement for the purpose, they said, of preventing petty local difficulties and guaranteeing that they could proceed with their work without interruption. The unions objected to the wording of the agreement and nothing was done. The officers of the International Association, therefore, he hcids were acting through the power given them by the locals, after the latter failed to adjust grievances. The statement concludes:

"This disproves the statement made in the newspapers by uninformed parties that the ironworkers have called a strike in New York in order to adjust grievances elsewhere, since the New York local was one that appealed to the international officers for adjustment of their grievance."

A representative of the American Bridge Company said yesterday that the agreement which expired in Chicago on March 31 was a three-year agreement. The ironworkers in Chicago did not join in the present series of sympathetic strikes.

"Conferences are being held now in Chicago over the demands," he continued, "it so happens that Chicago has paid the highest wages to structural ironworkers of any city in the United States. This began when the elevated railroads were being constructed in Chicago, in 1894. At that time there was a demand for ironworkers, and they struck for $3.75 a day and won their strike. There were higher wages than were paid at that time in any other city."

Regarding the statement to J. Pierpont Morgan by President Buchanan that the company violated an agreement by employing non-union men, he said:

"This probably is in reference to the contracts at Pittsburg some time ago. The company has always employed union men, and did employ non-union men when the union was not able to furnish the men. There was a great demand for ironworkers at that time, the union could not supply enough men. We gave the union a month's notice to supply all the men, failing in which, we said, we would have to employ non-union men in addition to union men. They failed to supply all the men we needed, and it was a question of shutting down on some of our contracts or employing non-union men. We decided to put non-union men to work, and the union recognising the situation made no objection."

In reference to Mr. Buchanan's statement tha the company proposed a national agreement year ago, and now wants local agreements, he said:

"At that time this company prepared a general agreement which the union objected to. The union wanted to have an agreement on their own terms. Since then the Structural Iron Manufacturers and Erectors have organized and decided that it would be better to deal with local committees of the men through local committees of our association."

He said that over $1,000,000 worth of iron work was tied up in New York alone through the strike.

TWO CONNECTICUT STRIKES.

GREENWICH, Conn., April 1.—About 1,000 men employed in the building trades in this and neighboring villages went on strike to-day to enforce a demand for an increase in wages, Saturday half-holiday, and the use of material bearing the union label.

The contractors affected belong to the Greenwich Contractors' Association. It is understood that while they have a rush of work on hand, including Summer residences hereabouts, and would be willing to consider the pay increase asked for, they object especially to the Saturday half-holiday and the demand for the exclusive use of union-made material, and propose to make a test of strength.

Several hundred carpenters and other workmen not residents left this morning for their homes at distant points, in anticipation of a prolonged strike.

STAMFORD, Conn., April 1.—More than seven hundred men employed in the various building trades in Stamford and vicinity went on strike to-day because of various differences with the master builders. They demand an eight-hour day and a wage increase. The masons and bricklayers have been on strike since March 1 because they were refused an advance of 50 cents a day. The present strike has been expected for some time, and contractors have been chary about accepting large contracts.

The strike will not affect the Anson-Phelps Stokes contract, and one or two other contracts for buildings at Collender's Point, which are being handled by New York men. The laborers at work thereon are receiving satisfactory wages and have no grievance.

LAKE SHIPPING TIED UP.

CHICAGO, April 1.—Five strikes involving over 5,000 men were inaugurated to-day, in addition to the spreading of that of the tanners and curriers, which began yesterday, with 900 men out. Two thousand of the latter refused to go to work to-day. Lake vessels are tied up by a strike of marine firemen, oilers, and water tenders to enforce a demand for $52 a month until October, and $60 thereafter.

Five hundred tailors demand rooms in which to work in lieu of using their homes as workshops. Excavating teamsters demand an increase of 25 cents a day, and called a strike in all barns where the union scale is not paid. Steam fitters numbering 700 declined to work pending the settlement of a demand for $4.50 a day, an advance of 50 cents.

The threatened strike of bridge and structural ironworkers was averted by the acceptance of a compromise offered by the employers of 50½ cents an hour, an advance of 50 cents a day. They asked 60 cents.

SEA SALMON SEASON OPENS.

Special to The New York Times.

BANGOR, Maine, April 1.—The sea salmon season on the Penobscot River opened to-day, and before 6 o'clock this morning the first fish had been taken with the fly at Bangor pool. William Munroe of Bangor hooking a fish weighing eighteen and one-half pounds, and landing it after half an hour's play.

Later in the day Cornelius McCosker landed a sixteen-pound fish. Both fish were sold at local markets at $1.23 a pound. On account of the early departure of the ice this season promises to be unusually successful for the salmon fishery.

Bangor Pool is visited annually by hundreds of fly fishermen, who get fish weighing from ten to thirty pounds, while from the weirs below the city tons of salmon are taken.

ELEVATED WAGE SCHEDULE

Terms Recently Rejected by Employes Put Into Effect.

President Pepper of the New Union Says Further Representations Will Be Made—August Belmont to Citizens.

Notwithstanding the fact that it was rejected by the elevated employes' new association when it was submitted to them a week ago by the then General Manager Skitt of the Manhattan Railway Company and General Manager Bryan of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, the new wage schedule was put into effect yesterday by Mr. Bryan when he assumed the management of the amalgamated companies. This schdule provides for certain increases of from five to fifty cents a day in the wages of employes of various classes, but fails to grant all the increases demanded and more notably fails to grant what was most strenuously demanded, a nine-hour day.

When he announced that the increases had been made, beginning yesterday, General Manager Bryan was reminded that the schedule had been rejected by the men at their meeting on Monday evening, March 23.

"I know it," he said, "but we have granted the increases anyway."

Asked what he thought the men might do about it, Mr. Bryan said:

"They can do what they choose—accept it or reject it. It is effective, however, beginning to-day."

George A. Pepper, President of the new association of elevated employes, said last night:

"The new schedule of wages? We have rejected it once, we have not changed our opinions on the matter."

"What will be done by the employes?" was asked.

"The sub-committee of the Executive Committee, who have the matter in charge," he replied, "will see the management in the near future—just when I cannot say, although I know—and will represent to them their dissatisfaction with the new arrangement."

"If no further concessions are granted?" was asked.

"We think there will be," said Mr. Pepper. "We believe our requests are just and we hope to be able to convince the men at the head of the road that they are just. We have faith that Mr. Bryan intends to and will do what is right by the employes. We cannot say what will happen if they refuse to give us what we believe is due us. I personally do not think they will refuse."

The new schedule and the demands the men made of the company are shown in the following:

Station agents, $2 a day; no raise in pay asked.

Motormen, $3 a day; no raise in pay asked.

Conductors, from $2.20 to $2.35 a day; $2.50 demanded.

Guards, $1.50 to $1.85 a day; $2 demanded.

"Balloon men," or turnstile men, raised from $1.50 to $2 on demand.

Ticket choppers or gatemen, $1.25 to $1.40 a day for the first year, and $1.50 thereafter, according to demand.

Telegraph operators, $2.25 a day; no raise asked.

Switchmen, $2.10 to $2.20 a day, and tower switchmen $2.47 a day; no raise asked.

August Belmont wrote yesterday to the West Side Citizens' Transit Reform Committee of One Hundred, in reply to a letter from the committee, which was as follows:

The West Side Citizens' Transit Reform Committee of One Hundred has for some time sought relief, on behalf of the citizens of the west side, whom they represent, from the intolerable conditions on the trains and at the stations of the elevated railroads, especially on the west side of the city. The near approach of the assumption of the control and operation of these roads by the company of which you are President leads us, before pressing the legal rights and remedies which we believe the public possess, to ask what measure of relief we can expect in the immediate future.

If, in your opinion, a conference between a body of the citizens and representatives of your company would effect a better understanding of the situation, we should be pleased to arrange for such a meeting with you.

Mr. Belmont said that "the duties devolving upon the officers of the company, in organizing, will occupy the greater portion of their time for at least a week or ten days, to the exclusion of the possibility of taking up such matters as your association might desire to bring forward."

He added that he had instructed that the letters be filed and brought to his attention "at an early date in April," when he would communicate further with them. He said he had no doubt that it would be possible to give the committee an opportunity to lay such matters as they might wish before the management.

Mr. Skitt, Treasurer McWilliams, and Auditor Gaynor of the Manhattan will be retained by the Interborough Company in advisory capacities until 1906. It has been found that the subway cars are available for use on the Second Avenue lines. Deliveries of these cars are expected to begin early next month, and they first may be put into daily use on this branch until the subway is ready.

FRANK REAL ESTATE REPORTER

He Puts His Guilelessness on Record in Writing a Story That Deals with April 1.

Wholly unmindful of the date, the real estate reporter sharpened his pencil yesterday morning and sallied forth. He had not gone far when he was touched on the arm, and looking around saw a friend, who beckoned him to a handy doorway.

"Sh! Have you heard it?" whispered the friend.

"No."

"Well, now, this is dead straight—right from the inside—hot off the griddle. The Bank of England is negotiating for the Sub-Treasury site. You know there has been a lot of talk from Washington about the sale of it, but this deal has been kept very dar. Now, keep this to yourself and don't give me away."

The reporter made record time to his office.

"Better wire Washington and London for details," he ventured, but the only response was a smile and a recommendation to look at the calendar.

"Say," inquired the man with a memory, "wasn't it just a year ago that you came in here all out of breath with a yarn about the sale of St. Paul's churchyard to a syndicate and that a building was going to be put up there that would make the ordinary skyscraper look like a flagman's shanty? Suppose next year you'll have one about the Standard Oil Company buying Trinity Church."

The reporter took another glance in the direction of the calendar and fled to watch small boys pin "Kick me" signs on fat men.

APPEAL FOR NEGRO STUDENTS.

The Rev. Dr Horace Talbert, Secretary of the Wilberforce University for colored students, male and female, reached this city yesterday morning for the purpose of arousing public interest in the work of that institution. He will remain about ten days and will address a number of meetings in churches and elsewhere. About $20,000 is needed to meet the deficiencies of the last year, which is said to have been, however, most fruitful, and this is the first time that the Wilberforces University has ever made a public appeal in this manner.

Dr. Talbert had interviews within a week with President Roosevelt and Secretary Root in regard to the possible early return of Capt Charles Young, United States Army, the only member of his race who ever graduated from West Point, to his former post as instructor in military tactics at the university after his services in the war with Spain in Cuba, and since in the Philippines. No promises were made, but it was intimated that the hopes of the Faculty in this direction might soon be realised.

Wilberforce has this year upon its rolls twenty native African pupils, who, upon graduation, intend to return with others of their classmates to their native land there to plant the seeds of American civilization.

BROKER'S WOMAN PARTNER.

A woman as a partner in a stock brokerage firm is something of a novelty in Wall Street. Consequently considerable interest was manifested in the announcement that Bessie H. Poor, the wife of Frank R. Poor, had gone into partnership with S. B. Fitzgerald, a broker of the Consolidated Exchange, under the firm name of S. B. Fitzgerald & Co.

The offices of the firm will be at 32 Broadway, but Mrs. Poor will not supervise matters personally. This part of the business will be attended to by Frank R. Poor, her husband, who will act as manager. Mr. Fitzgerald will be the Exchange member. Mr. Poor was identified with the failure of the Seventh National Bank, at which time he lost a large fortune.

PLAN SEMI-FIREPROOF SEVEN-STORY FLATS.

Supt. Stewart and Commissioner De Forest Favorable to Compromise Measure for Builders.

A conference held yesterday afternoon in the New Amsterdam Hotel, and attended by Superintendent of Buildings Stewart, Tenement House Commissioner De Forest, and several prominent builders and building loan operators, is likely to result in an important modification of the tenement house law by creating what will be virtually a new type of seven-story apartment house.

Owing to the present provisions of the law apartment houses more than six stories in height must be of fire-proof construction. Builders have been loud in their protests against this condition of affairs, because there is a very considerable amount of property in the up-town section which cannot be made sufficiently productive with only a six-story structure, but which, on the other hand, does not admit of any improvement so costly as wholly fire-proof construction.

There has already been introduced at this session of the Legislature a bill to raise the non-fire-proof limit to seven stories, but this measure has met with strong opposition from the Tenement House Department, and its supporters are said to have virtually abandoned it.

At yesterday's conference a proposition was made to create a semi-fire-proof seven-story apartment house—that is, a building in which all floor beams shall be of steel and in which all elevator shafts, dumb-waiter shafts, and staircases shall be of fire-proof construction. This plan met with the hearty assent of those present. Superintendent Stewart had compiled some figures to show that the increased cost of putting up a structure of this sort, as against one that is non-fire-proof, would probably not be more than $1,000 for each story of the building's height. It is believed that Commissioner De Forest will not oppose these changes in the law, and a bill embodying them probably will be introduced in the Legislature within a few days.

NEW ORDER IN COALFIELDS.

Award of Strike Commission Put Into Full Effect with but Little Friction.

PHILADELPHIA, April 1.—The award of the Anthracite Coal Strike Commission went into full effect to-day throughout the anthracite coal regions. The inauguration of the new conditions was generally observed as a holiday in the southern fields, almost all the mines in that district being idle. In several towns parades and mass-meetings were held. In the middle and upper regions some of the collieries were not operated, but most of the mine workers reported for duty.

As a rule the readjustment of hours and other conditions were effected with but little difficulty. At some places there was friction, but it is expected that whatever difficulty still exists will be straightened out in a few days. In the region where the Reading's collieries are situated there is some trouble regarding the establishment of three shifts of eight hours each among the firemen, as ordered by the commission. Until to-day the firemen have worked twelve hours, and it is alleged by some of the firemen that in making up the third shift of eight hours men were taken from the other two shifts, increasing the work even though the hours have been reduced.

Owen Zeigler in Bellevue Hospital.

Owen Zeigler, the lightweight pugilist, was taken to Bellevue Hospital last night from the Morton House suffering from pneumonia. It is said that Zeigler has been stopping at the hotel for some time, and had been apparently in good health up to a few days ago, when he caught a severe cold.

Rehabilitation

CARLYLE, by his analysis of Professor Teufelsdrockh's book on clothes, very firmly establishes the theory that Society Is Founded on Clothes. All men are born equal; the inequalities develop with the clothes they inherit or acquire.

Clothes denote not only the means of men and women; but still more decidedly they express their taste, education, association, or environment.

And clothes are perishable. Like friendship and club-dues, they must be periodically renewed, else one's reputation and position in society would perish with their disintegration.

Each season every member of society must go through the labor of rehabilitation; must be his own guide and mentor in perpetuating his own individuality—for, much as we talk of fashion and good form, each man and woman gives a liberal interpretation to the laws of dress.

The days of rehabilitation are here. Society has discredited all apparel of the past. A million workers at loom and wheel, in factory and shop, are dependent on your obedience to society's mandate. The gratification of your desires adds to the nation's prosperity, and adds its voltage to the wheels of progress.

The WANAMAKER STORE displays apparel and the materials for it, as prepared by producers at home and abroad. The array would be startling if you had not grown accustomed to the marvels of modern merchandising. For, "let but a rising of the sun, let but a creation of the world happen twice and it ceases to be marvelous, to be noteworthy or noticeable."

And yet a very delightful experience awaits your coming to WANAMAKER'S these brilliant, warming April days. Here are flowers most artistically arranged; here are hundreds of bird songs and other music. And above all, in universal public interest are the myriad needs of artistic Spring Rehabilitation for men and women as well as for the home.

MUSICALE by Voors' String Orchestra of six pieces—3 mandolins, cello and 2 guitars in the WANAMAKER ANNEX today, in a specially arranged space adjoining the Musical Instrument Section, between 12 o'clock, noon, and 5 P. M.

These Musicales will continue at the same hours for a week.

Men's Underwear

For Now and Later

STICKING to your flannels until they stick to you may be the part of old-fashioned prudence; but most men prefer to taper off as warm weather approaches, by means of intermediate weights of underwear.

All kinds that are good are here—different weights, various materials; all put together after our precise directions, and priced all the way from 25c to $8.50 a garment. Sizes run up to 50 inches in most lines of Shirts and Drawers—stout men, take notice!

And as to price, you get the best of it, right through the whole list:

At $1 a garment—English white lisle thread. French balbriggan, medium or light weight. French natural colored merino. American lustre cotton, sky blue, flesh color and lavender. American natural color or white merino, medium weight.

At $1.30 each, for size 34 Shirts, or size 28 Drawers; —American gossamer or medium-weight white merino: fashioned and regular made. Advance 10c on each larger size.

At $1.10 each, for size 34 Shirts—English fashioned gauze white merino. Drawers, size 30, $1.20. Both advance 10c on each larger size.

A New Departure In Millinery

$5 Hats

TODAY we announce an innovation in the selling of Millinery that will be appreciated by every well-dressed woman of an economical turn of mind in New York City. We have taken a large section of our Basement Under-Price Store and have built a new Millinery Salon. The walls on three sides are lined with handsome cases; a hardwood floor has been laid, and the mirrors and other fixtures provide the same comfort and convenience as our Second Floor Salon.

But the chief feature of the new Millinery Store is the HATS. It is not part of our plan to introduce the factory-made hats which you have been accustomed to see at low prices. This business would not have been undertaken at all if we had been compelled to resort to this method. The new Millinery Salon shall be entirely characteristic of the WANAMAKER policy. The hats shall present the same exclusiveness of design, the same variety, as have been features of our regular Millinery business. The Basement Millinery Store will have no two hats alike. No hat of next week or any future week will be like any hat of the past. There is an individuality about each new production. The hats are all made by expert milliners, and instead of following a fixed model, as is the custom in factories, these hats are made with constant changes in each one produced.

The shapes are the most artistic of the season; all the trimmings are high class in quality and design: all of the work is finely and carefully done by expert milliners. The lining of every hat is of silk drawn with a silk ribbon.

Every little detail shows the careful finish and artistic touches that will make these hats appeal to refined women as hats at these prices have never appealed before.

$8 Hats

Three prices shall rule in our Basement Millinery Salon, $5, $6 and $8. So refined and artistic, so thoroughly stylish are these hats that if they were marked $8, $10, and $12 instead, they would not be counted expensive as compared with hats of this character to be found elsewhere.

The new store opens today with several hundred spic-span-new hats that make up an exhibition, such as New York has never seen before in low-priced hats. We shall endeavor to maintain the same full variety until the Saturday before Easter, at least; but if the public response should be as enthusiastic as the hats deserve, the entire stock will be exhausted in a few hours. This we scarcely anticipate until the public learns the true character of the $5, $6 and $8 hats in the WANAMAKER BASEMENT SALON.

There is little that can be told about the styles of these hats; individual description would require a statement about every hat, as there are no duplicates in the lot. The same shapes are here as are in our high-priced hats, which means abundant variety of turbans, toques, large dress shapes, body hats and sailor hats. The dominating colors of the season are here—black, black-and-white, white, and burnt straw represent the largest proportion of the hats shown; but there are others in navy blue, brown, violet, green, light blue and other colors; while there is absolute harmony of color, refined and artistic character in the shapes and designs of every hat.

Our public is invited to the new Salon today. Under-Price Store, Basement.

The April Silk Sale

ENTHUSIASM started off bright and early yesterday morning on this sale of silks. New York women have been delighted to discover such an offering of exactly the silks they want right at the beginning of April, with Easter and the full Spring season two weeks ahead. It is truly a remarkable achievement to be able to present such a magnificent collection of brand new, staple and popular silks, at such decisive reductions, when the market prices on silks are advancing on every side. It was simply a case of being the first to co-operate with the manufacturers who were anxious to clean up stocks early; but to do on the First of April what the public might expect on the First of May; or perhaps the First of June, makes a tremendous amount of difference to the women who have Spring and Summer gowns to buy. The variety today is as broad and complete as yesterday. These are the striking items:

These Robes, or semi-made shirt-waist suits, present the most stylish ideas of the Spring season. The skirts are completely made except for the final fitting. White Linens

For Shirt-Waists

THERE is little need to say more about the popularity of White Linens for shirt-waists this season. Every woman has already seen the beautiful waists ready-made, and all the fashion journals have been telling about them all season. So eager have women, as well as manufacturers, been to secure the linens, plain and embroidered, that practically everything in the way of fancy linens has been diverted to the use of waist-makers. The most superb effects have been produced from embroidered pillow-cases, as well as Mexican and Japan hand-drawn and embroidered squares, doilies and scarfs. The beautiful wheel-work from Teneriffe, as well as the imitation that comes from Japan, has been applied most artistically for the making of waists. Every woman will realize the possibilities as soon as they are suggested. The hints that follow will give partial idea of the splendid variety of these materials shown in our Linen Store:

Men's Frock Coats and Waistcoats

THE Frock Coat is indispensable to the well-dressed man's wardrobe. Its most important season is right now, and yet it serves a man in the most important manner all year round. WANAMAKER FROCK COATS have done much to disillusionize men who have held to the superstition that the frock coat must be tailor-made. This has been brought about, because we organized the features essential to serving men properly with frock coats. The frock coat must fit perfectly. It must represent the very essence of style. It must have the finish and graceful lines essential to afternoon dress for men. All of these points are recognized and developed to the fullest degree in the WANAMAKER READY-MADE FROCK COATS.

They are, in fact, tailor-made in every essential, except being made to your measure. This single point of fit is realized because of the enormous stock which we carry. We have long since learned that the Prince Albert coat demands double the size proportions of any other coat, and so our stocks show every variation of size for the tall, stout or regular-sized man. The tailoring is done in the most careful manner, and shows as much hand-work as if the garment were made to order. There are no more handsome fabrics or sumptuous linings than are to be found in the WANAMAKER ready-made coats. An absolute perfect fit will be secured nine times out of ten without any alterations at all, but where alterations are necessary, we make them in exactly the same manner as the tailor would make them when he gave you your fitting; and this is done promptly, so that the suit you look at in the morning will be home at night, ready for immediate wear.

Prince Albert Coats and Vests, $20, $25 and $35.
Cutaway Frock Coats and Vests, $15, $20 and $25.
Striped Worsted Trousers, $5 to $8.
Fancy Waistcoats, $2.50 to $6.50.
Second floor, Fourth avenue.

CAUCUS WILL AMEND MORTGAGE TAX BILL

Conference at Albany Decides Upon Reconsideration of the Measure.

Three-Platoon Plan Abandoned with the Consent of Platt Men—Bribery on the Excise Bill.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 1.—Developments in the Republican political situation to-day included a conference on the Mortgage Tax bill, which decided on another caucus, and the abandonment of the three-platoon plan for the New York police force, which Senator Platt had strongly indorsed.

The conference on the Mortgage Tax bill was held this evening in the executive chamber. Those present besides the Governor were Lieut. Gov. Higgins, Speaker Nixon, Senators Raines, Allds, and Green, Assemblymen Rogers and Burnett, and State Chairman Dunn.

The conference was in session over two hours, and when it adjourned those who took part in it said they had been pledged to secrecy. It can be stated, however, on excellent authority, that there is little hope of the passage of the Mortgage Tax bill in its present shape, but that the Governor is determined to have some mortgage tax legislation.

It is given out to-night that there will be a caucus of the Republican Senators to-morrow night or some night next week to consider the situation with regard to the pending measure. The friends of the Governor, it is said, will oppose releasing the Senators from their pledge to support the Green bill unless they pledge themselves in advance to pass some kind of a mortgage tax bill. To have all mortgage tax legislation abandoned now, the Governor's friends think, would place him in an embarrassing position, in view of the recent utterances of Senator Platt.

Several propositions are being advanced to-night as likely to be acted on favorably. One is that the tax on mortgages be reduced to 2 mills. The other is that the present bill be abandoned for a measure similar to that introduced last year by Senator Strahahan, which provided for a recording tax.

Senator Davis of Buffalo to-day introduced a bill exempting all mortgages from taxation. As he was one of those who took the pledge to support the Green bill, this action was regarded as indicating a disposition on the part of some of the Republican Senators to break away from their caucus pledges. When he was asked for an explanation he contented himself with the statement that he believed that all mortgages should be exempt from taxation, and he had introduced the bill to show what his convictions were.

The Senate Cities Committee this morning decided to report favorably the Police bill introduced at the instigation of Police Commissioner Greene. The bill was reported without the three platoon amendment, which the members of the force have endeavored so persistently to have attached. Senator L'Hommedieu was the only Republican who voted for the amendment. The bill provides 500 patrolmen are to be added annually to the force for two years, and 200 annually thereafter. It further gives the Commissioner the power to create 250 additional Roundsmen.

Senator Raines and Senator Green, both of whom are classed as strong Platt men, attended the meeting of the committee. Their attitude toward the three platoon amendment was mystifying. A week ago Senator Platt and Col. Dunn gave out interviews in New York in which they said that they were heartily in favor of the plan because it was not only right, but was good politics. Yet when the vote was taken to-day, Senator Raines, the Platt leader in the Senate, did not take either side, and Senator Green, who represents Col. Dunn's district, cast the deciding vote against the amendment.

With regard to talk of bribery in connection with the Excise Tax bill and the threats which the Governor is said to have made against members of the Legislature whom he suspected of being unduly influenced, it may be said that undoubtedly Mr. Odell did bring pressure to bear upon members individually to support the bill. In the statement that he informed six-sevenths of them that he was in possession of evidence which he would turn over to the District Attorney in the event of their not voting to suit him, it is perhaps sufficient to say that even his nearest political friends do not charge him with going so far as to use information of a criminal character for political purposes merely.

Assemblyman Burnett to-day made an attempt to get his excise "grab" bill on the calendar, but Mr. Palmer objected.

"It is now evident," said Mr. Palmer, "why the Raines bill was put through yesterday. It was to afford additional revenue to give places to sixty additional Excise Inspectors, who are to receive salaries ranging from $1,500 to $1,800 a year. With fewer saloons there can be no reason why there should be more Excise Inspectors than we now have, except that the additional revenue affords an opportunity to make a large number of desirable places for political henchmen."

Mr. Palmer's remarks, Mr. Burnett concluded not to press his motion to have his bill go on the calendar.

There will be a hearing to-morrow before the Assembly Excise Committee on the Citizens' Union bill providing for an excise commission to be appointed by the Governor to investigate the whole subject of excise and make recommendations.

SENATOR PLATT EXPLAINS.

Senator Platt's attention was called last night to a statement from Albany that in spite of all opposition Gov. Odell had decided to put through the mortgage tax measure as it stands. The Senator said that there was no issue between himself and the Governor on this question.

"As I said before, the Governor is and has been against the Mortgage Tax bill," continued Senator Platt, "and he does not want it to pass. Everybody up State is against it. I do not think there will be any more delegations going to Albany to oppose the bill, for the understanding has been given out that the bill virtually will be killed. It will practically be wiped out with amendments."

RAILROAD BILLS DENOUNCED.

Nobody Appears to Explain "Grab" Measures at Albany and New Yorkers Oppose Them.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 1.—The L'Hommedieu and Cadin street railroad bills, which have recently been the subject of so much criticism because of the general belief that they were in the interest of the Metropolitan Street Railway, were the subject of a hearing before the Assembly Railroads Committee to-day. The failure of Senator L'Hommedieu and Mr. Cadin to appear before the committee and make a defense of their measures lent color to the general suspicion that the underlying purpose of the bills could hardly be defended.

During the whole time that Senator L'Hommedieu's bill was being assailed by Assistant Corporation Counsel Whitman, Edward E. Whitney, the attorney for the New York Board of Trade and Transportation, and James Holle, the Secretary of the Manufacturers' Association, the introducer sat in the Senate Chamber writing letters.

Mr. Whitman practically defied the Senator or any one representing him to come before the committee and deny that his bill was intended to affect New York City. This challenge was not accepted. The only person present at the hearing who said anything in favor of the bill was Porter Norton, representing the International Street Railway of Buffalo.

Henry A. Robinson, the attorney for the Metropolitan, was in the city, and two persons said to be agents of the Metropolitan attended the hearing. They had nothing to say for either of the bills.

Mr. Whitman said frankly that he did not know exactly what the L'Hommedieu bill would do, but his impression was that the purpose of it was to validate old consents granted by villages now incorporated within the limits of the City of New York. He believed it would enable the Metropolitan Company to make many desirable extensions.

"If the bill is not intended to apply to the City of New York, as its introducer has asserted," said Mr. Whitman, "why is he not here to give us an explanation of the purposes which would remove our doubts? Why is he not willing that a provision should be inserted in the bill exempting the City of New York from its operation? It seems to me that the circumstantial evidence alone that the bill was designed for the effect which it would have on New York City is convincing."

Mr. Whitman also attacked the Cadin bill, which provided that in cases where the local authorities have consented to the construction and the operation of a street railroad upon a certain route, and the railway has constructed and operated its road only upon a portion of the route, its right to construct and operate the road upon such portion shall not be affected by the failure to construct and operate upon the remaining portion.

In speaking of this bill Mr. Whitman said: "Whatever may be the merits of this measure as applied to other localities than the City of New York, it ought not to affect the city, for the reason that the franchises granted to street railway companies by the City of New York are created by resolutions or ordinances elaborately drawn, which form solemn agreements between the city and the railroad company, and it is highly improper that the Legislature should have the power to interfere with these agreements and validate or invalidate portions of them or acts done under them."

In conclusion Mr. Whitman said that the plain inference to be drawn from the text of the L'Hommedieu and Cadin bills, taken together, with the manner in which they were being put forward in the Legislature, was that they were attempts to deprive the City of New York of the revenue to which it was entitled through the disposal of its franchises.

ICE CUTTERS COMBINE.

Independent Association Started at Albany—Hearing on the Bill Regulating Ice Cutting.

ALBANY, April 1.—Forty independent ice dealers of the Mohawk and Hudson Valleys to-day organized the Empire State Ice Harvesters' Association, with these officers: President—Newton B. Vanderzee of Albany; Vice President—W. J. Clark of Yonkers; Secretary—E. S. Anthony of Coxsackie; Treasurer—Peter McCabe of Albany.

The association is intended to include the independent icemen of the entire State, and its organization is said to have been inspired chiefly by a desire to prevent hostile legislation.

The entire body to-day attended the hearing of the Senate Committee on Public Health on Senator McCabe's bill prohibiting the cutting of ice for domestic use between Waterford and Coxsackie and within 500 yards of any town or city along the Hudson River.

William Bouvier, counsel for the American Ice Company, made extended arguments against the bill, declaring that it would not only throw 5,000 men out of employment, but would limit the ice supply along the Hudson. Samuel Foster, representing the Troy icemen; Samuel Coykendahl of the Kingston Steamboat Company, Mr. Vanderzee, and delegations from several other towns appeared against the bill.

Gen. Robert E. Avery of New York City favored it on sanitary grounds.

CATHOLICS AND THE SCHOOLS.

Delegation Tells the Governor That the Church Favors Unification Under the Regents.

ALBANY, April 1.—The Catholic Church to-day definitely declared itself in favor of the unification of the educational system of the State under the State Board of Regents. A delegation representing Archbishop Farley and the six Bishops in New York conferred with Gov. Odell this afternoon and told of the attitude of the prelates.

The delegation was headed by ex-District Attorney Eugene A. Philbin of New York City, representing Archbishop Farley, and the other dioceses of the State were represented by George A. Lewis, Buffalo; ex-Corporation Counsel William J. Carr, Brooklyn; James M. E. O'Grady, Rochester; John Cummings, Syracuse; Thomas Spratt, Ogdensburg, and Albert J. Donaher, Albany.

"We told Gov. Odell," said Mr. Philbin, "that the Catholic Church favors educational unification, as it is the best way to keep the public schools out of politics. The Church believes that the Board of Regents is the proper body to control the educational interests of the State. The Church desires no particular advantage.

"The Brown bill, which creates a Board of Education to appoint the Superintendent of Public Instruction, is objectionable because, while it gives the board the power of appointment, it is so restricted that it could not make any rules that would abrogate the powers and duties now vested in the Superintendent. The outline of the Brown bill is political, and that feature is particularly objectionable."

It is understood that the Catholics of the State charge Superintendent of Education Skinner with being biased by religious prejudices in the conduct of his office, and for this reason they would prefer to have the Department of Education abolished and the Regents given full control. The Regents have shown a disposition to make some allowances of State money to sectarian schools.

SHEEHAN DEMOCRACY LOSES.

Secretary of State Refuses to Accept Certificates on Voting.

ALBANY, April 1.—Secretary of State John F. O'Brien has declined to file the certificates of the Greater New York Democracy which purport to show that the candidates of that party received 10,000 votes at the last election. The County Boards of Canvassers, in canvassing the vote for Governor, did not separate the ballots cast by those who voted for Bird S. Coler as the candidate of the Greater New York Democracy from the ballots voted for him as the candidate of the regular Democrats.

The Secretary of State decided not to file the certificates on the ground that he had no authority to do so, as they did not set forth the official canvass of the vote by the County Boards of Canvassers. If the Greater New York Democracy does not succeed in getting the certificates filed it cannot use a party emblem and have a party column on the official ballot.

FOR MUNICIPAL LIGHT PLANT.

Merchants' Association and Labor Organization to be Represented at Assembly Hearing To-day.

The Merchants' Association of New York will be represented at the hearing before the Committee on Cities of the Assembly to be held to-day in support of the bill prepared by Robert Grier Monroe, Commissioner of Water Supply, Gas, and Electricity, introduced in the Assembly by Mr. Finch, for the purpose of conferring upon the city the power to establish an electric lighting plant. The chief argument on behalf of the association will be made by Mr. Dougherty.

The association has prepared an elaborate chart, showing the comparative charges for electric street lights in New York and sixty-eight other cities, showing the price per year for 2,000-candle power arc lights, all night every night in the year. The list of cities begins with Evansville, Ind., where the price is $60, and ends with New York. (Manhattan and the Bronx,) where the price is $140.

A delegation of labor leaders also will leave this city for Albany to-day to be present at the hearing. In the delegation will be James Holland, President, and Alfred J. Boulton, delegate of the Central Federated Union; Timothy Healy, President of the State Congress of Knights of Labor; Thomas Rock, Master Workman, and John Eberpard, Secretary of District Assembly 49, Knights of Labor, and ex-Secretary of the Central Federated Union John S. Henry. The delegation is strongly in favor of the bill.

At the regular meeting of the Building Trades Section of the Central Federated Union, held at the University Settlement last night, a resolution favoring the measure was unanimously adopted.

Centennial Organ Recital.

William C. Carl will give his one hundredth free organ recital with a festival programme in the First Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Twelfth Street, New York, to-morrow evening, assisted by Miss Kathrin Hilke, solo soprano of the Fifth Avenue Cathedral; Miss Maud Morgan, harpiste, and Hans Kronold, 'cellist. The programme will contain organ works in manuscript composed especially for this recital by Theodore Dubois, director of the Paris Conservatoire, and two English writers, William Faulkes and William Wolstenholme. The recital is free to the public and terminates the Lenten series.

RAMAPO AGAIN A FACTOR

Vast Benefit to the Company Seen in Water Storage Bill.

New York Board Presents a Measure Which Would Prevent Floods and Also Safeguard Home Rule.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 1.—Those who were opposing the Lewis Water Storage bill believe they have discovered the ghost of Ramapo in its provisions. The Ramapo Company controls the watersheds of the Catskills. Under the provisions of the Lewis bill, it is asserted, this company could, upon the petition of a few property holders, have dams constructed in the Catskills which would give it the finest water supply in the State, and the cost would be assessed upon the owners of abutting property, while the supply itself would be the possession of the Ramapo Company.

Assemblyman Stevens to-day introduced a bill drafted by the attorneys of the New York Board of Trade and Transportation, which is intended as a substitute for the Lewis bill. It legislates the Water Storage Commission out of existence. It expressly provides that no dam shall be constructed which would affect the level of any lake in the Adirondack Park. Local authorities may report that their territory is subject to damage from floods. The State Engineer is then to devise a plan of relief, and the Supreme Court is to appoint an appraising commission to recommend how the cost of the proposed improvement shall be apportioned. The whole matter is to be referred to the succeeding Legislature for action.

The State Engineer is to estimate the cost of each dam, what its water power will be, and how much can be realized from the rental of the power. The revenue so derived is to be applied both to the cost and maintenance of the work.

The Board of Trade and Transportation makes the following comparison of the Lewis bill with the bill introduced by Mr. Stevens:

"First—The Lewis bill is unconstitutional on several accounts, and would accomplish nothing in the relief from floods. Some of its friends admit this to be true.

"Second—The Lewis bill taxes the whole cost of construction, and the cost of maintenance forever upon the localities benefited. The Stevens bill applies the revenues derived from the water power to pay for maintenance, and, if sufficient, to pay for construction also.

"Third—The Lewis bill permits any individual to petition for the improvement and taxes the cost on localities affected without their consent or approval and without allowing them to know in advance how much the improvement will cost. The Stevens bill allows none but the constituted officials of a locality to petition. Then when the cost has been carefully estimated, after complete surveys, the localities affected may take steps to have the improvement carried out or may indefinitely postpone the improvements, as they may deem proper.

"Fourth—If revenues from rentals of water power were not sufficient to pay all the cost of construction and maintenance, the Stevens bill provides that any balance necessary to raise taxation would be apportioned in the districts affected by Commissioners of Appraisal resident in the locality, familiar with conditions and appointed by the Judge of the Supreme Court who would review such apportionment. The Lewis bill provides that the apportionment of costs shall be made by the Water Storage Commission, who would be unfamiliar with the localities.

"Fifth—If the Lewis bill should pass it will probably be contested as to its constitutionality, and several years may therefore elapse before a decision would be reached and relief from flood troubles would be indefinitely delayed. If the Stevens bill is passed no such questions will arise, and all information necessary to intelligent action with reference to every locality had petitioned would be in the hands of the next Legislature.

"Sixth—The Lewis bill is unbusinesslike. No man, however reckless of his wealth, would authorize another or consent to another going ahead with the construction of works of such magnitude without first getting an estimate of the cost and making a bargain or contract. The Stevens bill allows every locality to know the exact cost and to consider and measure the benefits to be derived, and then leaves the determination and initiation absolutely with the locality affected instead of in the hands of a commission having no interest in the locality.

"Seventh—Under the Lewis bill the Water Storage Commission could decide to do nothing toward relieving a locality from flood troubles if the commission was so disposed or was indifferent. Under the Stevens bill each locality retains the discretion to do something or do nothing, as it deems proper."

Excise Bill Sent to the Governor.

ALBANY, April 1.—The Excise Tax bill was sent to Gov. Odell to-day, ready for his signature, and was immediately forwarded to Attorney General Cunneen, for inspection as to its form, with the request that it be returned to the Executive Chamber at the earliest possible moment.

Adjournment of the Legislature.

ALBANY, April 1.—Mr. Rogers, the majority leader, offered a concurrent resolution in the Assembly this morning providing that the date for final adjournment of the Legislature be Friday, April 17. It was adopted unanimously and sent to the Senate, where it was referred to the Finance Committee.

Increase in New York Corporations.

ALBANY, April 1.—The great increase in the number of new corporations being formed in this State has practically resulted in doubling the receipts of the Secretary of State's office in recent years. For the quarter ended March 31 the net earnings of the department for certified copies of corporation papers and other office records aggregated $21,961, as compared with earnings of $10,477 last year and $13,574 in 1901.

ABANDONED AN AUTOMOBILE.

Hungry Bootblack Guarded Machine Nine Hours in Ferry House for Well-Dressed Stranger.

Angelo Morello a bootblack, was industriously plying his trade at the East Thirty-fourth Street Ferry house at 11 o'clock yesterday morning when a stylishly dressed man about thirty-five years old and wearing a chauffeur's cap rode up to the ferry house in a gasoline automobile. The machine was a two-seated affair and black enameled. The man jumped out and walked up to Morello.

"Say, my good fellow," he said, "just jump in here and watch this machine for me. I will pay you well."

Morello obeyed with alacrity. The stranger then disappeared.

It was 3 o'clock in the afternoon before Morello realized that the absence of the stranger was rather protracted. His stomach, too, gave evidence of the fact that his lunch box, reposing under a seat in the ferry house, had remained untouched. But Morello feared to leave the machine in charge of any one else, lest the stranger would return and he miss the "tip." So the bootblack held out until the pangs of hunger became so acute that he could stand it no longer.

It was after 5 o'clock last night when he notified Policeman Strohmeyer of the East Thirty-fifth Street Station of his predicament. There were tears in Morello's eyes as he related the story and wanted to know if he didn't have a claim against the owner of the automobile for his faithful services as watchman. He said that it was probable that he had lost $2 by the transaction as it was.

Strohmeyer looked the machine over, but could find no initials or number. So he telephoned to Capt. Shire, who called out the reserves and asked for a volunteer to operate the machine from the ferry to the station. All pleaded ignorance of knowing how to run an automobile. Shire then picked out six strong men and marched them to the ferry house. Half an hour later the men pushed the big machine up in front of the station house.

Several livery stable keepers in the neighborhood refused to harbor the machine for the night, but one was found in Thirty-sixth Street who would take the risk.

Capt. Shire has sent out an alarm for the owner of the machine, and says if that forgetful person will call at the station he will be told how to go about it to recover his property.

NEW CLUB IS LAUNCHED.

An Exclusive Organization with Peculiar Advantages, and It Is Called the Brook.

Some of the most prominent clubmen in this city have launched a new club, like no other in New York. The prevailing idea is uninterrupted service twenty-four hours a day every day in the year. Having in mind the lines from Tennyson—

Men may come and men may go,
But I go on forever,

the founders, men who stand foremost in New York society, have named their new organization the Brook Club. Its members, every one of them belonging to the Union, Knickerbocker, Metropolitan, or other well-known clubs, will not cast aside their old ties, but they intend to reap advantages from the Brook that can be had nowhere else.

The feature that will make the Brook wholly original among city clubs, however, is its way of taking new members. To belong to the Brook a man must receive an invitation, offered voluntarily and without any knowledge on his part that his name has ever been considered. Since rumors concerning the club have been circulating and some of its members' identity has been guessed, many men have waited in vain for an invitation.

The home of the new club will be east of Fifth Avenue, two or three blocks above Thirty-fourth Street. From the time the doors are first opened they will never be locked. In the Summer, when a member's house is closed, he can find at the Brook, any time of day or night, all the comforts he desires. The grill will be operated as in the Beefsteak Club, in London. There will be no writing down of orders, and to all outward appearance the service will be just as in a private house, the record of orders being kept outside the dining room.

In a large room there will be a long table, on which candles will burn from dusk to dawn. About this, instead of cornered off in groups, the men will gather to chat or read.

No resident of New York who does not belong to the Brook will be asked inside its doors. "No local visitors" is one of the rules. Even foreign visitors will be invited to the house rarely, and much caution will be observed in choosing guests. The maximum membership is 100—a fact which alone makes the Brook distinct from all other clubs to which the members belong. They, however, few as they are, are not all New Yorkers. Several well-known men of Boston, Chicago, and Philadelphia have accepted invitations to the Brook.

MARCH TREASURY FIGURES.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The monthly statement of the public debt shows that at the close of business March 31, the total debt, less cash in the Treasury, amounted to $939,603,919, an increase for the month of $1,631,021. This increase is accounted for by a corresponding decrease in the amount of cash on hand. The debt is recapitulated as follows:

Interest-bearing debt	$914,541,370
Debt on which interest has ceased since maturity	1,220,100
Debt bearing no interest	396,754,437
Total	$1,312,525,907

This total does not include $690,007,069 in certificates and Treasury notes outstanding, which are offset by an equal amount of coin on hand held for their redemption.

The cash in the Treasury is classified as follows:

Trust funds	380,007,069
General fund	165,217,767
In National bank depositaries	160,150,488
Total	$1,355,575,325

The comparative statement of the Government receipts and expenditures show that for the month of March, 1903, the total receipts were $45,435,494, and the disbursements $44,987,587, leaving a surplus for the month of $447,847.

The receipts from the several sources of revenue are given as follows:

		Increase.
Customs	$23,709,902	$2,000,000
Internal revenue	16,625,754	*3,000,000

*Decrease.

The expenditures on account of the War Department were $12,278,918, increase $2,000,000; navy $7,374,344, increase $1,200,000.

For the last nine months the receipts exceed the expenditures by $33,629,223.

The monthly coinage statement issued by the Director of the Mint shows that during March the total coinage was $8,777,627, as follows: Gold, $6,879,920; silver, $1,505,987; minor coins, $391,710.

Bonds for the Albany and Hudson.

ALBANY, April 1.—The State Board of Railroad Commissioners to-day authorized the Albany and Hudson Railroad Company, controlled by New York City capitalists, to issue mortgage bonds to the amount of $2,000,000. Of that amount $1,500,000 is to be issued at once, while the remaining $500,000 will be sold at some future time. These are the bonds which are necessary to carry out the reorganization plan by which the Albany and Hudson Railway passed from the control of the Albany and Hudson Railway and Power Company to the Albany and Hudson Railroad Company. Several severe accidents were the cause of the transfer.

Erie's Purchase in Jersey City.

The Erie Railroad Company has purchased two pieces of property on Pavonia Avenue, Jersey City, adjoining its station. One was formerly a lumber yard kept by Charles H. O'Neill, to whose heirs the company paid $88,000. The other is a plot occupied by a saloon and boarding house. The owner, Richard Rue of New York, received $33,000. Louis Woerman received $13,000 for his lease, which had seven years to run.

MISSING SILK MERCHANT

Suicide Theory Accepted by Relatives of Adolphe Openhym.

Man That Resembled Him Jumped from High Bridge—His Business Affairs Said to be Prosperous.

Suicide is the theory that has been accepted by police and relatives in accounting for the disappearance of Adolphe Openhym, senior member of William Openhym & Sons, silk merchants, at Grand and Mercer Streets. Mr. Openhym was missed from his home, at 352 Riverside Drive, on Monday last, and a chain of circumstantial evidence leads to the conclusion that he jumped into the Harlem River from High Bridge at about 11 o'clock that morning.

He was seen to board an Amsterdam Avenue car, northward bound, at about 9:30 o'clock Monday, after his usual horseback ride, and at the hour first mentioned, Frank McConville, a bridge tender, saw a man resembling Mr. Openhym walk quickly out on the bridge, lay aside his hat and umbrella, and jump into the water. The bridge tender was powerless to prevent the suicide, and he reported the occurrence to the police of the West One Hundred and Fifty-second Street Station, turning over the hat and umbrella that were left on the bridge. They were identified as belonging to Mr. Openhym by a card in the hat, bearing the name of his business firm and its telephone number.

The High Bridge police notified the family, which consists of Mrs. Openhym and two sons, Carl, who is a junior at Harvard, and a younger boy. A detective agency was engaged to search for the missing merchant, and the Harlem River was dragged. On Tuesday afternoon the body of a man, somewhat resembling that of Mr. Openhym in build, was taken from the water, but the clothing and personal characteristics did not correspond with those of the merchant.

Coroner O'Gorman said last night that he had been authorized by a member of the family to announce that a reward of $2,000 had been offered for the recovery of the body of Mr. Openhym. He remarked that he did not think there was anything suspicious in the case.

Men in six boats have searched for the body, going from High Bridge to King's Bridge seven times. Two men were on the river last night.

No reason has been assigned for the supposed suicide. Mr. Openhym, while a very active man, whose interests were varied in business and social life, was, so far as known, in the best of health and spirits. His home life was said to be of the happiest, and a statement issued by his firm yesterday afternoon declared that the condition of the business was "highly prosperous."

The statement, referring to the business only in the particular mentioned, was the only official information given out as from the family yesterday afternoon except in a brief interview by the son Carl, who arrived from Cambridge.

The statement declared in part:

Neither his business associates, his social friends, nor any member of his family can ascribe any reason for the theory of self-destruction, and they are loath to believe that such is the case. If the evidence adduced with respect to his movements on the bridge are correct, it is their opinion that it must have been the result of sudden illness.

Carl Openhym said: "My father's affairs were in the best of shape so far as I know, and I am at a loss to assign any reason for his disappearance."

Adolphe Openhym, his brother August, Robert B. Fresch, and Albert Stern, constituted the firm of William Openhym & Sons, which was founded fifty years ago by William Openhym, father of Adolphe and August. It had a rating of A1, and its business amounted to five or six million dollars a year. Mr. Openhym belonged to the Reform Club, the City Club, the National Arts Club, the Nineteenth Century Club, the Citizen's Union, and the Society for Ethical Culture, of which he was Treasurer. He was also a member of the Chamber of Commerce. The description given by the official statement is: Age, 49 years; height, 5 feet 10 inches; weight, about 185 pounds. Regular features; hair of light brown tinged with gray; beard light gray.

CARPET BEATING COST $25.

Brooklyn Woman Fined as an Example —Only a Little Strip, but the Justices Would Not Relent.

A fine of $25 was imposed on a woman by the Justices of the Court of Special Sessions, Brooklyn, yesterday for beating a carpet in the public highway. When arrested the woman was taken in a coal cart to the police station.

Mrs. Mary Scher of 352 Nostrand Avenue, according to the evidence, was engaged at her Spring housecleaning about a week ago, and, taking a strip of ingrain carpet about sixteen inches wide and a yard long, to the curb in front of her house, she shook it and afterward beat it with a small brush.

Two policemen told her to desist and she told them to mind their own business. They arrested her and bundled her into a passing cart. She was tried before Justices Fitzgerald, Forker, and Keady. Justice Fitzgerald, at the conclusion of the trial, said:

"This beating of carpets in public streets is a menace to health. We will make an example of you and fine you $25. If the fine is not paid you will stand committed to jail for twenty days."

The Corporation Counsel, who prosecuted the case, declared the fine to be excessive, and asked that it be remitted, but Justice Fitzgerald declined to do that, and the woman paid the fine.

The Travelers' Indemnity Company of Hartford has been chartered by the Connecticut State Legislature, with a capital stock of $250,000.

Embezzlements and defalcations in the United States during February, as collated in the current issue of The Monthly Bulletin of the Fidelity and Casualty Company, aggregated $717,051.74 and were divided as follows:

Benevolent associations	$15,765.00
Banks	150,307.18
Court trusts	555.00
Firms	283,416.56
Federal and State	27,139.05
Municipal	116,562.00
Transportation companies	3,405.00
Miscellaneous	87,962.00

The Insurance Press says "the Missouri Legislature has been the storm centre in the West this year so far as insurance legislation is concerned. Of the three bills in which the insurance and business men were specially interested, only the one permitting the use of the coinsurance clause was passed, and that was limited to cities of over 100,000 population. Several bills, such as that authorizing the Insurance Superintendent to make rates, and requiring the publication of annual statements in two papers of each county, passed one House but were defeated in the other. Only five insurance measures got through, most of them of slight importance."

CAMBRIDGE BEAT OXFORD

In the Annual Boat Race on the Thames.

Winning Light Blues Completely Outclassed Their Opponents from the Start—History of the Race.

PUTNEY, England, April 1.—Cambridge won the sixtieth annual inter-university boat race from Oxford today by about six lengths. This makes the twenty-sixth victory for the "light blue" oarsmen, Oxford having won thirty-three times; the race of 1877 resulted in a tie. The race today was rowed, as usual, on the Thames, between Putney and Mortlake, a distance of four and a quarter miles.

Rowing with immense power, the Cambridge men completely outclassed those of Oxford and increased their lead with every stroke, with the exception of a brief moment at the Crab Tree, when Monier-Williams, the Oxford stroke, spurted slightly and decreased the opening between the boats. Nelson, the Cambridge stroke, however, quickly responded and everything in the nature of a race was over. Oxford made one more effort after passing Thorneycroft's, but Nelson, quickening his stroke, again demonstrated the superior strength of his crew. The Oxonians maintained good form throughout and finished the course gamely, but they were never able to push Cambridge in the least.

Excepting the fact that rain was falling, the weather conditions were favorable. A light wind was blowing, but the water was smooth. Oxford won the toss and chose the Surrey side of the river. But the choice carried little advantage under the prevailing conditions.

Cambridge was first afloat, quickly followed by Oxford. As the crews paddled down to the stakeboat they were heartily cheered. The start was made at 5:33 P. M., both boats getting away well.

Cambridge immediately shot ahead, rowing a stroke of 38 to Oxford's 36, and was leading by a length at Craven Steps.

Cambridge was still ahead at Harrod's Stores, and by the time the Saccharine Works were reached, had increased her lead to two lengths.

Cambridge was still two lengths ahead at Hammersmith Bridge and rowing very steadily. Passing the Lead Mills Cambridge was still going ahead. Both crews were rowing 36 strokes to the minute.

The light blues continued to gain, and passing Thorneycroft's four lengths separated the boats. Then Oxford made a brave effort and drew up so that Cambridge was only three-quarters of a length ahead at the Crabtree. Then Nelson quickened his stroke, and again Cambridge forged ahead. By the time the Devonshire Meadows were reached Cambridge was three lengths ahead, and the race had become a procession.

Cambridge shot under Barnes Bridge three and a half lengths in front, and won by about six lengths, Oxford, although hopelessly beaten, rowed out the course in good form. The official time was 19:32½. The record is 18:47, made by Oxford, in 1869, and again by Cambridge in 1900.

Such a procession failed to delight any enthusiasm from the drenched thousands of spectators. All the Cambridge crew finished in good condition. Drinkwater and one or two others of the Oxford men were somewhat badly done up, but Milburn, the American member of the Oxford crew, looked as fresh as when he started.

The crews and weights in yesterday's race, according to advance advices received here, were as follows:

CAMBRIDGE.	Pounds.
Bow—W. H. Chapman (Third Trinity)	154
2—E. H. Thomas (Third Trinity)	176½
3—R. Beale (First Trinity)	156½
4—C. W. H. Taylor (Third Trinity)	181
5—S. Carter (King's)	157
6—H. E. Gryll (First Trinity)	167
7—Edwards-Moss (Third Trinity)	177

OXFORD.
Bow—C. A. Willis (Magdalen)	157
2—A. K. Graham (Balliol)	161½
3—A. de L. Long (New)	180½
4—F. S. Kelly, (Balliol)	197
5—W. Adams (University)	180½
6—D. Milburn (Lincoln, American)	179½
7—C. D. Drinkwater, (Wadham)	168
Stroke—S. G. Monier-Williams (University)	170
Coxswain—R. H. T. Bere (Keble)	120

All the men of the Cambridge crew, except Carter, Beale, and Scott, were in last year's boat, but only four of the Oxford men—Long, Adams, Milburn, and Drinkwater—were in the race last year. D. Milburn is an American, a son of John D. Milburn, a lawyer of Buffalo, N. Y. His brother, John G. Milburn, Jr., rowed in the Oxford boat last year.

The first race between the two universities was rowed in 1829 over a two and a quarter mile course from Hamilton to Henley Bridge, and was won by Oxford. Seven years after the second race was rowed from Westminster to Putney, a distance of five miles, and was won by Cambridge. The next four races, in 1839, 1840, 1841, and 1842, were rowed over the same course, Cambridge winning the first three and Oxford the fourth.

In 1845 the course from Putney to Mortlake, measuring about four and a quarter miles, was selected, and has been used ever since. Since 1856 the race has been rowed annually.

The first race in outriggers was rowed in 1846, and the first race in which either university rowed in the present style of eights, without a keel, and in which either rowed with round oars, was in 1857. Both crews used the same kind of oars and boats. In 1873 both crews used sliding seats for the first time.

The record of the race from the time of its first rowing to date is as follows:

SHAMROCK III.'S SECOND TRIAL.

Cup Challenger Shows Superiority Over Shamrock I. in Fresh Weather Spin.

GOUROCK, Scotland, April 1.—Rain was falling over the Clyde this morning, and the two Shamrocks remained at their moorings during the forenoon. At noon the weather temporarily cleared and orders were issued for the racing sails to be set on both yachts. The rain soon again began falling, but as a party from Glasgow were the guests of Sir Thomas Lipton on the Erin the preparations for a racing trial were continued.

A club topsail was set on the cup challenger to-day for the first time, and the Shamrock I. also sent up a big club topsail.

As the two yachts were fetching out at the shelter of the bay there was another sudden change in the weather, and a hard, westerly squall staggered the boats and laid them nearly flat. A few minutes later the gear of the staysail of the Shamrock I. was carried away, and the sail went down with a run. The Shamrock III. stood the test handsomely, and both yachts set off on what promised to be a splendid fresh weather trial.

All the way down the channel the yachts had a hard reaching trial in a strong wind. It was the point of sailing in which the Shamrock I. had hitherto excelled, but she showed herself quite unable to hold the new challenger. The latter gained on every mile and over the distance, about seven miles, which was covered in thirty-five minutes, the Shamrock III. gained half a mile. She carried her sails handsomely and went fast and clean through the water.

The trial finished with a windward turn across the Firth. The wind continued fresh and the Shamrock III.'s gains demonstrated that going close hauled she is easily faster than the older boat.

Sir Thomas Lipton after the trial said he considered that the gain of Shamrock III. over the ex-challenger on the broad reach was probably the best thing she has done. He doubts whether any yacht afloat could have beaten Shamrock I. under similar conditions. Sir Thomas admits that the challenger made less gain in the windward turn to-day than in the light winds of yesterday, but he explains this by the fact that the new gear needed constant attention.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 1.—In an exhibition baseball game played here to-day the New York National League team defeated the Louisville nine by the narrow margin of one run, the score being 6 to 5. Mathewson had plenty of speed but poor control of the ball, as he gave three men their bases, while Cronin struck out five men in the five innings which he pitched. The local players tested the ability of the visitors to the utmost and came very close to beating them in the ninth inning on Bresnahan's error, hits by Bohannan and Kirwin, and Odwell's bunt, Bohannan being declared out on a close play at the plate, Mathewson to Warner. Meeting of Jockey Club Stewards.

A meeting of the Stewards of The Jockey Club was held at the office of August Belmont, 23 Nassau Street, New York, yesterday, those present being August Belmont, F. R. Hitchcock, Andrew Miller, H. K. Knapp.

On motion, duly seconded, one hundred dollars were appropriated for the benefit of ex-Jockey James Tribe, and the Treasurer was authorized to charge the same to the fund for disabled jockeys. RACING AT BENNINGS.

Three Favorites Won on a Heavy Track—Jockey Miles Set Down.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Delightful weather and a card that promised lots of sport drew a big crowd to the races at Bennings to-day. The track was heavy and spotty, but the going was perfectly safe. Three favorites won, Judge, Examiner, and Alsatian, the first two being at odds of 1 to 3. Redfern, Gannon, and Haack each rode two winners. After a thorough investigation of yesterday's fifth race the Stewards to-day set down Jockey Miles for the remainder of the meeting because of what they regarded as his suspicious ride on the favorite, Carroll D. The case will be referred by the Stewards to the Jockey Club for further action. Summary:

Princeton Hammer Thrower Injured.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 1.—H. M. Bradley, 1904, of Bloomfield, N. J., who played one of the guard positions in the Yale-Princeton football game here last Fall, chipped the point of a bone in the elbow joint of his left arm here to-day. Bradley is practicing the hammer-throw under Do Witt's direction for several days, and to-day, while making his turn in preparation for a throw, slipped and fell, landing on his left elbow. He is now in the infirmary here. The point of the bone is badly splintered, but the doctors expect no serious results.

WRESTLING AT N. Y. A. C.

Five Championship Contests—J. R. Branch, Jr., Wins the 125-Pound Class.

Five wrestling competitions were held last night in the gymnasium of the New York Athletic Club to determine the wrestling championships of the club. The majority of the bouts were closely contested. One of the most spirited was the final bout in the 125-pound class, between James R. Branch, Jr., and A. Nargones. Neither had secured a fall in the first bout of ten minutes, and an additional six-minute bout was given. After an unusually clever exhibition young Branch threw his young Cuban opponent by a bar lock and body hold within two seconds of the time limit. The new champion is only sixteen years old, and never took part in a contest before.

Hugh Jaeckel won the 133-pound championship. R. Cochrane won in the 145-pound class. T. Olsen got the award in the 158-pound class, and Marshall Page won the heavyweight championship.

The summaries are:

125-Pound Class.—First Trial Bout—A. Nargones beat W. W. Swan, with a bar and neck hold. Time—3:27. Second trial—T. R. Branch, Jr., beat F. B. Roundey, with a half Nelson. Time—4:08. Third trial—A. Nargones beat C. C. Koep, with a full Nelson. Time—5:27. Final Bout—Branch beat Nargones, with a bar and body hold, in an additional six-minute bout. First bout, 10 minutes; fall in second. 5:59.

Heavyweight Class.—First Trial Bout—Marshall Page beat Dudley Newton, with an arm and leg hold. Time—6:14. Second Trial Bout—Dudley Newton beat H. V. Campbell, with a roll fall. Time—5:15. Final Bout—Page beat Campbell, with a crotch hold. Time—5:15.

ROSS WINS AT GOLF.

Professional Gets the Open Event in the Pinehurst Club Tournament.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 1.—Donald J. Ross, professional of the Pinehurst Golf Club, won the open thirty-six hole event, the closing feature of the United North and South Amateur Championship Tournament here to-day, with a card of 147 strokes. Sterling Beckwith of Cleveland, Ohio, finished fourth, tying with Alexander H. Findlay of Boston, at 159.

Pool at The Strollers.

Fifteen clubs are represented in the inter-club individual pool championship tournament which was begun yesterday at The Strollers' clubhouse, 67 Madison Avenue. Last year there were eighteen competitors, and Bradish J. Carroll of the Union Club won the championship, the prize for which is the Colby Cup, presented by Howard A. Colby of The Strollers. This trophy has to be won twice by the same person before it becomes his property. In addition to this trophy a special cup is presented to the champion of each year. In all twenty-seven players have entered for the present tournament, which will conclude next Tuesday.

Four games were scheduled for the opening day, but only two were played, the others going to C. V. N. Rudolffe of the home club and G. W. Curtis of the Racquet and Tennis Club by forfeit. Dr. Parker Syms of the Calumet Club defeated Hubert Vas, National Arts Club, by the close score of 125 to 123, and T. D. Hooper of the New York Club won from E. B. Alvord, Jr., New York Yacht Club, by 125 to 101.

Court Tennis Championship.

BOSTON, April 1.—Play in the National court tennis championship competition began to-day at the Boston Athletic Association. The first match was between O. S. Campbell of New York and A. Potter of the Boston Athletic Association, and the former won in five hard sets, 2—6, 6—4, 6—0, 7—4, 6—1. The men were very evenly matched, but Campbell's superior staying qualities brought him the victory.

C. E. Sands of New York and L. M. Stockton of the Boston Athletic Association made a five-set match of their contest, and this, like the previous match, went to the New York representative, Mr. Sands winning, 6—3, 3—6, 6—0, 6—1, 6—2.

The entries for this year's event comprised seven players, there being but one withdrawal, that of H. H. Hunnewell.

To-morrow's games will be: Campbell vs. Sands; Morgan vs. Crane.

Columbia Basket Ball Champions.

Columbia juniors yesterday won the interclass basket ball championship of the university by defeating the sophomores in the Columbia gymnasium. The score was 23 to 1, but despite this one-sided tally the game was fast and exciting. The sophomores suffered largely from lack of practice, while the juniors had the advantage of having on their team three Varsity men. The line-up:

Juniors.	Position.	Sophomores.
Fisher	Forward	Cuthel
Tyler	Forward	Hess
O'Connell	Centre	Trubenbach
Rogers	Guard	Kaye
Gillies	Guard	Thorpe

Goals from field—O'Connell (4,) Rogers, (3,) Fisher, (1,) Tyler. Goals from foul—Fisher, (3.) Cuthel. Time of game—Twenty and fifteen minute halves. Referee—Mr. Hurley, Columbia.

Champion Lightweights to Wrestle.

A wrestling bout for the light-weight championship of the world will take place to-night in the gymnasium of the New Polo Athletic Club, One Hundred and Twenty-ninth Street and Park Avenue, between George Bothner of this city and Tom Riley of England. Bothner has defeated every man in his class that he has met in America, and as Riley is the best 135-pound wrestler among the English experts, the bout has attracted a great deal of interest and several wagers have been made on the outcome.

DOUBLE SUICIDE IN PATERSON.

Young Stothard and His Bride Apparently Despaired of Getting Parental Forgiveness.

PATERSON, N. J., April 1.—A double tragedy was enacted at Lakeview, a suburb of Paterson, this morning, a young man and his bride ending their lives by taking carbolic acid. The victims were Thomas S. Stothard, twenty-one years old, of Hazel Street, Lakeview, and his wife, Louisa C. Stothard, twenty-three years old. Stothard was formerly employed as a bartender in New York. His parents objected to his marrying Louisa Chusser.

Stothard had not been working recently, as he was in bad health and was threatened with blindness. An uncle had been supplying him with money to obtain medical treatment. He went to the uncle on Friday last and asked for money to pay his expenses in going to New York, where he said he wished to consult a doctor about his eyes.

The uncle had no cash at hand, but offered the young man a check. This he refused to take and went away, apparently in an angry mood. He went to New York that day and the same evening wrote a letter to his mother in which he said that he and Miss Chusser had been married since last September. He inclosed the marriage certificate and said that he and his bride were coming to Lakeview to seek forgiveness.

The bodies of Stothard and his bride were found lying in the back yard of the elder Stothard's Lakeview home this morning. It is believed that they arrived in Lakeview on a late train last night and intended to beg the forgiveness of Stothard's parents, but that fearing they would meet with a cold reception and be turned away, finally decided to end their lives.

GIRL TORN BY DOG FIRST THOUGHT OF HER MOTHER.

Little Ella Sullivan Had a New Baby Sister, and She Feared the Effect of Knowledge of Her Injury.

Although suffering from the jagged bite of a bull terrier, which had sunk its teeth nearly to the bone in her left leg, Ella Sullivan, nine years old, yesterday afternoon begged that the news of the accident be kept from her sick mother.

"Please don't tell mamma," she pleaded, after a big policeman had borne her in his arms to the station. "My papa is away at work, and my mamma has a new little girl, and the doctor said we mustn't annoy her. Don't tell her; I'm afraid she'll worry."

Leaving her home, 304 East Sixtieth Street, at school time yesterday, Ella hastened westward and turned into Third Avenue. As she reached Sixty-third Street and was about to turn again toward the public school in that street near Lexington Avenue, she brushed against a bull terrier named Bess, led by its master, Robert Flynn of 208 East Sixty-third Street. Instantly the dog sank its teeth in the child's leg. It did not let go despite Flynn's efforts until just as Policeman Talasco of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station, who was near by, rushed to the child's aid.

Talasco ordered Flynn to follow him, which the boy did, after sending Bess home in charge of an acquaintance. Taking the child in his arms, the officer ran with it to the station, whence he sent a hurry call to the hospital. The ambulance surgeon found the wound made by the dog's teeth so serious that he took her away. The child was not able to leave the hospital until the wound had been well bandaged.

The police disregarded Ella's request, and informed her mother of the accident. The result was that both mother and daughter appeared in the Yorkville Police Court when Flynn was taken there later in the afternoon. Mrs. Sullivan having risen from her bed to appeal to the Magistrate to have the dog shot.

Magistrate Flammer asked Flynn if the dog had ever bitten anybody else. Flynn said it had not, and explained that Ella stepped on the dog's foot in passing, which was acknowledged by the child. Magistrate said the dog ought to be shot, but the Magistrate took a different view and ordered Flynn discharged.

FACTORIES IN DANGER.

Three Alarms for Fire in Seventh Avenue Building—Detective Kelly's Diamond Pin Stolen.

Three alarms were sent in for a fire that broke out last evening in the three-story factory building at 322 and 324 Seventh Avenue, and caused damage to the extent of $5,000. The second and third alarms were sent out on account of the proximity of other factory buildings.

The premises in which the fire broke out were occupied by Frank H. Graf & Co., dealers in brass goods, who had the basement and first and second stories. In the third story were H. Tresal, bronzing and plating; William Hart, composition ornaments, and the North American Leather Company.

The blaze started from some unknown cause in the rear of the first story, and spread to the second and third stories. In the rear of the factory occupied by Beck & Co., wall paper manufacturers, and the building at 326 Seventh Avenue, used by the T. M. Stewart Carpet Cleaning Company, were threatened, but in about twenty minutes after the first alarm the firemen had the fire under control.

Detectives Cray and Kelly of the Central Office were in the crowd that watched the fire. Kelly felt a tug at his diamond scarfpin and saw a colored man hurry away. He and Cray followed the man, and after a long chase caught him. He was locked up as a suspicious person, although the pin was not found on him.

The man, who described himself as William Thompson, thirty-one years old, of 141 West Thirty-third Street, said that he did not take the pin; that it was taken by a man who was with him. He added that if he had known Kelly was a policeman he would have stood still and let the other man run. The detectives say that the pin "has got to come back."

It is evident that in going to Iowa for his Secretary of the Treasury President ROOSEVELT did not appreciably diminish the public stock of great minds in the boundless West.

THE FUTURE OF SOUTH AMERICA.

A contributor to The North American Review for April who signs his article "An American Business Man," writes in no temperate spirit of the political sins and incapacities of the people of the Latin-American republics, and incidentally of the Monroe Doctrine as "a bar to civilization." From his sweeping judgment of condemnation he excepts but three—Mexico, Chile, and the Argentine. We presume he quite overlooked Cuba, which certainly is entitled on the showing she has so far made to go upon the preferred list. As to all the others, and particularly as to Colombia and Venezuela, the writer of the article is altogether pessimistic. He sees no good in them, and apparently cherishes no hope that they may develop the capacity for orderly and honest self-government.

It is only because there is reason to believe that this article expresses the opinion of many Americans who are well-informed concerning Latin-American conditions that it calls for consideration. It is, as we have said, not a temperate piece of writing. For the most part this American business man furiously abuses the governing class in the South American republics, a class which constitutes about 10 per cent. of the population. It is of mixed blood, usually Spanish, negro, and native Indian, and the resulting hybrid is in the judgment of the writer about the worst possible product of racial intermixture. "As a rule, this class is composed of adventurers, ambitious and unprincipled military men, many outright criminals, others whose lives have been devoted to intrigue and to the machinations for which these countries are noted; and, taken altogether, it is the most aggressive, pretentious, good-for-nothing, nondescript, villainous, treacherous set of semi-banditti which was ever organized on the face of the earth, held together by the cohesive power of public plunder and by the ambition to tyrannise over others." The tyranny here referred to is exercised in particular over foreign merchants and the native Spanish families, who through the possession of money come to be looked upon as the natural prey of the banditti. The military chieftains and dictators are not squeamish in their demands for tribute. Should the victim refuse to pay he may find himself locked up in jail, his property confiscated, his family insulted and terrified, and even worse things may happen. For these reasons, only the hardiest and most resourceful Germans, Englishmen, or Americans are able to do business in these "little convulsive republics."

The remaining 90 per cent. of the population is made up of the Spaniards of pure blood, probably not more than 10 per cent. of the whole; of the peons, who are the farmers, laborers, small traders, cattlemen, fishermen, and mechanics, constituting nearly 80 per cent., and the few native Indians of pure blood, who are quite left out of the account. The Spaniards, who are persons of cultivation and highly civilized, do not mix at all in politics. The peons are a spiritless rabble who take to the woods when trouble impends between two rival political and military chieftains. Thus it happens that the Biancos, Crespos, and Castros have the field to themselves. There is no coherent or respectable opposition to the adventurer class. The writer of this article affirms that such a thing as an election under the forms of law is unknown in the republics he condemns. He estimates the stealings of BLANCO at $40,000,000, accumulated in twenty years, while CRESPO got $20,000,000 in four years; and CASTRO, who five years ago was a mule driver, is now "supposed" to have $10,000,000 laid up in the Bank of France.

This is very reckless writing, of course. But when the writer begins to declaim against the Monroe Doctrine as a barrier which the United States has thrown across the stream of human progress, condemning the great continent of South America to everlasting barbarism, it will be seen at once that he takes a stand which is rather European than American. It is a view, however, that a person exposed to the highly unfavorable impressions of South American civilization which this business man has received, and also quite ignorant of the true nature of the Monroe Doctrine, as he appears to be, may very naturally take and hold. He affirms that the South American adventurers and dictators to a man look upon the Monroe Doctrine as a license to perpetrate their outrages and robberies, believing that we will not fail to protect them against the punishment they deserve at the hands of foreigners whom they may have pillaged or injured. Undoubtedly there is a considerable basis of truth in this statement. Continental Europe, at any rate, believes it to be true. Knowing, as every well-informed American does know, that the Monroe Doctrine is in no sense a shield thrown over Latin-American freebooters, knowing that the doctrine is intended, not for the protection of South America, but for the assurance of our own peace and safety, we find it difficult to understand why the Latin-Americans should so misconstrue its meaning. Nevertheless, our attitude of protest against the Venezuelan demonstration must tend to encourage the belief of the adventurers of States like Venezuela and Colombia that we intend to stand between them and the penalties which their misconduct invites. At any rate, the fact is very likely about as The North American Review writer states it.

He exhibits his highly defective understanding of the politics of this hemisphere when he prescribes as the remedy for the evils he points out the co-operation of Germany, England, and the United States in taking joint possession and control of the Latin-American republics. The United States should at least "adopt a sane and practical policy"; and "whether it acts alone or in conjunction with other Powers is immaterial." Of course, it is altogether "material." Action in conjunction with other Powers is quite out of the question. But that we should act ourselves, that the time is coming when we shall be compelled to act, is a proposition which is beginning to receive the sober attention of Americans. Here and there the conclusion has already been hastily reached that we shall be compelled to assume control of such republics as Venezuela and Colombia. The natural way, the right way, the best solution of the problem, would be for the decent and well-behaved majority in the convulsive republics to put the adventurers out of the way and elect capable and honest men to the offices. That counsel of perfection goes to the very root of the matter and brings up the fundamental question whether these people unaided ever will become capable of self-government. For three-quarters of a century or so we have paid no great attention to their strifes and revolutions. It is different now. Like all the rest of the world we turn an attentive ear to the behests of commerce. It would be improvident, it cannot be allowed that these incorrigible mongrels should continue to rule and ravage countries of great productive capacity and potential wealth. The Central American republics to the south of Mexico, and Colombia and Venezuela would certainly seem to be marked out as countries destined to fall within our sphere of influence not long after the opening to traffic of the Isthmian Canal.

TWO MISSOURI DEMOCRATS.

Having called attention the other day to some very unwise remarks of a Democratic member of Congress from Missouri, Mr. DE ARMOND, we feel bound to do equal justice to the remarks of a Democratic ex-member of Congress from the same State, Judge TARSNEY. Mr. DE ARMOND insists that the candidate of 1904 must be somebody who stood on the platforms and supported the candidates of 1896 and 1900. Judge TARSNEY observes that "we lent the Democratic organization to Populistic ideas eight years ago," and "reached out for the sage-brush States," abandoning every doubtful State the party had been holding "on the old battle lines." Hence he thinks it high time to recall the loan and resume the "old lines."

The obvious good sense of this will commend it to every Democrat who desires to win. Seeing that Mr. DE ARMOND'S policy has twice been overwhelmingly rejected by the people of the United States, the presumption that he does not desire to win is equally overwhelming. A party that would rather be wrong than elect a President can always have its wish.

"CROWNER'S 'QUEST LAW."

Erie County has, by special act of the Legislature, and alone in the State, a system of Coroners which reformers agree to be more scientific and rational than the old-fashioned system which survives elsewhere. Under this system the medical investigation of a death is confided to medical men, and the legal investigation, should such be proved or indicated to be necessary, to lawyers.

Doubtless it is desirable that the practical workings of this system should commend it to the people of the State and extend it to other communities accordingly. Unfortunately, that result can scarcely be said to have been reached in the most conspicuous case to which the new method has yet been applied. On the contrary, the findings of Judge MURPHY in Buffalo in the Burdick murder case, which take the place of the old-fashioned verdict of an inexpert Coroner's jury under an inexpert Coroner, have all the drawbacks and infirmities of "Crowner's 'quest law."

Why the Justice should have thought it his duty to express his opinion concerning the conduct of pretty much everybody whose name has been mentioned in connection with the case, in court or even out of court, by no means appears. There is, in fact, probable cause to believe that PENNELL either committed or instigated the murder, and that if he were still alive he would be arrested and held for it. But it was by no means necessary to exonerate persons who had not been accused of the murder. Still less necessary was it to inculpate such persons. In fact, this latter proceeding was outrageous. No considerate person will severely blame a family doctor, under the stress of great agitation, for suggesting any explanation which would save scandal in a family in which he had been a confidential visitor and friend. It is true that, reviewing the case in cold blood, the theory of suicide which the physician in this case suggested by way of saving the scandal looks perfectly preposterous. But the doctor is not likely to lose either friends or patients by reason of his well-meant though ill-judged and hopeless attempt to "hush the thing up."

The attack upon the mother-in-law of the murdered man is far more wanton and outrageous. The "Crowner" accuses her of not showing enough emotion on the stand weeks after the murder, and of not showing zeal enough for the discovery of the murderer. He therefore accuses her of knowing more about the crime than she has told. Considering that he does not pretend to have any evidence which would justify her arrest, such an imputation must be regarded as a wanton calumny. It shows "Crowner's 'quest law" not only in its most ridiculous but in its most odious light. It is a warning, not an example.

THE CRUEL MORTGAGE TAX.

After the exposure of the certain effect of the mortgage tax that has been made and was forced home in the hearing at Albany, it would be outrageous to pass it, and if there had been no such exposure the tax should not be levied because the liquor license tax will produce more money than the State needs.

Exactly how much the liquor tax will yield it is impracticable to say, for we cannot know how far it will tend to reduce the number of places taxed. But whether it is $5,000,000 or $7,000,000, it is all that the Governor sought at the opening of the session. It may be a good tax or a bad one, but it is enacted, and nothing more is required. The mortgage tax stands on a different footing. It is bad in principle, clumsy in method, mischievous and unequal in effect, and, as we have said, totally unnecessary. So far as it should prove effective it would be double taxation, tending very strongly to obstruct the business and embarrass the affairs of small borrowers on real estate. It would with little doubt act most harshly in the farming districts, and would therefore be ill-advised as a party measure; but that is the concern of the Governor and his associates. What concerns the public is that the tax is an outrage on a peculiarly helpless class, and it ought to be prevented.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

—While the German Foreign Office has been pleased to accept as adequate the acceptance as adequate by President ROOSEVELT of Admiral DEWEY'S queer apology for his genial remarks about the German Navy, the German newspapers have not been content to let the episode end so quickly, and they are now engaged in giving brilliantly successful demonstrations of their ability to speak as scornfully of our ships as the Admiral did of theirs. However it may have been with him, the German editors are haughtily indifferent to facts and history, and they choose their contumelious phrases for looks and sound, not worrying in the slightest degree about the danger of falling into absurdity. The idea that we are a youthful nation is always with them, as it is with other Europeans—though we have seen most of them pass through several epochs of construction and reconstruction since we set up in the business we are still conducting at the original stand, and hence the Teutonic epithet-hurlers are particularly ready to charge our navy with showing the faults and weaknesses of immaturity. We are doing well enough for our age, they say, but we are so dreadfully young! Shades of PAUL JONES! Let's see—was it in this century or the last one or the one before the last that he proved the American man-of-war competent to fight with European ships in European waters? And where was the German Navy then—where, for that matter, was Germany, where was the French Republic, where were Italy and Austria-Hungary? England our ancestors knew, and another Spain, and another Holland, but they had been long in their graves before there was a Germany to call our navy babyish.

—Accompanying the news that henceforth organ grinders are to be banished from the Back Bay district of Boston, comes the statement that the organ grinders bitterly bemoan their exile because it has been in that very part of Boston that the rewards of their melodious labors were most generous. This is very puzzling—as are so many things Bostonian to barbarous outsiders. If the Back Bay people didn't like machine-made music why did they separate themselves from large quantities of their small coin when the grinders ground, and if they did like it, why did they solicit and obtain the decree of expulsion? At first inspection this mystery seems dark indeed, but with a longer look one gets a glimpse of the New England conscience at work in its own peculiar way. The residents of the Back Bay really did like the hand organs, but they knew—having heard it in New York, perhaps—that they ought not to like such music, and so they determined to deprive themselves of one of their few enjoyments. And they did not trust themselves too far. Only by driving the organ grinders away, far and permanently, could the Back Bayers be sure that they would not weakly listen to the witching strains, and, having listened, weakly pay for them. Virtue by statute or ordinance is much admired in New England, and nowhere more than in Boston.

—A field of inquiry and discussion, wholly new and of large extent, is opened up by what is destined, we think, to be long and widely known as "the Trenton flag incident"—a minute incident in itself, but full of possibilities and significances. As related in our dispatches yesterday, the manager of the Trenton branch of SWIFT & Co. had half-masted the American flag over the establishment as a mark of respect to the deceased head of the house. Whether the act expressed much or little of personal grief is not stated, and for present purposes need not be asked; it was an act that has been performed innumerable times in real or nominal honor of men of almost all sorts of eminence, and nobody, so far as we remember, has ever before objected in a case at all analogous to this one. The people who live in the vicinity of SWIFT & CO.'S Trenton branch seem, however, to have sensibilities especially delicate—developed, perhaps, by the atmospheric peculiarities common to such neighborhoods—and they simply couldn't endure the spectacle presented by the lowered flag. Under the leadership of one Mr. AUGUSTUS RILEY—whether of the song or not remains to be revealed—they went to the manager and informed him that in half-masting the flag because a "mere multi-millionaire and trust magnate" was dead he had filled them with horror, and that if the flag were not at the top of its mast within a given number of minutes things would happen in which the manager would have a deeper personal interest than in the demise of his employer. The manager, who seems not to be made of heroic stuff, considered the situation briefly, and—hauled up the flag until its position suited the views of Mr. RILEY and his friends. To express a final opinion as to the rights and wrongs in this incident is something that cannot be done easily, and should not be done quickly. There are a good many sides to it. For instance, the manager could not have been right both when he hauled down the flag and when he hauled it up, and, as for Mr. RILEY, though his course was without precedent, and obnoxious to adverse criticism from several points of view, yet one cannot but feel, deep in one's heart, an understanding of his conduct that is in a way justification of it.

—Porto Rico seems to have gone a little mad over the President's daughter, and to have welcomed her when she came, to have speeded her when she went, and to have entertained her while she was on the island, with an effusiveness and enthusiasm that hinted delusion as to just what the people of this country do when they elect a man to the highest office in their gift. It might have been well if somebody had told the amiable and courteous islanders that with us the Presidential glory, such as it is, does not extend beyond the Presidential person, and that it was more than a little absurd to treat a member of the President's family, however charming in appearance and manner, as if she possessed an official status and was therefore a proper object of public demonstrations. There is a small element of danger, as well as a large one of incongruity with republican ideas, in such demonstrations. Even an American girl, sensible as most of them are and protected by a saving appreciation for the humors of a situation, might well have her head momentarily turned at finding herself treated like a Personage, and any consequent mistake of hers, however trivial in reality, might create misunderstandings from which serious results would follow. As there has not been the slightest hint that Miss ROOSEVELT did not bear herself with perfect discretion, so far as the Porto Ricans forced her to accept the rôle of Personage, there is no ungraciousness in discussing this delicate matter. Another might not be either so wise or so successful in meeting a really difficult situation, and might imperil important governmental interests without intending to do so at all. The fact is that, though our Presidents, as men, have families, they do not have them as Presidents, except in certain strictly social relations, and, outside of those relations, are not officially represented in any way or degree by the members of their household. The Porto Ricans were so recently Puertoriqueños, with ideas based on the etiquette and customs of a Bourbon Court, that they can easily be pardoned their present slip, but they should not let it happen more than a few times more.

SUICIDE AND COWARDICE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE NEW YORK TIMES is so generally accepted as the paper of fine ideals and high moral standards in our great metropolis that I, as one of its constant readers and admirers, was much shocked to see, a few days ago, an unequivocal defense of suicide as the best thing left to a man (or woman also, presumably,) who had dishonored his (or her) name. The exact words were: "The best service that remained for the friends of the culprit to do him was to leave in his way a pistol or a dose of poison." And again: "Quick suicide is infinitely preferable in such a case to the long-drawn scandal and horror of a judicial investigation."

It may be admitted that to a man of any imagination and capacities higher than those of the brutes a judicial investigation of such a crime is no inefficient substitute for the torments of hell; but it does not do the least bear upon the moral question involved. Any schoolboy has a high enough standard of ethics to deprecate the doing of a wrong action, and then, as he would put it, "refusing to face the music."

The suicide is simply a coward, except in those extremely rare instances in which the act is committed, in extremity, to save another life, as when Sir Walter Besant, in the "Demoniac," pictures a husband who, for his wife's safety, deliberately resolves on suicide, because he is the victim of an uncontrollable hereditary appetite for spirituous liquors, which results in attacks of homicidal mania. Even in such a case, it is questionable whether a voluntary submission to personal restraint would not have been the higher ideal of right; though, of course, in this instance there was no cowardice.

We cannot too highly guard the ideal of personal responsibility and accountability for our actions, good or bad. It is precisely the happy-go-lucky theory of existence that is responsible for so much of the unhappiness and crime of the world, and it should be the aim of all thinking people to substitute a firm intent to do the right, and when we fail, as, being human, we all do at times, to take our punishment, no matter how hard, as brave men and women rather than craven cowards.

WEALTH OF BRITAIN AND AMERICA

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of to-day there is a communication signed "An Englishman" in which he attempts to show that England is richer than the United States. What does he mean by richer? Does he mean actual wealth, or credit in the "confidence game" now playing by the monetary world?

If he means wealth, then the United States is a great many times richer than England. We have a hundred times more natural bounty, and the brain and brawn to convert it to man's use and we are a hundred times the richer if he means that England is playing more conservatively and with better judgment the great monetary "confidence game"—that her chips are taken with more confidence that they will be redeemed—then England is the richer. She is the safer and more skilful credit-mongers.

But I maintain that riches—actual wealth—consist in natural bounty, and the intelligence and muscle of the people to reduce them to man's use.

THE REASON WHY.

Lowell O. Reese in San Francisco Bulletin.

Now glue your eye upon the man
Who prances down the streets
With optimistic bow and smile
To every one he meets;
The suavity he flings abroad
Makes all the world feel glad—
And even makes the mourner feel
Ashamed for being sad.

He slaps a friend upon the back,
And hopes he's feeling fine;
His spreading, long continuous smile
The whole way down the line;
He jollies you and laughs with you
And calls you "Jonas, ole chap!"
Until you're bound to swear that he's
The best one on the map.

Yes, he is most agreeable,
And I suppose that's why
When he goes home there is no smile,
No laughter in his eye;
Why his is like the faces seen
You see he's smiled so much all day
That none is left to give away

POSTAL DEPARTMENT WORRIED BY INQUIRY

Uneasy Officials Long for Postmaster General's Return.

Investigation Not Conducted with Consideration for His Friends—Mr. Bristow Unearths Some Scandalous Practices.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Postmaster General Payne is expected to return to his desk April 10, and hundreds of clerks in the Post Office Department are counting days that make up the interval. There is an atmosphere of apprehension throughout the big department. As one of the old clerks said to-day: "We shut our eyes every little while as we think the blow is coming. There are investigations to the right of us, investigations to the left of us, and no tall woods to run to. When Mr. Payne comes back he will take a hand in this situation, and we shall breathe again."

It is known that the investigations which Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow is conducting is by direction of the President, and Mr. Bristow is subordinate to neither the First Assistant Postmaster General nor to the Postmaster General, who is in San Juan, Porto Rico.

Postmaster General Payne receives a dispatch daily acquainting him with the leading events within the department, but has no adequate knowledge of what is being done in the investigation. In fact, his friends are ignorant of what is going on, and the men who are being investigated are as much in the dark as the absent Postmaster General.

The whole department is being upset by inquiry. Mr. Bristow is not limiting his investigation to the question whether Mr. Machen and Mr. Wynne, the First Assistant, clashed as to their respective jurisdiction. He has gone far beyond, and has taken hold of many interesting things.

Mr. Bristow refuses to be interviewed. He says he has gone through something like this before in unearthing postal scandals at Havana, and he knows how important it is to keep his own counsel and not open the door to malevolent attacks which are aimed at him simply because he is obeying orders and performing an unpleasant duty.

It is known that Mr. Bristow has found proof that there were annual assessments in the salaries and allowances in the division which collected considerable sums of money which went into private pockets and were not used for any political purpose. He has discovered that employes have been induced to buy stock in corporations formed and conducted by officials of the department, and that these purchases of stock have much the appearance of assessments by superiors upon subordinates.

He has found that under the guise of making political assessments large sums of money have been collected in the rural free delivery service, and that these amounts have not been accounted for as political contributions. He has also some proof going to show that various appliances used in Post Offices have been contracted for with an understanding that a regular royalty should be paid to department officials on each appliance.

Many of the officials under fire are absent from their desks. Several are sick. When any one can be found who will discuss the situation he will name a dozen or more officials who "must go" and then goes on to say that in a general shake-up like this the jester will extend to a number of persons who occupy subordinate positions and are not to blame, but at some time or another have done something under orders from a Chief that will be made the ground of removal.

The fact that Assistant Postmaster General Wynne took the initiative in forcing the investigation and that he has the President's support gives the affair a serious aspect. Many of the officials who are being investigated are near to the Postmaster General.

Mr. Wynne and Mr. Payne are not in accord, and it is not out of reason to expect that the Postmaster General will resent the liberties that have been taken with the department during his absence. It is clear that there is bitter feeling on both sides, and the President has not quieted the factions thus far. On the contrary, being impressed with the suspicion that the department needed an airing, he has set in operation an inquiry that can only be obnoxious to the Postmaster General. The fact that the Postmaster General and his Fourth Assistant are not entirely in accord and that Mr. Bristow is making the inquiry adds to the interest of the situation.

Mr. Bristow in prosecuting the inquiries has several first-class detectives under his direction, and is following clues to which suspicion has not hitherto been directed. One of the allegations taken up in the investigation is that the influence built up by the rural free delivery service has been employed to further miscellaneous legislation before Congress under circumstances that seem to indicate the work was undertaken on a contingent arrangement for compensation.

THE TREASURY STATEMENT.

Figures for Nine Months of Fiscal Year Shows Available Cash Increase of $45,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Nine months of the fiscal year 1903 closed yesterday with the Treasury holding an available cash balance of $222,921,980, a loss during the month of $1,621,481. Compared with March 31, 1902, the available cash shows an increase of $45,000,000. A comparatively small sum was contributed to the surplus by the operations of the month just closed, the receipts having been less than $500,000 above the disbursements, which were very large last month. The appropriations made at the recent session of Congress to meet deficiencies in former years explains a considerable portion of the increased disbursements.

The total of the gold funds now stands at $632,783,820, an increase of $7,000,000 during the month. These figures include the reserve fund held to redeem United States notes and the trust fund to redeem outstanding certificates. The free gold held has risen during the month from $100,651,782 to $120,816,803, an increase of $17,000,000.

The extent and rapidity with which the gold has accumulated in the Treasury the past twelve months will be seen from a comparison with April 1, 1902. On that date the total holdings were $540,346,020, and the free gold aggregated $94,856,000. Thus the increase in the former is $96,894,773 and in the latter $31,067,753. The available cash balance now held exceeds that held one year ago by more than $45,000,000.

Deposits in National banks to secure public money show little change since Feb. 25. The aggregate now held, including money to the credit of United States disbursing officers is $400,000 less than one month ago but it is $22,000,000 above the amount held one year ago.

The certificates and notes issued against deposits of coin show an aggregate decrease during the month of $6,000,000. The decrease in gold certificates is $10,000,000, which the Treasury gained, while the increase in silver certificates is $4,500,000. Treasury notes show a decrease of $1,000,000. The aggregate of these three kinds of money outstanding is $346,382,724.

The receipts for March were $45,496,439, against $46,504,414 for March of last year, a decrease of about $1,000,000. The customs receipts show an increase over March, 1902, of $2,000,000, and the internal receipts a loss of $3,000,000.

The expenditures for March were unusually large, aggregating $44,967,837, and exceeding those for the same month of 1902 by nearly $9,000,000. This is explained by the fact that $4,000,000 was drawn from the Treasury for the relief of the Philippines, $1,000,000 to pay Hawaii for damages sustained in suppressing the royal revolt, nearly $1,000,000 to meet deficiencies in the postal revenues, and large sums for several objects provided for in the general deficiency appropriation act.

For the nine months ended with March 31 the receipts were $422,663,400, against $419,002,579 for the same nine months of the preceding year. The continued increase in customs receipts keeps the balance on the credit side of the Treasury books. From this source the increase was roundly $28,000,000, while the decrease in internal receipts was $21,000,000. An increase of more than $20,000,000 in miscellaneous sources made the aggregate for the nine months $4,000,000 greater than that for the same months of the last fiscal year. The amounts of the receipts for the nine months ended March 31, 1902 and 1903 respectively:

Internal revenue	203,903,912	173,911,661
Miscellaneous	24,866,078	31,025,477
Total	$419,002,879	$422,663,400

The expenditures for the nine months show an increase of $31,419,276 over the same months of 1902. For 1903 they aggregated $389,264,117, against $357,844,841 for the same period of 1902. The increase is shown to have been mainly in four items. Civil and miscellaneous disbursements show an increase of $11,000,000; navy, $9,000,000; war, $6,000,000, and Indians $3,000,000. The expenditures in detail are given in the accompanying table:

	1902.	1903.
War	86,764,000	92,664,624
Pensions	106,856,025	105,713,643

COL. HOWZE AGAIN EXONERATED

Secretary Root Says Charges of Cruelty Appear to be Unfounded.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Secretary Root to-day addressed a letter to the editor of The New York Evening Post, replying to a letter which inclosed the charges of abuse of Filipinos against Col. Howze.

The Secretary says that these charges were made soon after the alleged outrages were said to have occurred, and were presented to Gov. Taft and Gen. MacArthur. The latter made an investigation and reported that they were without foundation. The record in the case was transmitted to the War Department. Since the revival of the charges another investigation has been made by the Judge Advocate General, with the same results.

PRESIDENTIAL APPOINTMENTS.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The President appointed Dr. Theodore J. Bluthnet of Chicago to be United States Consul at Barmen, Germany, vice Max Bouchaets of Illinois.

He has also appointed Pierre Paul Demers of New Hampshire to be United States Consul at Port Limon, C. R., vice J. B. Richardson of Kansas, transferred to Utila, Honduras.

THE MARIE COLLECTIONS.

Sales of the Library and Porcelains, the Engravings and Miniatures of Peter Marié—Illuminated MSS. and Rare Editions.

The late Peter Marié was a man of cultivated tastes who inherited a sufficient fortune to permit him to indulge them at a comparatively early age; but these tastes were too many and too scattered to make him a collector in the full sense of the term. Until late in life the collector was always second to the man of society. The social instinct in him was so strong that much time and money, which in a less genial personality would have gone to the discovery and acquisition of works of art, were spent in entertaining his many friends here and in London, in Paris and on the Riviera, or in purchasing for friends such rather trivial objects as ordinary persons in the fashionable world are able to appreciate.

Mr. Marié had a good deal of tact, and was apt to bestow a present that would suit the recipient. Unfortunately such generosity and such a scattering of interest as we find in him do not result in the great collections such as the brothers Dutuit, for instance, got together. These men had few friends or none, and were considered misers, if not downright curmudgeons, but the collections they left the City of Paris show what singleness of purpose and indifference to the opinion of the world can accomplish when guided by a certain amount of hard-headed Norman perspicacity.

But the late Mr. Marié has been underrated instead of overrated as a collector, because he was best known as the owner of a collection of miniatures representing ladies of his acquaintance, and as this part of his collection does not represent any high degree of art, the inference was readily drawn that the miniatures just about represented the standard of his connoisseurship. This does him great injustice, for not only are his steel engravings, etchings, eggostints and old colorprints worth examining, since they contain fine specimens, but in bookbindings and illuminated manuscripts he was a collector in the serious sense of the word. Some of the finest French brie-a-brac, moreover, some of the European porcelain and fayence rescues his memory as a man of taste from the erroneous impression made by the large number of mediocre miniatures of friends through which he was most widely known in his own city.

Besides the miniatures that represent his whim as a friend of fair ladies, often painted by miniaturists of no great talents, there were old miniatures in his house which are by good artists known or unknown, and these have been placed among the objects to be sold. Portraits of Lady Charlotte Duncombe and Lady Villiers represent the art of Richard Cosway, a British miniaturist of no mean talents, whose little likenesses on ivory attain fabulous prices at the London auctions. Here also is Cosway's miniature of Miss Pierson. And among the unsigned miniatures there are some of the first quality.

Lovers of snuff boxes and old watches cannot afford to neglect the Marié pieces; for he secured a number that are little works of applied art, and the same may be said of his collection of fans. His books, however, are likely to create most interest among those who value good and rare editions when presented with all the advantages of the bookbinder's art.

It would be impossible to mention more than a few of the prominent pieces in this section of the Marié library in books, also, he was keen as selecting as a buyer in many directions. Yet from the Grolyin Ives sale he secured the beautiful Perrotin edition of Béranger (1834-1838) in seven volumes, bound by Masson-Debelle, which contains 104 vignettes by noted artists and steel plates after designs by Johannot, Gigoux, &c., and extra colored plates by Monnier, and music by Béranger, Gounod and Halévy. Here is an uncut copy of the rare "Fables Nouvelles," by Dorat, two volumes on large paper, (1773.) Here are nine publications by the Grolier Club. The first edition of the exceedingly rare edition of the "Fables et Nouvelles" of La Fontaine, (1685-1686,) now exceedingly rare, is present in beautiful bindings by Mailliard. Books for which $1,000 and upward are paid when they appear in auctions are: Zola's "Le Rêve," bound by Meunier, with designs in colored enamels on the cover and illustrations by Schwabe and Métivet; and the complete works of Poe illustrated by Coburn, edited by Richardson, published by the Putnams. Much higher prices are paid for the big volume with autographs of Napoleon and members of his family, printed portraits, drawings, documents, &c., bound by Thierry. One of the costliest books is the Pickering 1826 edition of Walton and Cotton's "Complete Angler," originally in two volumes, but extended into six, with bindings by Marcel, and containing in addition to the original plates and vignettes 350 other engravings.

From the Crawford collection there is a quarto containing 100 miniatures by Italian, Spanish, French and Flemish artists of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries, and a charming little set of miniatures arranged for a breviary or book of hours, with borders quaintly painted with flowers, insects, &c., alternating with the pictures. The latter are by some primitive who had the spark of genius, so delightful in his rendering of different expressions on the faces of the little figures from Holy Writ. The borders have never received the writing for which they were intended. This little gem of the illuminator's art is only 6 inches by 4. But the collection should be seen, since description is useless.

Along with many objects that have their market value but will not tempt the connoisseurs there are many prints, books, miniatures that represent some ideal to a great variety of collectors. It is for them to pick the good things and not for those who buy less for the quality of the object than for the name of the recent owner.

It is certain that if every person to whom the late Peter Marié did a service or offered a courtesy should determine to get some thing in memory of him the collection could not hold them.

The gems, bronzes, porcelains, &c., will be sold Friday and Saturday afternoons; books, engravings, and paintings Monday afternoon and evening, Tuesday afternoon and evening, and Wednesday afternoon and evening, lasting from April 6 to April 8.

...DAY TALK

Ethel Barrymore's Experiment in Senator Hanna's Cuisine.

The Dramatization of "The Pit" Forestalled in the Third Avenue Theatre —A Novel View of Ben Jonson.

"Let me cook the dinners of our statesmen," says Miss Ethel Barrymore, "and who will elect them to Congress?" She has been the guest of Senator Hanna in Cleveland during the past week. "Each day," according to authentic relations, "the Senator gives a reception to society in the afternoon and Miss Barrymore prepares the dinner." Whether the reception is held in the kitchen while Miss Barrymore is flitting lightly and nalls about the oven, or whether instead the oven is brought into the drawing room where Miss Barrymore is receiving, deponent sayeth not, nor does it matter much. Perhaps the Senator dines at noon. Enough that the domestic press agent has furnished us this idyllic picture of the actress with her own hands preparing the pabulum that is to be transmitted into Republican legislation. "Senator Hanna has declared that he likes Miss Barrymore's cooking as much as he does that of his chef, who makes the famous corned beef hash which has been tasted by many of the country's famous men." In God is our trust, and out of Miss Barrymore's cooking is our trusts.

***

What are Miss Barrymore's favorite dishes? Again deponent sayeth not, but imagination flings off the bonds of ignorance and evolves the following menu, the fruition of which will no doubt be traceable in future legislation:

MENU.

Consommé Carrots, à l'Antoine.
Bouris des Champs à la Chinoise.
Poulet Catherine.
Sauce La Meyne. Russell Sprouts.
Salade Corn and Beans à la Captain Jinks.
Fromage de Frohman.
Demi-Ecstasse Metropolitaine.
The table is garnished with Rosemary.

When it was announced that Mr. W. A. Brady would next season produce a dramatisation of Frank Norris's "The Pit" certain saturnine spirits foreboded that the result would be mere melodrama. If so, then Mr. Brady's coming attraction has had a shadow cast before it. "The Gambler's Daughter," which is this week delighting the throngs at the Third Avenue, is a melodrama of the Chicago Board of Trade. The gambler is a weak father, who has fallen into the clutches of the heavy villain. The heavy villain loves the daughter with a five-act love, and at his behest the father falsely imprisons the girl's true lover, and commands her to marry the villain. She scents the plot, and by means of a fortune left her by her mother she sets out to ruin her father financially, and with him the heavy villain.

***

The great scene is that in which she appears on the Board of Trade, and, by means of well-directed buying, wrecks a bear operation of her father's. It seemed doubtful whether the audience quite understood what a bear operation is. One of the light juveniles suggested that a bear was an animal that hugs you, and for a moment there seemed to be an expectation of a live Hagenbeck exhibition. Here is a hint for Mr. Brady. The success of Miss George's donkey in the first act of "Pretty Peggy" might be repeated by trained bears in "The Pit." When the active buying and selling began at the Third Avenue, however, the audience were put wise, for the heroine displayed a large wad of money, which she said was her entire fortune—the fortune by which she intended to bring ruin on her father and free her falsely imprisoned lover. The sight of so much of the long green proved conclusive. She deposited the money with a flourish of arms and a grand gesture, and at the end of the act the father fell prostrate on the floor, even as Norris's Curtis Jadwin did in the wheat pit in the moment of his ruin.

***

As the heavy villain, Mr. A. J. Pickens displayed talents that would win him fame on any stage. His manner was the coolly cynical. When the father cried: "You wretch, you hell-hound, God will punish your villainy, though I am powerless against it!" Mr. Pickens loosened his evening collar with his forefinger and said: "Aren't you afraid of overexciting yourself, my dear boy? Wouldn't you rather have a glass of water?" When the hero (Mr. Bond) grappled him, rolled him on the floor, and then extracted the falsely incriminating document, Mr. Pickens got up and stretching himself out on the sofa casually remarked: "Exercise never did agree with me." The audience for a wonder forgot he was a villain and applauded roundly.

***

As the gambler's daughter, Miss Clara Thorp wore evening clothing that was somewhat more than décolleté, and she was as exuberant in her gestures and her vocal intonations as Mr. Pickens was reticent. Much must be allowed for the acoustics of her audience, but apparently Miss Thorp went beyond all allowance. Twice after an emotional curtain a lady in the audience remarked: "I don't like her. She puts on too much." In view of that décolletée, the purport of the remark was unmistakable.

***

That is certainly an amazing letter in the current number of The Theatre, from Mr. Appleton Morgan, President of the New York Shakespeare Society. "I think I have heard the cry of the deterioration of the stage to the first man who ever raised it—Ben Jonson, who raised it when he found that his sixteenth century London public deserted his stuffy old plays because a certain newcomer, William Shakespeare by name, drew the public to his plays and left Ben without the wherewithal for a second fire!" Shades of the chronologers! Ben Jonson was born just ten years later than Shakespeare, and long after Shakespeare was dead Jonson lived and prospered greatly. Only his first two plays belong to the sixteenth century, and these were produced by Shakespeare's company, at Shakespeare's friends' house, and sometimes been said. Certainly the elder poet acted in the first of them, "Every Man in His Humour." Jonson's famous conversation with Drummond, in which he censured Shakespeare's art, took place in 1618, three years after Shakespeare's death. His saturnine "Ode to Himself," to which, as it laments the degeneracy of the stage, Mr. Morgan doubtless refers, was written thirteen years after Shakespeare's death, in 1629, on the failure of "The New Inn," which, as Jonson declared somewhat surlily, was "never acted, but most negligently played by some, the King's servants, and more squeamishly beheld and censured by others, the King's subjects." Nor was Ben the earliest prophet of despair. In Bacon's "Advancement of Learning" (1605) occurs a passage on the degeneracy of morals and of the stage. But this by comparison has the fresh blush of modernity. A recently discovered Egyptian papyrus, which is one of the oldest literary monuments extant, raises a doleful wail to the effect that some thousands of years B. C. the world was rapidly sinking into decrepitude.

NOTES OF THE THEATRE.

Harry Woodruff, who now is playing with Mrs. Fiske in "Mary of Magdala," has been engaged by Maurice Campbell to play Orlando, as he did once before, with Miss Crosman, in Miss Crosman's revival of "As You Like It," which will be seen at the Manhattan early next season. As far as possible Mr. Campbell wishes to presage Miss Crosman's old cast of the play.

The management of "Little Lord Fauntleroy," revived at the Casino April 13, says that it will award thirteen prizes for the thirteen best 500-word criticisms of the play written by children less than fifteen years old. Fifteen dollars is the highest amount offered as a prize.

***

Edmund Russell has arranged to give a series of "Hamlet" matinées at Wallack's Theatre, commencing April 28. Mr. Russell made his first appearance as "Hamlet" in Bombay two years ago. He says that an attempt will be made here to surround the production with a literary atmosphere rather than to give a spectacular performance.

***

Laura Lammers, who has a part in "Pretty Peggy" at the Herald Square, went into hysterics just off the stage during the matinée yesterday afternoon, and screamed so loudly that she was heard in the audience. She had been in a nervous condition for some time, and became frightened at the donkey, used in the circus scene, which playfully bit at her. A physician was called, and later she was sent home.

***

Ogle Read's "Starbucks" will not be produced at Daly's April 13 for lack of scenery if the pieces are not handled more carefully than the rail fence which was intended for the first act. Some days ago, according to the report, Mr. Read had shipped from his home near Nashville, Tenn., eight or seven rails from a stake and rail fence, so that he could obtain some realistic effects in his play. The rails reached here, but were left outside Daly's stage entrance in Twenty-ninth Street Tuesday night. Yesterday morning they were missing. The rails have a historic value, according to the advance agent, because of the names of Bill Nye, "Fighting Parson" Brownlow, Andrew Johnson, ex-Gov. "Bob" Taylor, and others, which had been cut into them.

***

David Belasco yesterday arranged with Oscar Hammerstein for David Warfield and "The Auctioneer" to succeed "The Resurrection" at the Victoria Theatre, May 4. For Warfield's return to Broadway, he having played at the Bijou in the same play last season, a new scenic production is promised.

***

Hobart Bosworth has been engaged as leading man with Henrietta Crosman.

***

"Everyman," the old English morality play which attracted so much attention here earlier in the season, is renewing its hold at the Garden Theatre, where it promises to run until the close of the season there.

***

THEATRE FOR MISS BINGHAM.

Actress to Have Her Own House and Conduct It on Augustin Daly's Lines.

Amelia Bingham, now playing in Clyde Fitch's "The Frisky Mrs. Johnson" at the Princess, plans to have a New York Theatre of her own which she proposes to conduct on the lines laid down by Augustin Daly. Miss Bingham, last night, in speaking of her project, said:

"While I had not intended to say anything about this theatre plan until I at least bought the property, because owners raise the price the minute they know you are anxious to buy, some eight months ago I obtained a portion of the site and am now waiting to buy the rest.

"This is the realization of a great ambition of mine for several years. I have already collected a good stock company, and when the theatre is completed, I shall attempt to emulate Mr. Daly and produce both modern and classical plays. I shall not try to put myself forward in the character of a star, but shall simply be a part of the company."

CIRCUS PERFORMER HURT.

High Leaper Disabled After Turning a Double Somersault.

The first serious accident of the Barnum & Bailey circus season at Madison Square Garden occurred yesterday afternoon during what is known in circus vernacular as "the leaps." In the exhibition of high leaping and somersault vaulting over elephants and other animals many performers appear. One of the champion high leapers is Thomas Nelson of the Ryan-Zorella troupe of acrobats.

Nelson accomplished successfully the feat of turning a double somersault twice before the accident occurred. At the third attempt the momentum he had gathered on the "run" carried him too far and he alighted on the edge of the mattress doubling his right leg under his body and tearing the ligaments of the knee. He was carried out by the circus attendants and sent to Bellevue Hospital.

Toto Siegrist, one of the Siegrist-Silbon troupe, volunteered to take the injured performer's place in the aerial act, and the performance of the Ryan-Zorella troupe was not interfered with.

HUMBUGGED WHOLE AUDIENCE.

Brooklyn Theatrical Manager Has April 1 Joke on Mystic Shriners.

Percy G. Williams, manager of the Orpheum Theatre, Brooklyn, last night pleasantly humbugged a whole audience in recognition of April 1. Kismet Temple of the Mystic Shrine had engaged the entire house, and in the course of an intermission Mr. Williams rode out on the stage on an elegantly caparisoned camel. He asked the audience to remain after the performance, when he would exhibit the methods of initiating members of the Masonic order.

As the curtain fell he called upon Grand Noble William Nelson, Past Grand Noble John Buchanan, and ex-Alderman Adam Leich to step on the stage. They stood and stared wonderingly, and the audience waited with them. Nothing happened for about ten minutes, when the lights suddenly went out. Still they waited, and in a few minutes a hustling watchman came through, carrying a lantern and shaking a big bunch of keys, shoving the light close to the faces of the men, he remarked:

"See here! Haven't you any homes to go to?" There was a burst of laughter as the lights flashed anew.

"Don't you know what the date is, good people!" said Mr. Williams from a safe position in the wings. "Good night."

MASCAGNI BACK IN NEW YORK.

Composer Reaches This City After Three Weeks of Retirement.

Pietro Mascagni, whose whereabouts has been a mystery since he was heard of in San Francisco about three weeks ago, came out of the West Tuesday night, and is now stopping at the Savoy Hotel. There he is registered, with his wife, giving Rome, Italy, as his residence.

The composer's presence in New York was not known generally yesterday, he not having even visited the offices of the Mitchell Brothers, his former managers, who some days ago declared that they had abandoned all their suits against him.

FIRST CANAL EXPEDITION.

Sub-Committee of Isthmian Commission to Leave for the Scene of Operations.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The Isthmian Canal Commission has appointed a subcommittee to visit Colombia for the purpose of making a personal inspection of the route of the proposed Panama Canal with a view to completing the preparations for the transfer of the canal property to the United States when the final details for such transfer have been completed.

The sub-committee is composed of Rear Admiral John G. Walker, Brig. Gen. Peter C. Haine, U. S. A., and Prof. Burr, all members of the present commission. Unless present plans are changed they will leave New York on April 9 for Colon and will remain on the Isthmus for several months.

They will be accompanied by Major William M. Black, Corps of Engineers, who has just been relieved from command of the post at Washington Barracks in order to serve under the commission in connection with the purely engineering work of the canal project.

Major Black is an expert in sanitary engineering and one of his duties will be the execution of a plan for the improvement of the sanitary conditions of the canal route. He acquired considerable practical knowledge in that special branch of engineering while serving as Engineer Commissioner of the District of Columbia and subsequently as Engineer Officer at Havana, where he initiated improvements which have made that city clean and healthful.

The proposed inspection of the canal works and route will be made entirely under the auspices of the existing Canal Commission. The Panama Canal Commission, which will have charge of the actual construction of the canal under the terms of the act passed at the last session of Congress, probably will not be named until after the ratification of the canal treaty by Colombia.

PHILIPPINE CURRENCY PLAN.

Subscriptions Invited for $3,000,000 of Certificates of Indebtedness in Denomination of $1,000.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Col. Edwards, Chief of the Bureau of Insular Affairs, to-day issued a circular announcing action looking to carrying out the Philippine Currency act. It invites subscriptions for $3,000,000 of the certificates of indebtedness of the Government of the Philippine Islands to be issued in coupon form, in the denomination of $1,000, dated May 1, 1903, bearing interest at the rate of 4 per cent., payable quarterly, and to be redeemable at New York in one year after date of issue in gold coin of the United States. These certificates are exempt from the payment of all taxes.

The Secretary of the Treasury authorizes the statement that these certificates of indebtedness will be accepted by the Treasury Department as security for deposits of the public money of the United States in National banks whenever further deposits may be made, and may at any time be substituted for United States bonds now held as security for deposit, on condition that the Government bonds thus released be used as security for additional National bank note circulation.

ALASKA A TERRITORY.

Argument to be Submitted to Gov. Brady Urging Appointment of a Delegate to Congress.

SEATTLE, Washington, April 1.—About May 1, possibly a week earlier, Volney T. Hoggatt, a leading lawyer of Valdez, will appear before Gov. Brady, at Sitka, and submit a brief, supplemented by argument, in support of the contention that Alaska, which so long has been referred to as a Territory, is in fact and has been since its acquisition from Russia, a Territory of the United States.

Gov. Brady is said to have intimated during an informal discussion of the question, that if Mr. Hoggatt makes anything like a good legal showing as the representative in the premises, he will at once call a special election, with the sanction of President Roosevelt, for the selection of a Territorial Delegate.

Mr. Hoggatt bases his contention of Alaska's right to Territorial recognition on a decision of the Supreme Court of the United States.

ORANGE FOLK DISAPPEAR.

E. F. Maher Left Family Without Explanation—Miss McGeary May Have Started on Stage Career.

Special to The New York Times.

ORANGE, N. J., April 1.—Edward F. Maher of 10 Bell Street disappeared about March 20, and he has not been heard from since. He was prominent in amateur theatrical affairs and was sexton of St. John's Catholic Church for many years. He also was a member of the Orange Council, Knights of Columbus, and was the originator of several fancy dances that made hits at the Columbus Theatre.

The missing man is thirty-five years old and was married about fifteen years ago. His wife is a well-known soprano singer and is a member of the choir of St. John's Church. She also is an amateur actress and has played in many of the productions in the Columbus Theatre. The friends of the missing man have been unable to account for his absence, and Mrs. Maher cannot assign any reason for his sudden departure from the city. It is thought his mind may be unbalanced.

Miss Anna F. McGeary, who won local fame by her acting productions in the Columbus Theatre, is said to be missing from her home, 7 New Street, Orange. She is nineteen years old and pretty. She lived at that address with her mother, grandmother, and an aunt up to about ten days ago. No reason is known for her leaving home, though it is supposed she may have gone to New York to seek an engagement on the stage.

CLOUD OVER DEMOCRACY.

Chairman Bainbridge of Kings County Discusses the Party's Leadership.

Chairman Richard W. Bainbridge of the Kings County Democratic General Committee issued a statement yesterday relative to the reorganization of the Democratic Party.

"We have had nothing but failure for a long time, and it is right that we should seek the remedy. My idea of State leadership calls for a man of the highest integrity—and integrity so magnetic as to attract to it similar elements from every part of the State. Such a leader should be in touch with the wisest counsel that the State can furnish, and always ready to seek it and yield to it.

"He should be willing to serve his party at all times, avoiding entangling alliances for personal advancement, and always keeping in mind the fact that there are better men than himself.

"The Democratic Party in New York is too large and too dignified to work with puppet strings, and the leader who tries it will, sooner or later, wear himself out. He may control it, but of what use is control without victory at the polls? I do not feel that the present State leadership is building a permanent structure. There appears to be at the base a selfish personal ambition that is so unintelligent as not only to be a menace to success, but an example to organization workers, which, if accidental victory should come, would lead to early defeat.

"There appears to be unity among organization workers, but there is a cloud over Democratic leadership, like a cloud that hangs over the credit of a merchant who has several times failed in business—capital gone and credit weak, he cannot make headway."

STOCK EXCHANGE STRIKE.

About 200 Mechanics Stop Work on New Broad Street Building.

A general strike of two hundred mechanics, including electrical workers, sheet metal workers, and laborers, took place yesterday at the new Stock Exchange Building, on Broad Street, against the alleged employment of non-union men to put in the telephone booths and stock tickers. The strike is directed against the Western Electric Company, which had charge of the connections. It was expected that the building would be finished and ready for occupancy by April 22.

The building was formally turned over to the officials of the Stock Exchange last Saturday by General Contractor Wells. The work had been so far advanced that the electrical workers had built and put in place the leads and pipe through which the telephone and telegraph wires were to be put. The union electrical workers, about a score in number, first quit work on Tuesday, and appealed to the other unions in the building trades. The general sympathetic strike in the other trades was decided on at a meeting held later.

The non-union electrical workers continued at their work and were not interfered with by the strikers.

NEW NAVY YARD COMMANDANT.

Admiral Rodgers Succeeds Admiral Barker, Who Will Take Command of North Atlantic Squadron.

Rear Admiral Frederick Rodgers took command at the Brooklyn Navy Yard yesterday morning, succeeding Rear Admiral Albert S. Barker, who on May 1 will take command of the North Atlantic Squadron, now in the West Indies. Admiral Barker has been in charge of the Brooklyn yard since July, 1900.

The new commandant was received at the Sands Street gate of the yard by 200 marines under command of Col. William E. Spicer, and headed by the Marine Band. He was escorted to the commandant's office, and there Admiral Barker turned over the post to him, while a salute of thirteen guns was fired from the Cob Dock and Admiral Rodgers's flag replaced that of the retiring commandant. As Admiral Barker entered his carriage a second salute of thirteen guns was fired.

The new commandant recently returned from service in the Philippine Islands, where he had command of the Asiatic Squadron.

DEATH OF J. S. LAWRENCE.

Father of "Dimple" Lawrence, Who Was Drowned in Shinnecock Bay.

BRIDGETON, N. J., April 1.—John Smith Lawrence, whose name was brought into prominence last Summer by the double tragedy in which his daughter, Sarah Ray Lawrence, known as "Dimple" Lawrence, and Clarence Foster lost their lives one night while out on the Shinnecock Bay near Good Ground, L. I., and the subsequent trial and acquittal on a charge of murder of Louis A. Disbrow, died suddenly last night in Port Norris. The cause of death was announced as strangulation, resulting from asthma.

Mr. Lawrence, who was in the oyster business as agent for several large hotels and restaurants in New York, had lived at Port Norris, with his wife and two young daughters, since August last. He was a man of rugged physique, and had always been in the best of health until the tragedy on the bay. His daughter's death had a marked effect on him, and his health began to fail. Funeral services are to be conducted in Port Norris on Friday.

Mr. Lawrence was a direct descendant of Commodore Lawrence, whose famous remark, "Don't give up the ship," has come down to posterity in the history of the War of 1812. He was a nephew of Justice Lawrence of the Supreme Court. He inherited a considerable sum of money from his father, but he had severe financial reverses in recent years. For a number of years he lived in expensive style in a handsome house in Hempstead, L. I., and prior to the tragedy he usually spent his Summers at Good Ground. Besides a widow, he left one son, who is twenty-one, and two daughters.

Admiral Worden's Widow Dead.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., April 1.—Mrs. Olivia Toffey Worden, widow of Admiral John Lorimer Worden, who commanded the Monitor in the engagement with the Merrimac in the civil war, died suddenly of heart disease in the Snyder cottage here this afternoon. She was eighty-three years of age.

J. W. T. Combs Died in His Chair.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J., April 1.—John Woodhull Tennent Combs, a wealthy resident, was found yesterday morning dead in an arm chair in his room in his residence at 521 Centre Street. Evidently he died early in the night, for he had not disrobed, and the indications were that he was stricken with heart failure while reading. He was fifty-three years of age, and is survived by a widow. He was born in Freehold, and he lived formerly in Newark. He took a great interest in the beautifying of South Orange, and he was a member of the Montrose Association. He was the inventor and manufacturer of an improved stall flooring. He owned many valuable horses.

DEATH LIST OF A DAY.

Elihu Burritt Hayes.

LYNN, Mass., April 1.—Elihu Burritt Hayes, a former Mayor of Lynn, died at his residence this evening from the effects of a fall at his home last October, when his skull was fractured at the base. Mr. Hayes was born in West Lebanon, Me., April 26, 1843, and came here in 1865, and was employed in the shoe industry until 1872.

Afterward he owned The Lynn Bee and in 1885 took charge of The Boston Advertiser. He represented the old Eighteenth Essex District in the Legislature and introduced the Australian ballot law, which carried for him the title of "father of" that measure. Two other important acts he introduced, one to prevent disfranchisement because of change of residence, and the other the Free Public Library act.

Mr. Hayes was in close touch with the late President McKinley and when the appointment of a Governor for Porto Rico was under consideration he was tendered that office, but declined it. He was a close personal and political friend of Senator Lodge. He is survived by a widow and one son.

Col. E. C. Bainbridge.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—Col. Edmund C. Bainbridge, a retired officer of the army, died to-day at his residence in this city from heart trouble and complications incident to old age.

Col. Bainbridge was born in Virginia and appointed to the Military Academy from New York July 1, 1852. On his graduation he was appointed Second Lieutenant of the Fourth Artillery, and served with great credit during the civil war, first in the Fifth Artillery, then in the Quartermaster's Department, and next in the volunteer establishment, where he held the rank of Major. He was brevetted Lieutenant Colonel in March, 1865, for distinguished service. After the civil war he served as Major in the First and Third Artillery, and the Lieutenant Colonel and Colonel of the Third Artillery, reaching the last-named grade in February, 1895. He was retired in April, 1897.

Francis H. Macy.

Francis H. Macy died yesterday in his residence, at 17 West Forty-seventh Street, at the age of eighty-one years. He was the son of Josiah Macy, and was born on the Island of Nantucket. His father established the hard and oil business at No. 7 Front Street, known for many years as Josiah Macy's Son, and now as Pool & Macy. With that business Mr. Macy was connected until 1891. He had been a member of the Union League Club since 1863. His wife was Miss Deborah Underhill, and of his children only one, a daughter, is now living.

Carlos Martinez Silva.

Advices from Bogota, Colombia, tell of the death at Tunja of Señor Carlos Martinez Silva, formerly Colombian Minister at Washington. He was born at Sanjil, Department of Santander, about sixty years ago. He was on his way to his native town when stricken with pneumonia, from which he died. He was one of the most prominent members of the Conservative Party, and was recognized as able diplomat. He was Minister of Treasury during the administration of President Holguin, Minister of Foreign Affairs under President Marroquin, Commissioner to the World's Fair at Chicago, and Commissioner to the Pan-American Congress at Mexico City. Señor Silva was sent to Washington as Minister Plenipotentiary to negotiate the Panama Canal treaty.

He was born in this city and was graduated from the City College in the class of '73. He subsequently gained the degree of LL. D. and was admitted to the bar in Denver and this city. Three years after his graduation he became a school teacher, and in 1890 he was appointed as the Principal of Grammar School No. 10. Curiosity Checked Hastily.

"How did you get that black eye?" asked the casual acquaintance.

"Do you want me to show you?" inquired the man who thought the limit of inquisitive endurance had been reached.

"Oh, no," returned the other, as he saw the man with the black eye preparing for action. "I'd much rather remain in ignorance."—Chicago Post.

Among the creditors are Peter Doelger, $4,219 for beer, and the State Excise Commission $1,622 on a judgment.

LOUIS WECHSLER.—Judge Holt of the United States District Court has denied a discharge in bankruptcy to Louis Wechsler of the firm of Wechsler & Heitler, wholesale dealers in woolens at 260 East Houston Street. He filed a petition in bankruptcy on June 12, 1901, with liabilities to the amount of $9,618 and nominal assets to the amount of $6,613. Samuel Heitler, the other partner, was granted a discharge on Feb. 4 last.

KNICKERBOCKER BRASS BED COMPANY.—Schedules in bankruptcy of the Knickerbocker Brass Bed Company of 38 Park Row, with a factory in Kearny, N. J., show liabilities to the amount of $40,222 and nominal assets to the amount of $4,822, consisting of stock, $3,000; machinery, $1,000; accounts, $2,802, and a truck, $20. There is also a contingent liability in the shape of a suit for $20,000 damages against the company by Marie Esposito for personal injuries. Among the creditors are the American Pin Company of Waterbury, Conn., $3,631; Union National Bank of Newark, $3,200; Isaac Singer, $3,254; New Jersey Tube Company of Harrison, $1,419, and Sweet's Steel Company of Syracuse, $2,000.

It was alleged that they are insolvent, and that they permitted the Birmingham Brass Company to obtain a preference by the judgment for $538, on which the Sheriff levied on the assets of the firm. Deputy Sheriff Plunkett had a sale of the assets yesterday, but was stopped during the sale by an injunction from Judge Holt of the United States District Court, after $620 worth of goods had been sold. Judge Holt appointed William Forse Scott receiver of the assets of the firm.

In February a meeting of creditors was held and the company offered a settlement at twenty-five cents on the dollar, the liabilities being about $18,000.

COTTON.—The market was active and excited during the greater part of the session. The feature of the day was the Government's report of the crop, as compiled from reports of ginners to the Census Bureau. This report had been looked forward to as a probable bullish factor. The market opened easy at unchanged prices to a decline of 6 points, but almost immediately stiffened up. This carried prices up about 30@9 points from the opening, but at this level there was considerable liquidation and the market for a time hung steadily, then broke sharply on the publication of the Government report. The immediate effect on values was a decline of from 7@9 points and this was later increased to a matter of 10@17 points below the close of Tuesday. The market was finally steady net 3@15 points lower. Total sales futures were estimated at 300,000 bales.

Southern spot markets were telegraphed as follows: Galveston nominal and unchanged at 9c; sales, 2,200 bales. New Orleans opened steady, closed easy and unchanged to 4 9-16c; sales, 1,900 bales; Mobile quiet and unchanged at 9¼c; sales, 100 bales. Savannah quiet, ¼c lower, at 9¼c; sales, 100 bales. Charleston firm at 9¼c; sales, 100 bales. Wilmington firm and unchanged at 9¼c; sales, nil. Norfolk dull and unchanged at 10c; sales, 50 bales. Baltimore nominal and unchanged at 10c; sales, nil. Augusta quiet and unchanged at 9½c; sales, 941 bales. Memphis quiet and unchanged at 9¼c; sales, 1,200 bales. St. Louis steady and unchanged at 9¼c; sales, 200 bales.

BREADSTUFFS.—WHEAT—Conditions were somewhat irregular in the wheat market. At times the situation had something of a weak look, but on the whole below the lows of Tuesday, while at others bulls appeared to gain a good head, notably at around the close, when export business encouraged general buying. Soon after the opening, which was steady, the market eased off. Then it rallied and was held firm for a while, but was succeeded by a period of profit taking and reaction. The late market recovered and closed firm at ¼@¾c net advance. The export business was fairly large. Local stocks were 17 loads at outports, besides 110,000 bushels in Kansas City, for Mexico. THE FINANCIAL MARKETS

Money firm, 6 to 15 per cent. on call.

Stocks irregular.

There have been days of smaller business than yesterday's upon the Stock Exchange, but there can scarcely have been days of smaller fluctuations. Sales were fewer than Tuesday by a quarter million shares, but upon the entire active list there was only one change exceeding a fraction, and changes of less than a point were divided nearly equally between ups and downs. In short, there was nothing to the market except its tone. It is scarcely fair to say that Mr. Morgan's views had lost their effect, because there is no saying how far it prevented further fall upon news of mixed character, and at times adapted to cause reaction. The opening clearly showed continuation of Tuesday's optimism; there were midday soft spots upon news spoken of below; and the close was distinctly less yielding, showing readiness to withstand even such hard knocks as are being given.

The day's news was varied rather than important. The amount of bonds refunded under the Treasury's order has reached $7,650,000 and is rising, offers being announced in advance of actual tender. Simultaneously was made the familiar announcement that the Sub-Treasury had received deposits of $1,200,000 to retire bank circulation. Fifteen per cent. money—for that figure was reached again yesterday—and a simultaneous decrease of currency by the sole source of its issue afford a singular contrast. The facts are more eloquent than any comment. The money power makes money both ways—upon the loan of funds and upon the bond speculation, and yet the enemies of the money power were delighted with the failure of the Aldrich bill, and probably will oppose its successor when offered. There was abundance of news about strikes and "strikes." The dissolving of the Wabash strike injunction ought to have a good effect. It ought to convince labor that there is one and the same law for employers and employes, and it ought to teach both sides that an inch gained is better than an unsuccessful attempt to take an ell. In plain language, the injunction was too extreme to be sustained, and therefore to be asked for. But it is to be feared that in taking this view the court, however necessarily, encourages the strikers toward extremes in pressing their advantage rather than toward conservatism. At the argument of the injunction the strikers offered to arbitrate or compromise. The company might well be better disposed to acceptance. The affidavits in the Southern Pacific injunction suit now are piquant reading. Mr. Harriman's sworn statement that the manager of the pool was represented as being willing to sell his personal 70,000 shares at 78 and the pool's 170,000 shares at 70 will arouse curiosity for more details. Incidentally the air was full of rumors about litigation to compel an accounting of the management of the pool. There are ample allegations and supporting details of readiness to cease from annoying the management upon a satisfactory adjustment of stock dealings. For the moment the advantage is with those having the last word, but it is scarcely possible that the matter will be allowed to rest here, and the next chapter should be even more interesting.

FEATURES OF THE MARKET.

While the movement of prices on the Stock Exchange yesterday was highly irregular, with some issues up and some down—though with the larger changes on the side of advances—speculative sentiment was more confident, and everywhere there was a better feeling. At the close of the day best opinion was that the market had stood up surprisingly well in the face of developments which only a few days ago would have had positively depressing effect and would certainly have encouraged professional short selling all through the list.

With scarcely an exception, the day's developments were unfavorable. These included the rise in call money at one time to as high as 15 per cent., with most of the day's loans at 8 per cent; the court order in the Wabash labor case, dissolving the injunction there; the fresh evidences of growing bitterness in the Union Pacific-Southern Pacific fight; the announcement that the Sub-Treasury had been authorized to receive deposits of $1,200,000 to retire circulation this month; renewal of liquidation in St. Paul and Pennsylvania, and a bad break in Colorado Fuel. On the other hand, the only hopeful factors were the fairly heavy grain export engagements announced and the continued buying of stocks in this market for foreign account.

Under ordinary circumstances, or in recent times, the appearance of these many unfavorable factors would have given the market a temporary chill if nothing more. Yesterday it merely produced dullness. There was no weakness, and general liquidation was conspicuous by its absence. Here and there there was pressure of an intermittent sort, but in no case except Colorado Fuel was this pressure effective enough to be noticeable. Even in the cases of Pennsylvania and St. Paul, where long stock clearly came out, the demand in each instance was sufficient to offset this pressure.

Of course, in respect to the high money rates, there was recognition, as there had been on the day previous, that these rates could obtain but temporarily, because due to extraordinary causes soon to be at an end. These causes, it is hardly necessary to repeat, the withdrawals of funds and the shifting of accounts, incident to the April disbursements; and the fact that yesterday was the date for the $10,000,000 payment for the new issue of the Chicago and Northwestern stock. The Northwestern money was paid over during the day to the company by the subscribers to the issue, and, because not immediately available in the Street, left the banks short of just that much cash. Consequently, those institutions were less able than usual to meet the demands upon them for call loans. It is understood, however, that the situation will be relieved to-day.

It was a matter of general comment in the Street that despite the market dullness—with little more than 450,000 shares dealt in, compared with Tuesday's total of nearly 750,000—dealings were well diversified, with thirteen issues traded in to the extent of 10,000 shares or more each, and with many others relatively active. This was taken to indicate a revived interest on the part of the public, especially as so-called pool stocks were little more active than these not dignified by pool support. It is a fact since Mr. Morgan's confident utterances brokers and bankers are more hopeful of the outlook, and are inclined to encourage conservative purchases by customers, where theretofore the advice had been either to hold off or to sell short.

The most active stock on the list was Pennsylvania, where some urgent liquidation was apparent in the morning session, one 10,000-share holding being disposed of in three single transactions—one of 5,000 shares and another of 3,200. Had this stock been thrown upon the market some days ago, it would hardly have failed to depress the stock measurably; yet yesterday it was taken at only a fractional recession, and later other offerings were as readily absorbed. In some parts of the Street the theory was that there had been buying of the rights against sales of the stock; but inasmuch as at present prices such an operation would show no profit this theory does not seem tenable.

Probably the real explanation for the liquidation in Pennsylvania lies in the fact that a large speculative holding had to be closed out, this holding consisting of St. Paul, Pennsylvania, and copper. Incidentally there was also some forced selling of St. Paul, but the bulk of the holding on that issue is understood to be still intact and will not be disturbed unless the price should react to around 160.

The selling of Colorado Fuel, which broke that issue at one time nearly five points, came principally from Western houses, and was at times so urgent that the stock was pressed for sale even to the sacrifice of a half point between sales. The selling was said to be principally by holders who did not look with favor upon the proposed new $7,000,000 bond issue. In marked contrast to this selling there was good buying of the convertible bonds all day.

The St. Louis court decision in the Wabash case, dissolving the injunction against the unions, was responsible for the selling of the Wabash shares. Incidentally it tended to depress the general list, because of the recollection of President Ramsey's statement that previous to the granting of the injunction the strikers had planned a great railroad strike, including practically all the important railroads of the country.

The selling of sugar was by trade interests, and followed the announcement of the reduction in prices made by the trust.

London was a large buyer in this market yesterday, to the extent of 15,000 shares. Cable advices were that foreign sentiment continues hopeful.

Pool manipulation was in evidence in coppers and smelters.

FAILURES FOR THE YEAR.

Strictly commercial failures, exclusive of banking defaults and railway insolvencies, during the first quarter of the current year were, according to reports to Dun's Review, 3,200 in number and $34,344,433 in amount of liabilities, compared with 3,418 in the corresponding month of 1902, when the defaulted indebtedness was $33,731,758. While there appears a decrease of about 6 per cent. in total number of insolvencies, the liabilities involved show an increase of almost 2 per cent. Manufacturing failures numbered 695, against 746 a year ago, and involved $15,692,718, compared with $14,775,904 defaulted liabilities last year; trading failures were 2,239, against 2,502 in 1902, while $15,868,945 liabilities compare with $15,517,827. These two chief commercial classes make a much better exhibit than last year's figures, but in the less important third division, embracing brokers, transporters, &c., liabilities were $4,782,770, against $3,438,527 a year ago, a considerably heavier percentage of increase than appears elsewhere, although in number there was a decrease of 4 to 100. In banking and other fiduciary failures there appears a striking improvement, liabilities aggregating but $4,563,402, against $15,588,663 a year ago, while the number decreased from 26 to 22.

The number of failures and amount of liabilities during the first quarter this year and last in different sections of the country are compared below:

IRON AND METAL TRADES.

Discussing the condition of the iron and metal trades The Iron Age will to-day say:

From all quarters come the reports of a considerable improvement in the movement of raw materials and of products, and the hope is general that that source of worry and loss may soon disappear altogether. Aside from the possible trouble among the structural iron workers there is little danger of any labor troubles along the line to the finished rolling mill product, and it is quite evident that the capacity for production of the makers of the structural iron workers has been much exaggerated.

The event of the week has been the reduction in prices made by the Southern Furnace Association, which includes a considerable number of iron companies in Alabama, Tennessee, and Virginia, and embraces the largest of them. For some time past the official price has been $18.50 for No. 2 Birmingham, but outside furnaces have been steadily undercutting, so that $17.50 has been done. Now, the association furnaces have placed the price at $17.50 for No. 2 Birmingham for Western territory and $18.50 for Eastern territory. Reports from Cincinnati indicate that other sellers are even now offering at close to $17 for that district.

While there has been some irregularity for some time past, the action of the association comes as a surprise. However, aside from the undercutting of other producers, the reasons for it are patent enough. In the East the Southern irons have for some time past been virtually out of the market, which has been supplied by Northern furnaces and by foreign pig irons. These have, in fact, penetrated far into the interior, reaching Ohio River and like cities from the Atlantic ports and entering into Chicago via Gulf ports. With No. 2 Southern foundry selling at New York at $20.75, there is little margin for importers at present prices abroad, but it yet remains to be seen whether values in Europe will not recede sufficiently to allow importers to hold their own to some extent. With the exception of the New England territory, very little foreign iron has been sold for delivery during the second half of 1903 in this country, so that it would not take long before the importations would be sharply cut off and we would again have our market for ourselves. This, of course, applies primarily to foundry pig iron. The quantities of low phosphorus and special Bessemer, Spiegeleisen, and Ferromanganese purchased for future delivery abroad are considerable, and they would continue to come after Middlesborough Scotch and German foundry iron had long ceased to arrive.

The domestic markets, so far as rival and competing regions are concerned, will of course be somewhat affected by the latest development in the pig-iron situation, which will be welcomed as promising to put an end to a false situation.

THE YEAR'S COTTON CROP.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The Census Bureau to-day made public the first annual statement of cotton production under the permanent organization of that bureau. The statement is made by William Stewart, chief statistician of manufactures.

It places the cotton production, exclusive of linters, for the year at 11,078,869 commercial bales, equivalent to 10,630,845 bales of 500 pounds each. The total crop, including linters, was 11,675,146 commercial bales, or 10,857,168 500-pound bales. The difference in the figures on commercial bales and 500-pound bales is due to the fact that some of the commercial bales are round bales, which contain only 355 pounds, or little more than half the weight of the square bales.

The explanation is made that the figures are the result of personal visits on the part of Census Office agents to 32,157 ginneries. The canvass extended until March 25, but at that time there was still unginned a small quantity of cotton. This is estimated at 184,306 commercial bales, and these are included in the figures given. The production by States in commercial bales is given as follows:

Alabama, 1,011,325; Arkansas, 909,629; Florida, 67,287; Georgia, 1,506,199; Indian Territory, 409,691; Kansas, 45; Kentucky, 1,562; Louisiana, 911,953; Mississippi, 1,451,626; Missouri, 48,552; North Carolina, 568,884; Oklahoma, 218,390; South Carolina, 948,200; Tennessee, 328,019; Texas, 2,567,290; Virginia, 16,576.

GOVERNMENT CROP REPORT.

WASHINGTON, April 1.—The Agricultural Department's monthly crop bulletin is as follows:

March weather conditions were generally favorable for the growth of grains and grasses in all districts east of the Rocky Mountains, but outside of New England and portions of the Middle Atlantic States and Lake region Spring work has been retarded by excessive rains and other consequent wet soil conditions. On the Pacific Coast the weather conditions were generally favorable, although it was too cool and the season is two to three weeks late in Washington.

Reports from all sections indicate that Winter wheat is in very promising condition generally. The crop has wintered well and is now making vigorous growth in all sections. Too rank growth is reported from limited areas in Kentucky and some damage by water on low-lands in Maryland and the Lower Ohio and Central Mississippi Valleys. In California Winter wheat is in excellent condition, with heavy yields indicated from a large acreage. Some reseeding is necessary in scattered portions of Eastern Oregon and some reports of slight damage by freezing are received from Washington, otherwise in these States the crop is considered in good condition, although not especially thrifty in Washington.

Some Spring wheat has been sown in Washington, but no seeding has been done in the principal Spring wheat States, the soil being too wet for preparatory work.

The seeding of Spring oats has begun as far north as Michigan, but this work is much retarded to a considerable extent by wet ground. Fall-sown oats are making vigorous growth in the Southern States, with excellent prospects, although seriously damaged by lice in some portions of South Carolina.

Very little corn has been planted north of the Gulf States; where the early planted is up, the stand is fair to good.

Cotton planting is in progress in Southern Georgia and Eastern South Carolina. A very little has been planted in Alabama and Florida. Preparations are general for this work in Louisiana and Mississippi, except in the flooded districts. In Texas the crop is being planted in the central and southern portions and some is coming up.

Serious injury to the peach crop by frost is reported from nearly all sections east of the Mississippi and from Oklahoma and Northern Texas. Other fruits are more promising, although the abnormally high temperatures in the lake region have forced buds to such an extent that frosts at this time would be very damaging.

THE LONDON MARKET.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES
Special Cablegram.

LONDON, April 2.—The Times, in its City article to-day, says money was more abundant yesterday, but the conclusion of the consols settlement necessitated the renewal of about a third of the very large amount due to the Bank of England. Discount rates for short dates were decidedly lower.

The Bank of England bought £160,000 bar gold and reported the withdrawal of 20,000 sovereigns for Buenos Ayres. In the week ended last evening £4,000 was taken in by the Bank of England on balance.

The Stock Exchange was quiet and most cheerful yesterday, the only serious weakness being in Turks, which were sold from Paris.

Consols were unchanged. Home rails were rather dull, there being a few realizations.

American rails were strong throughout and rather more active, mainly owing to new orders. The final quotations show substantial improvements in the active issues. Canadians further recovered. South American rails were firm.

South Africans were firm and more active.

Bar silver rose 1-16d. per ounce to 22 13-16d. spot and 22 11-16d. forward. The closing was steady.

By The Associated Press.

LONDON, April 1.—With the month's turn and the completion of the settlement the demand for money slackened to-day, though it was still active; the day being consols pay day. Supplies were considerably increased.

Business on the Stock Exchange was more active and the tone was generally fairly satisfactory. Consols were slightly easier at first, but recovered. Home rails were firm. American opened firm, but there were few buying orders. Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé, and Southern Pacific were the features. At the close Americans were easier. Grand Trunks were firm on inside support and bear covering. Rio Tintos were irregular. Kaffirs hardened.

Gold premiums are quoted as follows: Buenos Ayres, 127.30; Madrid, 35.20; Lisbon, 23.

In Continental Centres.

PARIS, April 1.—Prices on the Bourse to-day opened steady, but Turks soon receded on the receipt of the Macedonian news. Later they became irregular on heavy forced sales and closed weak, although there was a slight recovery at the close. Industrials fell sharply and rentes declined. Rio Tintos commenced firm, but relapsed and finished weak. Kaffirs were maintained and closed firm.

The private rate of discount was 2 15-16 per cent.

Three per cent. rentes, 98f 85c for the account. Exchange on London, 25f 17c for checks.

BERLIN, April 1.—Stocks generally were depressed on the Boerse to-day, owing to the disquieting advices from Macedonia. Home funds were maintained. Turks were easier and locals were somewhat lower. Canadian Pacific rallied and Dynamite Trust shares declined on account of unfavorable dividend rumors.

CHICAGO QUOTATIONS.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 1.—New York Exchange was at par to-day. Time and call loans, 5½ per cent. Local issues were rather dull and irregular. Swift's shares rose to 113 and thus made up the loss occasioned by the frightened liquidation and short selling on the news of the death of Mr. Swift. Later there was a dip close to 110 and a still later rally. Box Board floundered again. The common was at 3¾ most of the day and the preferred fell to a new level by breaking to 27. The cause attributed was the feeling that the reduction in liabilities reported yesterday was insufficient and that more detailed reports of the company should be issued.

Pneumatic Tool slipped off to 69. Title and Trust showed some strength by advancing to 114. West Chicago sold early at 85, but slipped off 2 points upon the announcement that the time for the deposits of Union Traction and subsidiary line securities with the protective committee had been extended to May 2. While it is said deposits are satisfactory, the feeling that the traction question is as far as ever from settlement worked against prices.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES.

Yesterday's market for outside securities opened with considerable show of strength, but this improvement was followed by irregular reactions. Activity was confined to a very few issues, so that the advantage of strength was to a large extent offset by the dullness which the market showed. Northern Securities and three or four other issues supplied a fair amount of business, but the list in general was lifeless. During the last hour a second upward movement occurred and the active issues, though below the best prices of the day, closed with more or less substantial net gains.

***

GREENE CONSOLIDATED COPPER was one of the strongest stocks in the list, but the gain of a point made in this stock was not accompanied by any large transactions. All told, there were but 1,200 shares traded in, a very much smaller total than this stock had shown on many days of late, when the price fluctuated only a small fraction.

***

NORTHERN SECURITIES sold up to 105¼ and closed at 104¾, a net gain of three-eighths of a point. The trading in the stock amounted to about 7,000 shares.

***

ELECTRIC VEHICLE was decidedly strong and both issues of the stock were fairly active. The buying of the stock seems to be based on the recent formation of an association by the leading automobile manufacturers.

***

AMERICAN DE FOREST WIRELESS.—Owing to the similarity between the two companies there has of late been some confusion in the trading in American De Forest Wireless and De Forest Wireless, the latter being the stock of the parent company of the former. An active market has been made on the curb for the stock of the American De Forest Wireless Company, but no open market has been made for the stock of the parent company, which has been offered at various brokers in the Street at prices considerably below that of the American Company. Both stocks are of the par value of $10, and both companies are organized under the laws of the State of Maine, so that there is much similarity between the two. In one or two instances efforts have been made to dispose of the stock of the parent company at private sale on the representation that it could be sold on the curb a point or two higher.

TYPEWRITERS WILLIAMS, VISIBLE T

He Refers to Purpose of Recovering "Stolen Millions."

Lawyer Nicoll Asserts He Will Show Metropolitan Plot a Stockjobbing Scheme—More Cable Correspondence Read.

The hearing of William N. Amory's action against H. H. Vreeland, President of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, as the first step in a prosecution for criminal libel, was resumed yesterday morning before Magistrate Barlow in the Tombs Police Court, and though it resulted in trashing over again the testimony given earlier in the trial, it also threw light on the contention from new points of view.

The most important development of the case yesterday, the fourth day of the hearing, was that Mr. Amory's purpose to throw the Metropolitan Street Railway Company into the hands of a receiver through the combined effects of criminal prosecution and civil suits, had been carried to the point that Mr. Amory and his associates in the actions against the Metropolitan Company in confident anticipation of success for their plans, actually had begun to figure on and arrange among themselves for the distribution of the salaried places that would be open to them after the road was put in a receiver's hands.

In spite of Mr. Amory's assertion that all his vigilance and work in investigating the affairs of the Metropolitan Road had been in the interest of the public and the stockholders and with a view to punishing persons who Mr. Amory alleged had been guilty of frauds and dishonesty in the management of a great corporation's affairs, it also was proved that some of the investigator's associates in his labor of exposure had speculated in the stocks of the Metropolitan Company by selling "short" just at the time when the suits for the appointment of a receiver were expected to be filed, and when there was publication of the facts alleged by Mr. Amory concerning the mismanagement of the corporation's affairs.

The hearing went on again in the private examination room of the Tombs Court, with Mr. Amory, the only witness examined so far, again in the chair and De Lancey Nicoll of Mr. Vreeland's counsel as the inquisitor, aided by Paul Cravath of the counsel for the Metropolitan Street Railway Company. Mr. Amory's lawyer, Thomas F. Byrne, opposed Mr. Nicoll in more than the average number of objections to questions, while J. Coleman Drayton, Mr. Amory's personal counsel, sat close beside the witness and said nothing through the entire course of the hearing.

DETECTIVE BOTHERED LAWYERS.

When the case was called at 10 A. M. Gen. Benjamin F. Tracy and Wheeler H. Peckham were present as counsel for James R. Keene and Talbot J. Taylor, as they stated to Mr. Nicoll. They attempted to hold a conference in the court room, but were so annoyed by the efforts of a man said to be a detective in the employ of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company to overhear what they said that they left the room. Later they returned, and after a short consultation with Mr. Nicoll departed on learning that there was no likelihood of either Mr. Keene or Mr. Taylor being called that day.

The hearing had been in progress but a few minutes when the appearance of District Attorney Jerome caused another stir. Mr. Jerome, immediately after his entrance, took a seat just under the Magistrate's bench, and on the same side of the room as that occupied by Mr. Nicoll and his associate. As long as he remained, which was through the greater part of the morning session and for a brief period in the afternoon, Mr. Jerome took an active part in the proceedings, and, though he asked questions only indirectly, conferred frequently with Mr. Nicoll and passed his opinion on a number of questions raised as to Mr. Amory's testimony. Later in the day, however, Mr. Jerome made the statement that he had no special interest in the case, but had chosen to be present because the office of the District Attorney had become involved in the case through the testimony, and he wished to see something of what was going on.

Mr. Vreeland was another early visitor, but he remained only a short time. A proposition for an adjournment opened the hearing, Magistrate Barlow having another call on his time, but this Mr. Nicoll opposed, reminding the Magistrate that he had promised to give the day and part of to-day to the hearing. Mr. Nicoll also opposed Mr. Byrne's motion for an adjournment in the afternoon, and prevailed until he had finished practically with the examination of Mr. Amory.

At the opening of the hearing, Mr. Nicoll rose with a large bundle of manuscript which he offered in evidence. This was a continuance of the ocean cable correspondence between Mr. Amory and William A. Hazard concerning the affairs of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, in pursuance of what Mr. Amory said in earlier testimony was an effort on his part to keep Mr. Hazard advised as to the suits against the company with a view to the protection of Mr. Hazard's interests as a stockholder. As in the correspondence submitted in evidence last week, the messages sent by Mr. Hazard were signed, while those of Mr. Amory were unsigned, and were sent to "Dacrydium," explained by Mr. Amory as Mr. Hazard's cable code address. The first exchange of messages read was as follows:

Jan. 4, 1903.

Amory, 127 East Sixty-second Street, New York.
Cable particulars my expense. Address Dacrydium, Paris. Advise Moulton. HAZARD.

Jan. 4, 1903.

Dacrydium, Paris.
Cannot possibly cable; but writing particulars; see Moulton to-morrow.

Mr. Nicoll pursued the same tactics as in the earlier reading of cable correspondence and asked for an explanation of what was meant.

Q.—Why could not you cable? A.—I did not know what company he meant.

Q.—You knew that application for a receiver was to be made for some certain company? A.—Yes.

Q.—But you did not wish to state it by cable? A.—No.

Q.—Did you not write to Mr. Hazard later? A.—Yes, two or three days later.

The next exchange of messages was read as follows:

Jan. 14, 1903.

Amory, 127 East Sixty-second Street, New York.
Cable permission communicate facts English friend now Paris who bought Jelico with me. Assume not confidential Moulton. DACRYDIUM.

Jan. 14, 1903.

Dacrydium, Paris.
Impossible. Confidence absolute inviolable.

Mention of the term "Jelico" caused quite a little interest among the auditors, as Jelico was a coal and iron company whose affairs Mr. Amory promoted once and with the stock of which company he papered the walls of his office after the Jelico failure, an uncommon dado being formed of finely engraved bonds, representing in face value several millions. Jelico, however, Mr. Amory explained, was the code term for Metropolitan. The reading of correspondence was continued as follows:

Jan. 14, 1903.

Amory, 127 East Sixty-second Street, New York City:
Will you cable day or two before closing?

Jan. 14, 1903.

Dacrydium, Paris:
Yes.

Jan. 20, 1903.

Amory, 127 East Sixty-second Street, New York:
Do you favor purchase? Is proposed action policy or failure?

Jan. 20, 1903.

Dacrydium, Paris:
Do not purchase. Failure.

Q.—What did you understand by that? A.—You can see that Mr. Hazard wanted to receive information. He was at sea and wondered whether it wouldn't be well to buy. He didn't understand what the effect would be if the receiver was applied for. My answer to that was "Don't purchase."

REFERS TO "STOLEN MILLIONS."

Q.—What was the meaning of "policy"? A.—The effect of putting the road in the hands of a receiver. The first effect might have disturbed values, but it was understood that the recovery of millions stolen from the company would cause a quick increase in the price of stock.

Q.—What did failure mean, then? A.—Bankruptcy.

The inference that Mr. Amory had thought the Metropolitan Street Railway Company near bankruptcy Mr. Amory explained away by stating that he did not believe that the purchase of Metropolitan at that time would be profitable, and not wishing Mr. Hazard to make such a venture he cabled an answer to discourage any intention he may have had of purchasing. The remainder of the correspondence was as follows:

Jan. 26, 1903.

Amory, 127 East Sixty-third Street, New York:
Is it sure occur. And latest date. Won't announcements be discounted.

Jan. 26, 1903.

Dacrydium, Paris: Yes; probably latest middle February. Think not.

March 2, 1903.

Leave Carlton for Paris Wednesday. HAZARD.

The message to "Dacrydium," setting the middle of February as the date for something to occur, Mr. Nicoll ascertained by questions, related to the probable time when the Metropolitan Street Railway Company was to have been put in the hands of a receiver. Going ahead on that line he continued his questions:

Q.—When did you conceive the plan for a receivership? A.—As soon as I knew that the company was insolvent.

Q.—This plan for a receiver was prepared at what time? A.—As soon as I heard of the consolidation of the roads.

Q.—But when was a definite plan of action decided on, so that you announced your intention of applying for a receiver? A.—About a year ago, or as nearly as I can remember in March.

Q.—To whom did you tell your plans at that time? A.—I told Mr. Keene as early as Christmas, 1901, that the company was insolvent, was in a terrible state, and that millions had been stolen. I did not tell him nor Mr. Taylor that a receiver was to be appointed.

Mr. Amory said that the matter of a receivership had been on his mind throughout 1902, but that he had not disclosed his intended methods to the District Attorney. He was asked to repeat what he had told Mr. Jerome, but his counsel objected. Mr. Jerome, who had entered the room, stated that there was nothing to conceal, but Mr. Byrne persisted in his objection and Mr. Amory declined to answer the question on his advice.

CHARGE OF STOCK JOBBING.

Mr. Nicoll argued for his question, asserting that everything tended to show that Mr. Amory had been to the District Attorney's office to further his own ends, and had planned deliberately to use the District Attorney's office as well as the civil courts in carrying out these plans. He remarked on the fact that, when Mr. Amory saw the District Attorney he did not then confide to him his intention of filing civil suits. He asserted that he would show that the entire plan was a stock jobbing scheme, and that at the moment of his consultation with Assistant District Attorney Schurman Mr. Amory already had completed his arrangements for both criminal and civil suits. His question overruled, Mr. Nicoll turned to another line of inquiry:

Q.—What was the date of your last interview with Mr. Keene? A.—It was late in October. I saw him at his office. I saw Mr. Jerome late in November, and he asked me to take all the papers to Mr. Schurman. I did that early in December.

Q.—What was the purpose of your last interview with Mr. Keene? A.—It was to ask him to continue the investigation.

Q.—That is, to put up some money? A.—It needed that, and a man of courage and ability.

Q.—Had not Mr. Taylor refused to put up any more money? A.—Yes, that was on Sept. 12.

Q.—And then you tried to get hold of Keene, and did get hold of Braker?

Turning to the subject of Mr. Amory's dealings with Mr. Braker, Mr. Nicoll went on:

Q.—You informed Mr. Leavitt in January that you had planned to have a receiver appointed for the Metropolitan Road? A.—I did. I told him of the general plan when I saw him in his office.

Q.—Had you then seen Mr. Braker? A.—Yes. I saw him about the middle of January, I think, in Mr. Potter's office. Mr. Potter had heard of the condition of the road's affairs and asked me to see him and give him what information I had. He also asked me to meet Mr. Braker there.

Q.—You then had in view a plan for Mr. Braker to become receiver of the road? A.—There was no absolute understanding to that effect, but I had an idea that I could make use of him.

Q.—As a matter of fact, did not you then plan to have Mr. Braker made receiver? A.—No. That was decided on later.

Mr. Nicoll turned his attention to the arrangements said to have been made between Messrs. Amory and Braker and ex-District Attorney Philbin. Mr. Amory admitted that he had consulted with Mr. Braker on the plan for the receivership and also had seen and talked with Mr. Philbin.

Q.—Did you not inform Mr. Philbin that you had a plan for the appointment of a receiver? A.—I did not. I went to see him and find out whether or not he would take up the case against the Metropolitan Road.

Q.—Have you not helped him to prepare affidavits and complaints in the suits planned against the Metropolitan Road? A.—No.

Q.—Why, you know of these suits, do you not? A.—I believe there are some affidavits against the Metropolitan Road, but I did not prepare them.

Mr. Nicoll pushed his inquiry in this direction, and Mr. Amory finally admitted that the draft of a petition to be filed against the Metropolitan Road had been prepared by Mr. Philbin, and based in part on the reports and data that he had furnished.

Q.—At what date did you begin with Mr. Philbin the preparation of the affidavits and the application for a receiver? A.—Mr. Philbin began his preparation about Feb. 10. I laid certain facts before him.

Mr. Amory was reminded that about this time his correspondence with Mr. Hazard began, and explained the delay in achieving the results that Mr. Hazard was expecting by stating that his plans had been disarranged through the fact that he had to wait on the decision of J. D. Crimmins concerning the action to be taken. Mr. Nicoll questioned the witness about what Mr. Crimmins said of the suits, but Mr. Amory refused to say anything more than that Mr. Crimmins had not approved of the action planned, and had written a letter in which he referred to the witness in an uncomplimentary manner. Mr. Byrne objected to the introduction of Mr. Crimmins's name, and Mr. Nicoll answered that Mr. Crimmins himself would be a witness later.

Mr. Byrne returned a positive challenge of that statement, and gave notice that he would object to the introduction of any testimony not bearing directly on the point at issue, which was simply whether or not his client had been libeled in the statement published by Mr. Vreeland. Mr. Byrne also declared that he could not see how the persons whose names Mr. Nicoll had called as those of witnesses he wanted could have any influence on the libel action. Mr. Nicoll then returned to the examination.

Q.—With whom, besides Mr. Braker, did you discuss in January this receivership matter? A.—With two of Mr. Braker's friends. One was a Mr. Harding. The other was Mr. Braker's broker, I believe, Mr. Cunningham. Mr. Braker telephoned me at my house to meet them at Sherry's. That was around the 1st of February.

Q.—Did you discuss what position you should have, and what Braker would have if a receiver was appointed? A.—Well, one of them said to me that I would be valuable as the receiver, and suggested that I be the receiver. I said it was out of the question, as the company would have a large part in determining the receiver, and that I would be the last one that the company would consent to. I believe still that I would be very valuable to the receiver.

Q.—Was counsel for the receiver discussed? A.—Yes, at several interviews between Potter and Braker and myself. Naturally the counsel who brought the suit would be the counsel for the receiver. I may have told Mr. Philbin that.

Q.—Do you know what Mr. Hazard was doing on the strength of your telegrams to him in Paris? A.—No, I haven't the slightest idea.

Q.—Did you not cable him Jan. 20, "Failure, don't purchase?" A.—Yes.

Q.—Did that mean to sell the stock short? A.—No. He never sold a share of stock short in his life.

Q.—Do you not know that he was 2,000 shares short of the stock? A.—No, I know nothing of Mr. Hazard's transactions, but I did not want him to go long on the stock and lose money. I told him in answer to his doubts that the appointment of the receiver would benefit the company; that it would pay 7 per cent., instead of paying out a million in dividends that it does not earn.

Mr. Nicoll sarcastically asked if it was Mr. Amory's idea that putting a great property in the hands of a receiver would increase public confidence in that property and enhance its value. Mr. Amory retorted that the benefit would come when the company had recovered the millions that had been stolen from it. Mr. Nicoll dropped the matter to ask the question he has asked a number of times before, whether or not Mr. Amory had ever given advice as to speculations in stocks. Mr. Amory again asserted that he had not.

Q.—Did you ever confer with Mr. Leavitt with the idea that he might sell Metropolitan stock short? A.—I never gave Mr. Leavitt any such advice.

Q.—You know that, acting on your information, he did sell short? A.—Yes; he has so informed me.

REPORT IN PHILBIN'S HANDS.

The reports prepared for Mr. Amory by the accountants John C. Hertle and Max Teichmann were the subject of Mr. Nicoll's next inquiry, and Mr. Amory was asked to tell as far as he knew where the several reports furnished had gone. Mr. Amory finally stated that one set of reports which had been furnished to him had been turned over by him to Mr. Philbin. Mr. Nicoll then asked bluntly if Mr. Amory did not know that these reports of the condition of the Metropolitan Street Railway affairs, while in Mr. Philbin's hands, had been used to furnish the information on which the newspaper publication of March 11 was based. Mr. Amory answered that he had no knowledge to that effect. Mr. Amory under close questioning, however, admitted that the reports he gave Mr. Philbin had been in Mr. Philbin's hands for several weeks. Mr. Amory added, however, that remarks made by a reporter who had been to see him about his Metropolitan investigation had convinced him that the reporter had seen the reports in question.

The morning hearing closed after Mr. Byrne made a strong appeal for an adjournment until to-day, one reason given for his asking it being that Mr. Philbin could not be present until to-day. Mr. Philbin's convenience could not be consulted, the court ruled, as Mr. Philbin was only a witness.

When the hearing was resumed in the afternoon Mr. Amory's connection with the Third Avenue Street Railroad Company was the first matter taken up by Mr. Nicoll. In that connection Mr. Amory detailed his relations with Harry J. Braker and E. C. Potter, both of whom were interested in the Third Avenue line. Of the offer by Mr. Braker to purchase the franchises of the Third Avenue and Metropolitan Road in 1897, Mr. Amory produced a written contract showing that Mr. Braker was acting as the agent for the Third Avenue line and with the agreement that he should receive $50,000 for each franchise he should secure. Following up this, Mr. Nicoll connected Mr. Potter, who also was associated with Mr. Amory in his Metropolitan investigations, with the older deals by the Third Avenue line. At the time of Mr. Braker's bids of $1,000,000 each for the Third Avenue and Metropolitan Road's franchises Mr. Potter had a suit pending against the then Metropolitan Road.

Q.—Was not the Potter suit brought in the interests of the Third Avenue? A.—Yes.

Q.—And was it not beaten in the Court of Appeals? A.—Yes, when the Metropolitan took over the papers from the Third Avenue and gave also all sorts of bribes. Why, Charles Henry Butler told me they attempted to bribe him, and I can give you the man's name if you want it.

CHARLES H. BUTLER'S LETTER.

As evidence of the circumstances attending the transactions of Messrs. Potter and Braker and the Third Avenue road, Mr. Nicoll submitted a lettter written by Charles Henry Butler, then counsel for the Third Avenue road, to Albert J. Elias, President of the line, which in part was as follows:

"I am authorized and intrusted by my clients, Messrs. Eugene Clifford Potter and Henry T. Braker, to state that they are perfectly satisfied with the adjustment and arrangement made with them, respectively, in regard to Manhattan Avenue and Sixth and Eighth Avenue contracts, and their feelings are most friendly toward your company. They do not intend to and will not hereafter bring any actions against the Third Avenue Railroad Company or the Metropolitan Street Railway Company or any other railway company owned, controlled, or operated by either of said companies, except upon causes of actions based upon injuries to persons or properties.

This letter was indorsed by E. C. Potter for himself and by Mr. Potter, through a power of attorney, for Mr. Braker. It was dated Jan. 6, 1897. Mr. Braker's franchise-purchasing contract was dated April 7, 1897.

At 3 o'clock the hearing was adjourned until 3 P. M. to-day at Jefferson Market Court.

A representative of the law firm of Philbin, Beekman & Menken in the afternoon made a statement as to the kind of civil suits and the action for a receiver for the Metropolitan Street Railway as follows:

"There is no immediate intent to bring suit. We are pursuing a course of investigation which is not yet completed. This was begun on behalf of stockholders. But we are not bookkeepers or accountants; we are lawyers.

"As yet there is no evidence one way or the other as to the truth or falsity of the statements sufficient to warrant the bringing of an action at law.

"If our investigation, when completed, warrants bringing an action, we shall do so, but we won't do so yet."

LEGAL NOTES.

CONFLICT OF LAWS.—An interesting decision in the conflict of laws has been rendered by Justice Scott of the Supreme Court. The action was on a promissory note, and if the laws of New Jersey were held to apply, instead of those of this State, the defendant would not be liable. A Mr. Kellogg was the maker of the note, and it was his wife, as indorser, who was sued. The instrument was dated in New York, and was made payable here. Mrs. Kellogg is a resident of New Jersey, and it was there she indorsed the note. She did so merely as an accommodation indorser for her husband. She did not authorize the note to be negotiated here, and had no knowledge that it was to be used in this State. She had no interest in the note, and neither she nor her separate estate derived any benefit therefrom directly or indirectly. The Chemical National Bank, the plaintiff, discounted the note in its ordinary course of business, and at the time had no knowledge or information as to Mrs. Kellogg's non-residence, or the act of indorsement in a foreign State. Justice Scott found in favor of the plaintiff, and said in part: "It is the undoubted rule, as has recently been reaffirmed by the Court of Appeals, that all matters bearing on the execution, the interpretation, and the validity of contracts, including the capacity of the parties to contract, are determined by the laws of the place where a contract is made. This rule, however, is subject to the exception that it will not apply where it can be fairly said that the parties, at the time of its execution, clearly manifested an intention that it should be governed by the laws of another State. In the Union National Bank vs. Chapman, (160 N. Y., 308,) the note upon which it was sought to hold the defendant was dated in Alabama, and made payable in Illinois. It was delivered to the payee in Alabama, and was taken by him to Chicago, where it was discounted by the bank. It was held to be a complete contract when delivered to the payee, and to have been an Alabama contract. The note in the present case is not only payable in New York, but is dated in that State, and although drawn by the husband to his own order and indorsed by him, before the indorsement by the wife, became effective only when discounted at the New York bank. These facts seem to indicate a clear intention on the part of the contracting parties that the note should be considered a New York contract, and be governed as to its validity by the law of that State. Indeed, it may well be doubted whether the defendant, having indorsed a note dated New York and payable in New York, should not be held to be estopped, as to a bona fide holder, from denying that her agreement was a New York contract."

VAULTS IN CITY STREETS.—Justice McCall of the Supreme Court has denied to the city an injunction restraining the de Peysters from further maintaining vaults and a courtyard area in front of the premises at the northwest corner of Forty-second street and Sixth Avenue. The city sought to have so much of the area as extended beyond five feet from the house line adjudged a nuisance and the vaults declared illegal. Justice McCall finds that a permit was granted for the vault way back in 1857, and therefore gives judgment for the defendants. He said in part: "The conditions which characterize this property, and of which the city is now so loudly complaining, are not of recent happening, but have existed for upward of fifty years, and I am very much afraid that there is some error in the allegation made on the part of the authorities that the construction complained of was made without the permission of the city, for I find from the papers before me and the record now in the Department of Highways that such permission was granted, and that the city was paid and received a fee therefor. Without entering into any discussion of what ordinances may or may not be applicable to the issues raised herein, I cannot see, if the city has tolerated, even if it has not actually licensed and permitted, the conditions that have existed here for over half a century, that any great harm can come from a continuance of them till the questions involved have been finally determined on the merits in an actual trial of the case."

DETECTIVES TAKEN TO TASK.

Dismissing Mercantile Agency Men on Conspiracy Charges, Magistrate Pool Criticised Complaint.

Magistrate Pool in the Tombs Police Court yesterday dismissed the conspiracy charges against F. L. Minton and P. R. R. Gatens, attorneys for the R. G. Dun & Co. Mercantile Agency. They were arrested at the Eastern Hotel on Feb. 22 by Detectives Gargan and Tinker, charged with having conspired to injure the International Mercantile Agency, a rival concern, by prevailing upon Charles E. Fowler, formerly an employe, to faisely swear that the rate books of the Dun Agency had been copied and used by the International.

Magistrate Pool, in announcing his decision, took the detectives to task, saying that they had been doing work for private individuals instead of working for the public. "I am sure," he said, "that the District Attorney's office could never have been consulted about this case. If so, this complaint would never have been laid before the Magistrate. There is absolutely no evidence to show that these defendants were trying to institute an improper proceeding. Had this case been laid before me, I would have refused to issue a warrant, for the reason that I would have laid myself open to a damage suit had I done so."

Assistant District Attorney Paul Krotel explained to the Magistrate that the complaint had been submitted to the District Attorney's office and had been revised by a member of the staff.

"No District Attorney with any brains could have revised the complaint," the Magistrate remarked, pounding his desk. "I refuse to believe that the able District Attorney had anything to do with it. I dismiss this charge and discharge the two prisoners."

CHARLES KANTER SENTENCED.

Credit Obtained on Statements of Firm's Condition Alleged to be False—Recorder Goff Merciful.

Charles Kanter, formerly of Kanter & Cohen, was sentenced by Recorder Goff yesterday to five years' imprisonment in the State prison. He was accused of getting credit on false statements of the firm's financial condition, and convicted of grand larceny in the first degree on Tuesday last.

Recorder Goff said that crimes of that nature were far too common in the community, and that the mercantile interests of the city must be protected. He remarked that he could send Kanter away for ten years, but would be merciful on account of his family. Kanter has a widowed mother, a wife and three children.

Max D. Steuer, who defended Kanter, moved for a setting aside of the jury's verdict on the ground that incompetent evidence had been admitted by the Recorder, and he will apply for a certificate of reasonable doubt.

There are four other indictments against Kanter and four against Louis S. Cohen, his partner.
